M'COOK MUST SETTLE CASE
Quarantine Regulations Must Conform to Rules of Safety.
MOTHER'S RIGHT TO HER CHILD
Supreme Court Holds Mother Does Not Relinquish It Permanently Unless Adoption Papers Are Signed.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
LINCOLN, Jan. 30.—(Special.)—A case from McCook involving the right of health officials of a city to place obstruction across a walk to keep people from passing a house under quarantine was decided in supreme court today against the Board of Health.
In June, 1910, there was an epidemic of scarlet fever in McCook and a number of houses were quarantined. In order to guard against further spread of the disease the city authorities caused ropes to be stretched from the porch of one house across the walk and attached to a stake driven in the curb line one rope being about thirty inches from the ground and the other about four feet.
The plaintiff, Mattie Sheets, a young matron in delicate health, while walking along the walk about 8 o'clock in the evening fell over the ropes causing serious consequences. She sued the city, but the case was decided against her in the district court and she appealed.
The supreme court holds that the Board of Health has a right to use certain methods to prevent the spread of disease, but if it allows those methods to become defective and refrains from curing the defect and injuries result because of such defects the city is liable. In this case the evidence showed that the ropes had loosened and no light was placed at the point.

Mother Secures Child.
The right of a mother to the custody of her child is not lost beyond recall by an act of relinquishment performed under circumstances of temporary distress in the opinion of the Nebraska supreme court in an appeal made by Stephen W. and Alice Bryant to retain possession of Robert L. Kendall, Jr., an infant child of Alvira E. Britton.
Mrs. Britton had married her husband in Lincoln, where the child was born. The husband failed to support his family and the wife took the child and moved to Omaha. She obtained employment as ticket-seller at a picture show, but was taken ill and had to go to a hospital. She applied to Bryant for assistance and an arrangement was made whereby the latter were to take care of the child until such time as the mother could furnish his support. Later she signed an agreement relinquishing the child to the Bryants, but he was never adopted.
After returning from the hospital Mrs. Britton went to live with the Bryants, and after securing a divorce from her husband married her present husband, John Britton. In the divorce decree she was given possession of the child. After her second marriage she asked for possession of the child, which was denied her.
The evidence showed that the Bryants had failed to send the child to school only a portion of the time after reaching school age, failed to send him to church and Sunday school and were in the habit of taking him to dances and kept him all night. On the other hand, it was shown that the home of the child's parents was under church and school influences and a desirable place for him, and the higher court affirms the lower court, giving the mother the custody of the child.

The case of Barbara Zitnick, administratrix of the estate of John Zitnick, deceased, up for the second time, was on hearing for damages against the Union Pacific railroad for the death of the deceased. The jury in the trial in the district court of Douglas county brought in a verdict for Zitnick for $5,000. The supreme court believes the judgment excessive in that the interest on that amount would bring in as much as Zitnick contributed to the family and the principal would still remain. The court therefore cuts the judgment to $7,000. The opinion is by Judge Letton.

Zitnick was at work cleaning out the switch points on the defendant company's railroad in Omaha. It was the custom of the company, according to the plaintiff, to carry a man on the front board of its switch engines to warn workers of the approach of the engine. One this particular morning it was cold and Zitnick was wrapped up about his head and depended upon the man on the engine to warn him. He was struck and killed by an engine which had not provided a man as a lookout and negligence on the part of the company was the basis of the suit.
Hoffman Case Reversed.
The judgment of the district court of Douglas county is reversed in a case wherein John Hoffman, an employee of the McKean Motor company, sued the company and secured a judgment. The higher court holds that "there is a verdict so clearly wrong as to induce the belief on the part of the reviewing court that it must have been found through passion, prejudice, mistake or some means not apparent in the record, it will be set aside."
Hoffman had been hurt by a box falling from a truck which was being loaded and set out that sufficient assistance was not furnished him to handle the work safely.

STATUE OF THE MAN WHO MADE NEW YORK LAUGH

Statue of John Jay McDevitt of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., which he will shortly take to Washington on a special train to present to congress. McDevitt will be accompanied by a brass band of fifty pieces, paid for, together with the special, by himself. McDevitt will be remembered as the very remarkable person who recently entertained New York by becoming a "millionaire for a day." McDevitt visited the metropolis, put up at the best hotels, dined at the most expensive restaurants and arrived left in a special train. McDevitt wants his statue to be placed with the statues of "other great men who have won fame by acts of valor for their country."

WOMEN'S CLUBS WILL AID.
At a conference held yesterday by Food Commissioner Harman with representatives of the Federation of Women's Clubs of the state in which Mrs. Carrie M. Peterson, president of Aurora, Mrs. Gist of Falls City, former president, and Mrs. Burnett of Lincoln, in charge of the home economics department of the federation were present, a plan was decided in which the members of the federation will cooperate with the pure food department in the enforcement of the sanitary laws of the state.

News Notes of Fairbury.
FAIRBURY, Neb., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—Marion Kilgore, formerly a locomotive engineer on the Nebraska division of the Rock Island lines, has instituted a $25,000 personal injury suit against this company for injuries he received in the yards at this place early last fall. At that time, Kilgore was assisting in unloading a carload of material for the new passenger station. A car handled by a shifting engine coupled into the car he was working on and he had his foot mangled between the automatic couplers.
Del F. Goles and Edith M. Ankrum, a prominent couple of this city, worked a clever surprise on their friends by going to Lincoln and getting married. Mr. Goles is a locomotive fireman on the Rock Island at this place and has resided here for a number of years.
Henry Fette, a well known business man living at Jansen, died this week after a brief illness. Deceased was born in Belsheim, Germany, October 7, 1862.
Ben Greteinger has resigned his position with the Omaha store in Beatrice and has accepted a position as manager in the dry goods department in the J. W. McDonnell department store of this city. Fairbury is being represented at a conference in Chicago this week between the Rock Island conductors and officials, by W. E. Brown, a prominent Nebraska division conductor.

Corrick Declares Party Men Will Put Up Bitter Fight to Have Place Under Own Party Designation.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
LINCOLN, Jan. 30.—(Special.)—There is consternation among the bull moose herd which is feeding around the state capital nowadays and Frank Corrick, the big moose of the bunch was angrily shaking his horns today because the information had come to him that candidates for county offices throughout the state who belonged to the third party would be unable to get on the ballot. The information comes from Thayer county where it is stated that the county clerk has said he will refuse to receive the names of candidates for office under the bull moose name.
Corrick says they will make a fight to get on the ballot and preparations are being made here to begin suit at once if the right for a bull moose to get his name on the ballot is denied.

Saloons Cannot Be Located in Buildings Owned by Brewers

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 30.—(Special Telegram.)—In an opinion this morning the supreme court holds valid the Gibson law relative to the operation of a saloon in a building owned or controlled by a brewery company and orders the cancellation of a license issued to A. L. Hauff of Stanton, who runs a saloon in a building owned by the Storz Brewing company of Omaha.
The evidence disclosed the building had been transferred to a majority of the stockholders of the brewing company under the name of the Independent Realty company.
Judge Hamer dissents from the opinion taking the ground that unless real estate is transferred by a brewing company to a holding corporation with the purpose of getting around the Gibson act, there is no violation of law.

More "Bread and Butter" Questions Answered by the Man of the House

Question—What do you think of "Glendale"?
Answer—It's great! Best thing that ever came to this house!
Q.—Why?
A.—Because it cuts a slice from a big expense item and gives the kiddies and me more of what we like.
Q.—How does "Glendale" do that?
A.—The wife never says "be careful, butter is going up," now. So we dig in and get all we want on our bread and cakes and baked potatoes and the like. You ought to see the kiddies go to it.
Q.—Is it good for them?
A.—I've looked that up since Armour and Company commenced advertising and I find every food expert in the land saying this article is every bit as good as butter. I say better, because it's good every time; not good one time and only fair or bad another time.
Q.—Why so much confidence in "Glendale"?
A.—The "U.S. Inspected" stamp certifies purity. Armour and Company guarantee the quality.
Q.—Going to stick to "Glendale"?
A.—Sure thing! We like it. And see what it gives us. More to eat and still money saved. Why, the wife bought little Dick an overcoat with what she saved in three months by using "Glendale".

Armour's "Glendale" Butterine always satisfies the hearty eater—child or grown-up. Therefore the leading dealers in this community have arranged with Armour and Company to have "Glendale" for you all the year 'round. They will always have it fresh, pure and wholesome. Their names will appear in this paper February 7.
