MRS. GOVELL ANSWERS ANTIS

Local Suffragist Makes Speech in the City Hall.

OPPOSITORS TRAITORS TO SEX

Delivers Reply to Miss Minnie Bronson's Address, in Which She Says All the Women Want is Justice.

Announcing she was supposed to answer arguments against woman suffrage advanced by Miss Minnie Bronson in the anti-suffrage meeting recently held in Omaha, Mrs. George W. Covell, prominent suffragist and temperance worker, told 100 women and a few men at the council chamber last night that the "antis" had not put up any arguments against equal suffrage, because there are none. Then she uniquely presented her own ideas on the matter in the following way:

"It is said that if women get the ballot the men will soon be crowded out of their positions. But how about positions as washwomen, dishwashers, dressmakers and all the other women's occupations which men have invaded? Every kind of a woman's job has been tackled by men except that of wet nurse, and now even man-made baby foods take the place of the original female brand.

The antis say that if women get the ballot they will no longer be in the home. They seem to think that when women become enfranchised they will go immediately to the polls and, after voting, will walk around the voting booths the rest of their lives.

Would Men Lose Chivalry? They say men would lose their chivalry if women voted. But women don't care for hat-tipping and car seats; all they want is justice.

The women who oppose woman suffrage are traitors to their sex, and are in the same class with the Tories of the revolution.

The spirit and enthusiasm of the suffragists do not require electric auto and fair weather, which the antis need for the success of their meetings.

Mrs. Covell praised Mayor Dahlman because, she said, he is not a "wobbler" like many men, but stands fairly and squarely for his ideas, although she declared she differs with no man more radically than she does with him. "If he is ever won over to the other side," she said, "he will be the strongest man on it."

A brief talk was made by Rev. C. N. Dawson. John L. Kennedy presided.

W. U. to Use Phone On Omaha-Lincoln Commercial Stuff

The Western Union Telegraph company will within a few days be handling all its Omaha-Lincoln commercial business by telephone, as its Atchison-Leavenworth, Kan., business is now handled. The company is now changing a number of heavy short leads from the Morse to the Bell system.

The Omaha-Lincoln telephone wires will be put in service tomorrow. For a week or more the change from the telegraph to the telephone has been in progress and while workmen have been installing new instruments and other equipment, girls at each end of the lines have been practicing on transmission and copying of messages.

Wunwrath Heir to Fortune of $500,000

William Wunwrath and his sons, Hugo and W. A. Wunwrath, residents of Omaha for many years, have received word that they are heirs to a fortune of $500,000, left unexpectedly by a great uncle, who ran away from his home when a boy and was not known to have amassed a fortune all now.

Hugo Wunwrath is assistant cashier of the Woodmen of the World, and his brother is also a Woodman employe. The father used to be in the hardware business, but has been a invalid for some time.

"Until they receive the reported wealth the brothers say they intend to keep on working."

BEARD TELLS STUDENTS TO CHOOSE OWN VOCATIONS

"Few people choose a vocation; most people just flounder into one," said Religious Work Director Irs J. Beard of the Young Men's Christian association before the students of Kellom night school last night. He spoke on "Choosing a Vocation," in the "Success" series being conducted for the students.

Mr. Beard said that making a deliberate choice of a vocation, instead of just floundering into one, would avoid inefficiency, economic waste to society, and becoming a "misfit," would save time and would allow a person to prepare for the chosen vocation and concentrate his efforts upon achieving it.

As rules to be followed in making the choice, the speaker outlined the following: Follow your dominant interest; choose so as to serve the world's material and social needs; choose a permanent occupation; choose an occupation which is physically safe.

Culls from the Wire.

It is announced that beginning next Monday the price of the London Times will be reduced from 2 pence to a penny (2 cents).

Agitation against side doors and screens in Chicago saloons found expression yesterday in a vote by the council judiciary committee recommending to the city council an ordinance abolishing the "family entrance" and similar signs over saloons doors.

Ownership by the state of the bed of the Arkansas river to high water mark was declared by the Oklahoma supreme court here yesterday in Oklahoma. The decision gives the state complete title to the oil and gas deposits beneath the Arkansas and other navigable streams in Oklahoma, besides said and gravel in which the state also has asserted its rights.

SALEON BONDS BECOME MORE EXPENSIVE FROM LAW VIOLATIONS.

BOND COMPANIES RAISE COST

Liquor Men Who Make Bonds Discover That Their Records Are Carefully Watched by Companies Backing Them.

Because a number of citizens have begun to agitate the reduction of the number of saloons in South Omaha, the purveyors of booze in the Magic City are making desperate haste to get in their applications so as to be among the first who file and come up for consideration by the board. It is whispered that there is also trouble in getting a surety bond for saloonkeepers. This last is said to be due to the unwillingness of the bonding companies to go as security for men who are said to violate the liquor closing laws. Also the number of damage suits filed last year against delinquent saloonmen has scared the bonding companies away. It is urged.

According to a story told, a number of saloonkeepers made a round of the Omaha bonding companies a few days ago with the hope of getting the usual rates for security. Each and every bonding company is said to have politely referred the visitors to another company, and the last company is said to have absolutely refused to have anything to do with the bonding of South Omaha saloons this year.

Last year the saloonmen were forced to pay a high premium and to post $500 additional cash security, it is said, before the bonding companies would agree to touch their bonds. This year, it is said, the bonding companies will push the rate still higher.

PROTECTS SINKING FUND.

Mayor Tom Hoyer and his council last night again showed their determined intention to get at the $15,000 of back taxes which City Treasurer Martin has collected and pined into the interest and sinking fund for the purpose of reducing the city debt. A resolution directed to City Clerk Perry Wheeler was introduced by Henry Hartnett, costing $20 from the seventh ward, appropriating $200 from city funds for the payment of outside attorneys, who are to be hired to beat the will of the city treasurer and the city attorney's office. The legal department of the city has always fought to build up the interest and sinking fund in an effort to reduce the city's debt and incidentally the city taxes. The mayor wants the money to add on to funds which have already been used up.

City Clerk Wheeler yesterday asked advice from the city attorney's office and in reply was directed to refuse to draw the warrant appropriating the $200 for special legal services.

The letter of the city attorney to the city clerk says the Hartnett resolution is void for several reasons. It states that such a transfer of money to an unlawful diversion of public funds; that it is contrary to the plan and specific provision of the city charter as to the disposition of back taxes. It charges that the mayor and council have not the right to spend the money for attorney fees and charges that the purpose of the present attempt to grab more than $15,000 of back taxes is plainly to bolster up an overgrown police fund so that political nets may be unnecessarily perpetuated upon the pay roll.

The letter concludes with the advice that the statutes make the city attorney head of the city's legal affairs and concludes by an advice that an attempt to comply with the council's resolution in this instance would be to court liability on the official bond of any one who attempts to obey it.

St. Patrick's Day.

Hibernians in South Omaha are making preparations for the annual celebration of St. Patrick's day along the same lines as in former years. The events of the day will begin with a parade of division No. 2 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, which will march from the hall at Twenty-fifth and M streets to St. Agnes' church. The parade will start at 3 a. m. and will be headed by the Hibernian file and drum corps. Solemn high mass will be celebrated at the church and Rev. Father Gately of St. Cecilia's parish, Omaha, will preach the sermon.

In the evening the St. Bridget's boys' choir, under the direction of Rev. Father Baillon of St. Bridget's parish, will open the program. Dr. W. J. McCann will act as chairman of the meeting and Rev. Father James Ahern will deliver a few remarks.

Verdict of Jury.

A suicide while mentally unbalanced was the verdict of the coroner's jury yesterday on the death of Edward Reed, who shot himself Monday night.

Reed, who was in excellent health had shown that Mr. Reed's mental health had been affected by the long and continued suffering caused by the disease from which he suffered.

Contractors Are Busy.

Just one more crack at the paving situation in South Omaha seems to be the consensus of the paving contractors' opinions who are bidding on public improvement work. A stirring, not to say riotous, campaign in support of one and different kinds of paving material was conducted yesterday in South Omaha, and the city council met last night. Each contractor says that his material is the best and most desirable with which to pave the city streets.

In consequence of the activities of the contractors there were a large number of bids offered at the council meeting.

It is understood that there is also some activity developing in the sidewalk bids. The council session did not consider much else except the paving bids.

Railroad Employees Battle.

Beard was told to keep without the railing of the Burlington office at Thirty-ninth and L streets, early this morning, Ed Quinn, a brakeman, is alleged to have struck and seriously wounded R. J. Fatterly, station agent for the Burlington. Quinn is alleged to have used a poker upon Fatterly's head and the injury is said to be serious.

According to the South Omaha police, it appears that there has been trouble between the men for some time. Early this morning Quinn is alleged to have entered the station. When he sought to come within the space allotted for the night operator, Fatterly objected. A fight followed and Quinn is said to have used the poker with telling effect.

Fatterly was taken to his residence at Twenty-eighth and B streets. The police are said to be looking for Quinn.

ATTRACTIONS IN OMAHA.

Niccha Elman at the Brands. Omaha people had the privilege yesterday afternoon of listening to one of the world's greatest artists, in the person of Niccha Elman, the Russian violinist. It is given to see such technical mastery combined with so much warmth of tone, Niccha Elman ranks as one of the three great personalities that dominate the world of violin playing, the other two being Ysaie and Kreisler. Of these Elman is the youngest, and what may we expect of him when he attains the age of Ysaie, after hearing him yesterday? The program was made up of three famous "pieces de resistance": for violinists, the Mendelssohn concerto, the "Faust Fantasia" by Wieniawski and the "Zigeunerweisen" by Sarasate, as well as a group of smaller numbers, transcriptions for the violin. He opened the program with the Mendelssohn concerto, playing it in its entirety. He gave the allegro molto appassionata, a brilliant performance, technically clear, and full of light and shade in spite of its rapidity, and difficulty. The broad, satisfying tone of the andante, with its mood of quiet repose, was in direct contrast, and proved the artist to be a master in the more peaceful portions. The beautiful allegro which precedes the molto vivace exactly suited the writer in its interpretation, and the molto vivace was so clear technically and so vital musically that it made a most brilliant close to an unusually remarkable performance of this celebrated number.

For an encore he played one of the faintest of numbers, which sounded both old and new. It sparkled with bits and delicate music. This was an allegretto by Bocherini-Kreisler. The "Faust Fantasia" displayed more marvels of the violinist's art and left the audience breathless with admiration and wonder. The technicalities over which other violinists slave and struggle he tossed from his bow with such ease that the audience would not guess they were difficult. His use of the up spring bow was a lesson in itself, and the sureness of his bowing and the accuracy of the harmonics were marvels of skill.

The audience was unusually enthusiastic for Omaha, and another encore was demanded. This time Mr. Elman treated us to a Martini minuet, and it also proved a gem of graceful lines. The Chopin-Sarasate nocturne in E flat was played with breadth, intensity of tone and musical understanding. The beautiful "Bird as Prophet," by Schumann, transcribed for violin by Auer, is as graceful on this instrument as in its original form.

The shading and careful pianissimos displayed in the presentation with which the artist portrayed its beauties gave a most bird-like effect.

The well-known Beethoven minuet arranged by Burmeister followed, and the third group closed with a novelty entitled "Tambourin," by Leclair Naches, in which a tambourine effect could easily be imagined. A double encore followed, a brilliant Etude, "Capricio" by Paganini, which again displayed the player's wonderful technical ability, and a joyous waltz, "Liedertrend," by Kreisler.

After the "Zigeunerweisen" by Sarasate, which also requires not only technical skill, but musical conception, Mr. Elman responded to insistent applause with Dvorak's "Humoresque," for which he is famous.

It is impossible to compare Ysaie and Elman. Mr. Elman plays like a young man, his tone is luminous, warm and radiant, and he plays with a poise from a different point of view than his fellow artist. Ysaie's tone is big, warm and broad, but he plays with a maturity, and conception which is different, and which makes the playing of each artist as distinct and individually his own as is his personality or appearance.

Mr. Percy Kahn was a most sympathetic accompanist. His work was careful and artistic in every way. Both Mr. Elman and Mr. Kahn will be assured of a warm reception should they again return to Omaha. H. M. R.

HEADACHES

Thousands of men and women suffer from headaches every day, and thousands have headaches every week or even every day. Some have headaches occasionally, but not at regular intervals, and in many cases it is difficult to find the cause of many of these headaches, and in most other cases, knowing the cause, he does not know what to do, so as to give a permanent cure. All he can do is to prescribe the usual pain relievers, which give temporary relief, but the headache returns as usual, and treatment is again necessary. If you suffer from headaches, no matter what their nature, take Anti-Kamale Tablets, and the results will be satisfactory in the highest degree. You can obtain them at all drug stores in any quantity, 10c worth or more. Ask for A-K Tablets.

The First Baptist church last night under the direction of J. E. Carnal, and a chorus of thirty voices with organ and piano accompanist. Considering the fact that they have only been working upon this wonderful oratorio for three months, the work done last night by both the chorus and soloists was highly commendable, and held the attention of the audience throughout. The chorus was well balanced and displayed an earnestness in their numbers which was gratifying.

Their attacks were unusually precise and solid, and the ensemble work throughout reflected great credit upon the director. Some of their best work was done in the chorus, "The Lord is Great" in the second part. The choruses were all taken a tempo, and given with rest and spirit. The soloists were Miss Hazel Silver, Miss Lenore Hachten, Miss Mary Shackerford, soprano; Miss Ruth Hamilton, contralto; Archie G. Todd, tenor; Mr. Carnal, bass; Harry Diabrow, baritone, and E. S. Travis, bass.

Of these Miss Hazel Silver, Harry Diabrow and Mr. Todd deserve special mention. A great portion of the solos fell to them. Miss Silver has a soprano voice of unusual brilliance in quality, and exceptional range. Her tone was always true, and she has much technical equipment. She sang the difficult arias easily and clearly, and her enunciation was excellent. Mr. Diabrow's warm baritone was heard to advantage in the many recitatives which fell to his lot. Mr. Todd was a visiting tenor, coming from Salina, Kan., for this performance.

His voice is strong and inclines to a high note in quality. It is especially good in the middle tones. He sings with much assurance and his enunciation also was distinct at all times. Henry W. Thornton at the organ and Blanche Graham Strombaugh at the piano, furnished the accompaniment and in the absence of an orchestra proved themselves most satisfactory. The organ lending volume and dignity to the choruses, and the piano giving clear crystalline effects in the many running passages. The work will be repeated by request next Thursday evening at the Immanuel Baptist church. H. M. R.

Promises of the Free Agents.

Olis Skinner has won another triumph in Omaha by his masterly interpretation of "Kismet," which is now being presented by Messrs. Klaw & Egan and Harrison at the Grand Opera House. As an actor, Mr. Skinner's diversified figure that will be as enduring in historical history as Edwin Booth's "Hamlet" and Jonson's "The Alchemist." The very capable company surrounding Mr. Skinner numbers 100 persons and the staging of the play, which is the work of Mr. Flaks, is superb. Owing to the length of the performance the curtain rises at 8 o'clock, the evening and at 2 o'clock at the matinee.

Some of the biggest vaudeville events of the season are scheduled for this month at the Orpheum. Beginning Sunday, the Orpheum will present the "Big Show" with the seven little boys. For the week following, opening March 22, the headline attraction will be the sensational and spectacular act of the magicians, Horace Golden. He has so much equipment that he can change in a matter of twenty feet longer than a car of average length-is required to bring the act here from Kansas City in a matter of a week. On March 29, the Orpheum shows will come a complete bill of stellar acts. During the headline week the headline feature is Clayton White in "Cherie."

Nature cannot please a woman. Here is Gertrude Hayes who, simply because her hair isn't green, goes and buys a green wig for feature shows. It is not because she happens to have a green dress, which she does a tango dance during the performance, that she is called "the green girl," probably. She has a brown or black wig during the reception she holds on the stage in the afternoon, just after the matinee. Only the lady patrons are invited.

"The Traffic" will be presented at the Grand all of next week's matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.
