Five Men Deny Having Sold Whisky with Intent to Violate Law-Evidence Furnished by Special Police Officer.

Whether marriage makes a man unfit to Judge good whisky was a question quarreled about at length by city comnissioners sitting as an excise board yesterday afternoon and attorneys for the elty and for druggists charged with violations of the liquor law.

The question whether a man is single or married should never enter into the question of legality of sales of whisky," emphatically declared City Attorney John A. Rine. "Here's the chairman of this meeting-he's a single man. You wouldn't hold that against him, would you?" "And you're single, too," remarked one
