THE BEE: OMAHA, FRIDAY, APRIL 3, 1914.

By MELLIFICIA.

Thursday, April 2, 1914.

HE professional pedier, if he is successful, relies upon ready wit many times for this success, and it takes a clever housekeeper to avoid the troublesome vender.

An attractive Omaha matron, who is somewhat ingenious, said to her maid, "If anyone comes to the door with something to sell, say that I am having a shampoo and cannot see them."

Shortly after this the maid, who is quite discerning and one of the real treasures one reads about, answered the door bell, and there was the proverbial spring pedler.

"May I see the lady of the house?" she asked.

"She is having a shampoo and will not see anyone," replied the faithful maid.

"How fortunate," said the witty female vender, "I am selling a marvelous shampoo, guaranteed to keep the hair from falling, out and no soap is necessary; just take a bottle up to your mistress and have her try it and I will wait." .

This was too much: the maid had no argument ready for this contingency.

Amberson introduced his wife as Miss Koch and presumed that he was successful in his chicanery. But he soon learned differently, for when Vincent Hascall, manager of the team, made a speech giving a review of the season, his climax was the introduction of Mr. and Mrs. Amberson and the offering of a wedding present.

Amberson is very well known in Omaha. He is a graduate of Nebraska university and was one of the best quarter-milers the school ever turned out. He was a sensational basket ball guard and was a member of the Innocense, a senior honor society. Amberson was captain of the track team in his senior year. After June 1 the young couple will be at home at 4234 Douglas street.
