ANOTHER EFFORT TO NEUTRALIZE TAMPICO ZONE

occupation of Vera Cruz is to be permanent or not.

If once convinced that the American flag is to float over this city until tranquility is restored throughout the republic, it is entirely certain that the Mexicans of Vera Cruz will give their hearty support to the American civil government.

They frankly admit that they are enjoying greater freedom from apprehension, more personal liberty and a larger measure of prosperity, owing to the influx of American money, than they have known in many years. Many even say they would cheerfully subscribe to any policy of the United States which would insure them a continuance of the present conditions and the extension of these conditions to the rest of the republic.

Ambition Instead of Patriotism.

Some careful observers among the Mexicans, however do not believe that anything short of complete American occupation of Mexico would bring about the desired results. They point out that many factions are striving for power. The entire state of Morelos is absolutely controlled by the followers of Zapata, while the state of Guerrero is under the jurisdiction of the Figueroa brothers. Furthermore, northern Mexico, much of the western coast and isolated points elsewhere, such as Tampico, are controlled or hemmed in by the supporters of Carranza and Villa.

In the capital Provisional President Huerta is in the saddle, but strong factions favoring Carranza, Felix Diaz or some other aspirant to the presidency are fighting against Huerta and each other. Zapata and the Figueroa brothers have been running things in the country they control, without regard to any claim of a central power. Such states are virtually independent principalities within the borders of the distracted republic.

This statement of general conditions is made by Mexicans to support the idea that complete American occupation is the only thing that will bring lasting peace.

There is also an element of Mexicans and American refugees now in Vera Cruz who express doubt that the mediation undertaken by Argentina, Brazil and Chile or similar negotiations will bring about a stable coalition of the warring factions. They are of the opinion that personal jealousies would prevent the selection of any leader to represent them all, and they unhesitatingly declare that in their opinion ambition and not patriotism actuates a great majority of the Mexican factionists.

Some Favor Partial Occupation.

Another idea presented by thoughtful Mexicans is that the only solution of the problem lies in a partial occupation of Mexico by the United States and the establishment under American protection of a government similar to the one formed in Nicaragua, which later would be succeeded by duly elected Mexican officials, the United States supervising the elections and vouching for their fairness. The idea is receiving considerable endorsement from a group of Mexican officials who have remained in the city.

The American authorities, civil, naval and army, are making every effort to disseminate throughout the republic of the benevolent rule already established in Vera Cruz. There is reason to believe also that Washington is quietly working to this same end through military and civil agents sent here to talk things over with representative Mexicans. These agents have been selected for their knowledge of the Spanish language and Blowing in a Fortune.

We heard of a man in Montana who inherited a fortune of $50,000. "Two years ago he had spent it all in riotous living, particularly in race tracks and stock horses. All who visited his stock farm were sure of plenty to eat and plenty to drink, and a fight or two always assured those present of anything but a dull time. When his money was gone he went to work for a living, and was seen by an acquaintance running a hoisting engine at a coal mine. "How do you feel about losing your money?" asked the visitor. He replied: "Oh, I feel lots better than I did, and my wife feels better. When I had that money I was tearing around the country and raising mischief, and now I sit working every day, and getting between $20 and $25 a month, and I like it lots better. I didn't have a very good time with that money. Lots of people could have had a better time with $50,000 than I did with $5,000."—Christian Herald.

GUARDS AND MINERS AGREE TO SURRENDER ARMS TO THE TROOPS

and fired explosive rifle balls into the camp. She swore that she had seen and heard the bullet explode.

"Several times during the day of the battle I went from one tent to another and I never made my appearance without being shot at," she testified. "One bullet shot off the heel of my shoe."

Woman's Version.

Mrs. Jolly gave her version of the beginning of the battle. She said that on the morning (Monday) after the ball game, four militiamen came to the tent colony and asked Louis Tikas (Louis, the Greek), to permit them to arrest a man, who, she said, was not in the colony. Tikas asked them for a warrant and demurred at a demand to produce the man at the order of the military alone.

Woman's Version.

"Louis said he would like to talk to Major Hamrock," the witness testified. The major sent word to Louis to come half way to the military camp. Louis went to the designated spot, but Hamrock was not there. Later he went to the Ludlow station and met the major.

WALSBERG IS DANGER SPOT

Captain Smith Reports Conditions There as Critical.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—A War department bulletin issued today, said that conditions at Walsberg, in the Colorado mining district where Captain Smith is in command of United States army troops, were reported "critical," but that the work of restoring order in Trinidad and Canon City districts was going forward.

Surrender of Arms Delayed.

TRINIDAD, Colo., May 1.—Major Holbrook stated that the federal troops have no intention of disarming mine guards so long as they remained on company property and confined their activities to protecting the company property. Strikers today, individually, spoke dubiously of this arrangement. They seemed to believe that they should not be disarmed until their enemies, the mine guards, were forced to deliver up their arms. It was forecast, accordingly by union officials, that today's referendum vote would be closer than if the knowledge were certain that the guards also would be disarmed. They say the strikers, who the union leaders claim own their arms in-

More Trouble for Naps.

There appears to be no end to Cleveland's trouble. Irving, the club's star southpaw pitcher, now has a lame arm, which makes him unavailable for duty at present.

WOMEN TAKE AFFIDAVITS

The committee of women representing the Woman's Peace association of Denver today took affidavits of numerous strikers and strikers' wives regarding the battle of Ludlow April 30. At the committee's session at Ludlow Major Patrick Hamrock, who commanded the state troops at the Ludlow battle, told the women that during the fight at Forbes on Wednesday he, with 150 militiamen, sat in railroad cars ready to start for Forbes. They could plainly hear the shooting, he declared. Repeated telephone messages to Governor Ammons, he said, failed to obtain permission to move from Ludlow and go to the relief of the besieged mining camp.

The body of George R. Hall, a defender of the Forbes mine, was found late last night. Coroner Sipe was unable to reach Forbes to secure the body last night on account of swollen streams. He expected to send a party for the body today.
