CORN SHOWS SOME ADVANCE

Considerable Liquidation by Longs, with an Eastern Demand and Only Small Sprinkling of Offers from Country.

OMAHA, June 2, 1918. Foster, the weather man, announces that in the great central valley where most of the grain and cotton are produced, temperatures will rise from June 1 to June 13 and that a great hot wave with serious drouth in the middle central valley is expected to prevail most of the tune from June 4 to June 13, and tovering from June 5 to June 13, and tovering from June 5 to June 13, and tovering from five to thirteen days, and that hot winds in the middle west are expected during that period.

While the above was not generally known on the Board of Trade, the few who were in possession of the information bought wheat on it.

Crop reports were generally of a favor-Foster, the weather man, announces lower.

Corn was a strong market and showed advances of 1/2021/2c for the day. There was more or less liquidation by longs.

The eastern demand was fair and the country were small. There were many reports of army worms throughout the best and this had more or less effect on values.

Oats were fractionally beter. The crop eports were rather unfavorable and there was some buying on them.
The provision market yesterday was fractionally higher but the volume of trade was dull.
Cash wheat was unchanged.

Foreign buying of wheat futures here reached a sufficient aggresate to draw considerable attention and did much to prevent any important reactions of the Canadian northwest seemed to offset in a measure the continued excellent general outlook for the United States winter crop.

Notwithstanding a good deal of profit taking by longs, the corn market guickly absorbed hall offerings. Eastern demand was said to bave improved to a material extent, rural stocks were declared to be exhausted except in lows and northern illinois, and it seemed to be taken for granted that serious competition at present from Argentina was out of the question.

Oats trading was chiefly of a local character, with the market firm in sympathy with other grain. Estimates were current that the acreage this year amounts to 1.1 per cent less than the total a year ago.
Provisions went up gradually on account of western meat stocks having been reduced to 10,000,000 pounds during the last month. The figures on the world's stock of lard were also encouraging to buyers.

who were in possession of the information bought wheat on it.

Crop reports were generally of a favorable character, but John Inglis in advices from northern Texas claimed he had found black rust in the wheat from Chickasha, Okl, south. He said that while it was not developed fully, it promises serious injury; that the wheat plant is not as far advanced as current reports indicate; that through northern Texas many fields are badly down and air have a dirty appearance.

The John Inglis message acted as a help to the bulls during part of the day, but when the denial by the chief inspector of Fort Worth became known, those who bought early sold out. The market, instead of closing, strong, was %c@icc.

The first sales this morning were made about as early as yesterday, the prices on clipped lambs ranging around $7.000 s.25, the latter price being top and being paid for the same kind of lambs that brought $8.15 yesterday.

A sale of California spring lambs amounting to three cars brought $9.25. The demand for spring lambs showed no apparent change, and not enough of them have been arriving on the market of late to establish quotations, though what were here today sold in the same notch as the same grade of lambs on Monday.

the price level was virtually unchanged.
The market opened at fractional recessions. On increased offerings quotations fell away steadily until in many cases the losses ran to a point or more. During the afternoon pressure relaxed, but the first exhibited no recuperative power, hooding near the low level.

New Haven again figured conspicuously in the dealings. Steady scaling of this stock, incluenced apparently by the recent disclosures in connection with the building that the equipment of the eighth and ninth floors is being moved about. Although the elevators carry some 6,000 persons up and down daily, there has been no congestion of the elevators. The newest move is for efficiency. Just because it takes a clerk a minute or so to go from one floor to the other, the whole equipment is being moved from the eighth to the ninth floor, and from the ninth to the eight floor to save time. Tabulating machines were formerly located on the eighth floor, while the records were kept on the ninth floor of the building. Just how much time will

At the time the council designated Sarco as the material to be used, although August said the majority of the residents in the district emphatically did not want Sarco. But the council designated the stuff, anyway, as is their legal right. Last night August presented a petition asking the council to reconsider its act of a week ago. August wanted the council to designate some kind of brick, which had except for a technicality which made their former petition void and gave the council the right to choose the material. Councilman Lavelle last night moved the Miller petition be stricken from the records and the council carried the motion.
