Grain House's Financial Difficulty Clouds Markets.

SPECULATION HAS BEEN HALTED

Report of La Salle Trust Company's Fallure Stops Traders Until They Ger Favorable Word from Other Banks.

OMAHA, June 13, 1914. The financial difficulties surrounding the La Salie Street Trust and Savings bank and the consequent failure of Sidney Long & Co. to meet their debts in the Board of Trade clearing house was against the grain markets. There was bank and the consequent failure of Sidney Long & Co. to meet their debts in the Board of Trade clearing house was against the grain markets. There was a feeling of unrest and many were anxlous to throw their grain into the pit and wait until the financial cloud had passed before making new commitments. The fact that C. D. Munday, vice president of the La Balle Street bank, was reported as the controlling interest in the grain house which was in financial difficulties proved to be the principal factor favoring the bears.

The open interest of Sidney Long & Co. In the market was not large, and the suspension of that concern was said to have been because of their inability to meet the debit sheet in the Chicago Board of Trade clearing house, their money being tied up in the La Salle bank.
There was a partial halt in speculation in the various markets following the announcement of the financial difficulties of the bank and the grain house referred to above. The announcement that the banks of Chicago on the whole are in a healthy condition steaded the markets a little. The rains in Kansas over night caused some buying of wheat during the early hours, as it was feared by shorts that wet weather would cause a halt in the harvesting and that the expected receipts wold fall to put in an appearance. There was a fair business in the way of purchases of new wheat in the southwest yesterday and this was fully offset by the sales to go abroad. Export bids, however, were reported out of line at Chicago, but the seaboard houses claimed there was a fair business being done not only in our own new and old wheats, but in Canadian wheat as well.

The corn market was weak and lower yesterday. Sentiment was bearish, which was the result of more favorable conditions in acception. The cash sales hore.

resterday. Sentiment was bearish, which was the result of more favorable conditions in Argentine. The cash sales here were small. Longs in July corn at Liverpool were free sellers in the belief that the receipts there during the next month will be on a larger scale than for some time.

Oats suffered losses in sympathy with the weak spots in wheat and corn. The market was active and the best prices of the day were reached early. On the hard spots there was liberal selling by longs and the buying was led by shorts. Rains over part of the oats belt combined with the weakness in other grains had a depressing effect.

The provisions trade was confined to a few interests and business was only moderate in consequence. Hogs were up bolic, which induced some investment buying. The selling was largely local and was in part influenced by the weakness in grain. Pickled meats reported as fairly active, but other descriptions as well as lard were slow sales.
