

MANY ARE FILING FOR OFFICE

Seven File for Republican Nomination in First District.

NINE ARE OUT FOR GOVERNOR

Republicans Have No Candidates as Yet for Lieutenant Governor and Democrats None for Attorney General.

From a Staff Correspondent. LINCOLN, Neb., June 28.—(Special.)—What will be the result of the primary law as the situation, especially in the First district, where seven candidates have filed for the nomination on the republican ticket and the chances are good that one and possibly two more may file.

Very few of these are to be considered for a moment as congressional timber. Probably not more than two or three. The First district has for six years been represented by a congressman who is admitted by his friends to be far from what this district deserves as a representative in congress.

First is Republican. The First congressional district is strongly republican. In fact it is the strongest republican district in the state, but party friction has been the means of electing a democrat for three successive terms.

The situation in this district while extremely trying and a travesty on the method of selecting candidates, is not much worse than is found on the proposition of a candidate for governor on the democratic side.

There is still about three weeks left in which candidates can file for nominations. By looking over the attached list it will be seen that the republicans have 25 candidates for lieutenant governor and the democrats have no one filed for attorney general.

Candidates for Governor. However, there is little doubt but plenty of patriots await the workings of the spirit and these places may be filled. Following are the filings to date:

ANSELMO MAN KILLED BY KICK OF A HORSE

ANSELMO, Neb., June 28.—(Special Telegram.)—Frank Fleischmann, aged 51, living with his parents in Dale Valley, ten miles from here, was fatally kicked in the stomach by a horse Friday. He succumbed to the injuries late last night. Besides his parents he leaves several brothers and sisters. One brother was killed two years ago by the bursting of an empty wheel and another brother died of mumps fever in Montana last summer.

Buffalo Bill Meets the Redskins' Chief

MEETING OF "BUFFALO BILL" AND CHIEF "SHORT BULL" AT THE MESSIAH PROPERTY, A FINE RIDGE LAST OCTOBER 23, YEARS AFTER THE GREAT DANCE WAR.

ANGELES BLAMED FOR DIFFERENCES OF REBEL CHIEFS

sequently he ordered the immediate discharge of Angeles from the position he held.

"Attempts have been made to patch up the break and to induce Villa to recede from his attitude. Nothing had been accomplished until Villa realized that most of the revolutionary leaders had assured their loyalty to Carranza and that the real purpose of Angeles was to use him as a tool for his ambition to become provisional president of Mexico.

"In view of this revelation, Villa has decided to sever his ties with Angeles. Angeles has been encouraged on the attitude by certain foreign elements who had time to impress upon the American people and government that Villa is the chief factor in the constitutionalist revolution.

Friends of Carranza. The principal foreign element doing this work in favor of Villa are two intimate friends of Lazaro De La Garza, the financial agent of Villa. One of them is a fellow of many doubtful connections in the United States and he claims to have in Washington people to help him in official circles. The other one is an American, who has posed during several months as a confidential agent of the state department for the revolution, but who, as a matter of fact, has only been a political attaché and adviser of Villa in international matters.

The attitude of this man, who is an intimate friend of the Lazaro, has led Villa and Angeles to believe that they could count upon the sympathies and the support of the Washington government which to a great extent contributed to encouraging the insubordination that existed in the interior. Carranza Supreme Under Law. Carranza is the first chief of the constitutionalist army, according to the plan of Gaudalope, which is the law under which the revolution is carried on. This leadership was given Carranza by all the military leaders who supported the revolution and by all subsequent followers who have rallied to the leadership which they joined the revolutionary movement. This leadership cannot be taken from Carranza unless by agreement by the majority of the military leaders.

The military forces composing the constitutionalist army are not Villa's forces as is sometimes understood and one wonders how much of the army is outside of Villa's forces. The leaders acting under Villa and who are supposed to back him are the following: "Eugenio Aguirre Bonavides, Tomas Urbina, Jose Rodriguez, Manuel Garcia, Severiano Ceniceros, Orestes Peryera, Mariano Berwin and Mateo Almaraz." The number of soldiers composing Villa's troops is about 12,000. Outside of Villa's division, General Angeles has his own body of troops composed of 1,500 federal soldiers and officials who have surrendered or deserted to the constitutionalists and who are bound to increase in number as Angeles advances.

These with Carranza. "The forces which are outside of Villa's and Angeles' divisions and who have expressly manifested their adherence to Carranza are: "On the Pacific slope, under orders of General Obregón, the following: Salvador Alvarado, Manuel Orozco, Lodo D'Lasco, Ramon F. Rube, Manuel Carrasco, Rafael Huelsa, Benjamin Hill and Felipe Riveros. "These leaders are all of them of a much higher standard morally and in military talent than any of the Villa generals. They have a total force conservatively estimated at about 25,000 men "On the east side, on the orders of General Pablo Gonzales, are: Antonio L. Villareal, E. Munuera, Teodoro Elizondo, Cesar Castro, Francisco Coos, Ernesto Santos Coy, Jesus Davilla Sanchez, Andres Saucedo, Estelito Gutierrez, Luis Gutierrez, Luis Caballero and Jesus Carranza.

These leaders together have more than 30,000 men. In Center of Country. "In the center of the country there is Panfilo Natera with the General Arrietas Brothers, Triana, Garrillo and some others composing an army of about 10,000 soldiers. There are several other leaders in the central and southern parts of Mexico who have no connection whatever with Villa, but who recognize Carranza as their leader. They are Candido Aguilar, Augustin Millan, Gertrudis Sanchez, Antonio Fortes, Luviano, etc."

No Orders From Carranza. Mr. Brecanda and Mr. Cabrera after the publication of this statement said they had received no instructions from General Carranza to accept the invitation to confer informally with the delegates at the peace conference regarding the internal affairs of Mexico. Both, however, intimated there was a probability of such a conference and that it might occur next week. They were awaiting the belated arrival in Washington of Fernando Iglesias Calderon, leader of the Mexican liberal party and a friend of General Carranza, who is expected tomorrow. During the day Mr. Zubaran, chief of the constitutionalist agents here, was in communication with General Carranza at Monterey. Several messages were received from Carranza. The last one asked for some further information with reference to the proposed informal conference.

One of the constitutionalist representatives tonight said he believed the proposed informal conference between their agents and those of General Huerta and the United States regarding provisional government plans would begin next week. He also said that Buffalo would be the scene of the conference. Administration officials also expressed confidence that the informal conference would be held. Speech Is Still Open. EAGLE PASS, June 28.—No sign that a definite understanding has been reached with the object of healing the breach between General Carranza and General Villa, has been apparent at Carranza's headquarters, according to travelers who arrived today from Saltillo and Monterey. The utmost secrecy was maintained at Carranza's headquarters regarding developments and a strict censorship was enforced, they said. Traffic between Saltillo and Torreon has been somewhat interrupted for several days and it was rumored, the arrivals said, that the railroad tracks had been heavily mined. The commanders of the constitutionalists in the east and south continue to visit Saltillo for conferences with General Carranza, and troops continue to be moved from that point toward San Luis Potosi. It was reported, said the travelers, that General Villa had expressed the intention of taking the burden of the defeat of Huerta on his shoulders and that he was prepared to fight his own way into Mexico City without regard to what Carranza proposed to do. What the plans of General Carranza may be in view of this statement are unknown. Only the favored few have known of these various affairs. The members of the revolution junta at Washington, of which Captain Hopkins is the guiding spirit and the soul, know the identity of "S. Gil Herrera." The senators and representatives who have manifested curiosity concerning the revolutionary activity of Captain Hopkins are not in the secret, and there is a great deal more that these senators and representatives do not know. There have been payments of money by Mr. Pierce to Captain Hopkins and by Mr. Pierce to Jose Vasconcelos. The exact relationship of these payments to the program for railway control can doubtless be established by a congressional investigation when it is held.

WAR IN MEXICO CARRIED ON FOR "BIG BUSINESS"

These gentlemen have received money from Mr. Henry Clay Pierce. These three lieutenants of General Venustiano Carranza have had particularly to do with the railway situation in northern Mexico. Mr. Henry Clay Pierce, as the correspondence shows, is deeply interested in the railway situation in that same territory. Significant Coincidence. It may be mere coincidence, but it is highly interesting, that the three men who have had close direct touch with Mr. Henry Clay Pierce in the consideration of the problem of Mexican railways are the same three supposed to have been designated by General Venustiano Carranza as his representatives to confer with the representatives of the Mexico City government now at Niagara Falls, Ontario.

In the correspondence alluded to the allegation is made that Messrs. Elguero, Rodriguez and Rabasa, the three delegates representing the Mexico City government, are in reality representatives of the Cowdry interests in Mexico. If this is true, the interesting spectacle is presented of the fate of the Mexican people being in the hands of "Big Business" on both sides of the theoretical line that separates the factions in Mexico, making war upon each other.

People and Government Pawns. One way or the other, the poor pawn is but a pawn in the game of "Big Business." The Mexicans, who have lost life and property and all they hold dear in this revolution, have been pawns in the game. The Americans and other foreigners who have been killed since the trouble started, the Americans and other foreigners who have lost all their property and have been pauperized—these too, have been pawns in the game. Governments have occupied similarly humiliating positions. In his efforts to bring about the pacification of Mexico through mediation and diplomacy, President Wilson has been thwarted by these outside influences that have united to prevent General Venustiano Carranza according to the efforts of the president of the United States. Peace apparently can only be brought about upon terms dictated by "Big Business."

President Wilson will be greatly interested in the disclosures contained in this correspondence. He may know something of the forces that have been opposing his offers to bring about peace, but he cannot know it all. Some phases of the activity of Captain Hopkins will only be alluded to at this time. That he is the man who put the "constitution" into Mexican constitutionalism he will blushing admit. With keen appreciation of the resultant effect a revolution calling itself "constitutionalist" would have upon the present administration and upon American public opinion, he was, it is understood, the inventor of the name.

Man of Many Names. Captain Hopkins is an expert inventor of names. In the Madero revolution he was "Julius Wetstein," a name he sometimes uses to this day, especially in personal telegrams to the American public. In the present revolution he is "S. Gil Herrera."—Senator S. Gil Herrera for use in telegrams and letters sent from Mexico to his address in the Hibba building at Washington.

Only the favored few have known of these various affairs. The members of the revolution junta at Washington, of which Captain Hopkins is the guiding spirit and the soul, know the identity of "S. Gil Herrera." The senators and representatives who have manifested curiosity concerning the revolutionary activity of Captain Hopkins are not in the secret, and there is a great deal more that these senators and representatives do not know.

STEAMSHIP IS DRIVEN ASHORE BY TIDAL WAVE

BATAVIA, Java, June 28.—The British steamer Kintuck of the China Mutual Steam Navigation company, reported overdue yesterday after a violent earthquake in Sumatra, was found by a steamer sent out to search for it. It had been driven ashore in the Straits of Sunda, between Batavia and Sumatra, by heavy seas caused by a submarine disturbance. The Kintuck was crowded with native emigrants.

DEATH RECORD.

Mrs. E. W. Imler. STERLING, Neb., June 28.—(Special.)—The funeral of Mrs. E. W. Imler was held at the Methodist church in Shubert this afternoon. Mrs. Imler's death occurred Friday night at St. Joseph's hospital in Omaha, where she had been a patient for a month, being treated for cancer of the hip. She was the wife of E. W. Imler, a merchant at Shubert, to whom she was married two years ago.

Notes from Beatrice. BEATRICE, Neb., June 28.—(Special.)—Steve Hadachek, living near Wymore, is probably the first farmer in Gage county to thresh and market his wheat crop this year. He sold the grain at Wymore, which averaged twenty-four bushels to the acre and tested fifty-nine pounds to the bushel. As the ground where the wheat was raised was not the best it is thought the wheat does not represent the average in this county.

The county board of supervisors finished its work Friday as a board of equalization and adjourned to August 4 at which time they will make the annual levy. The old settlers of Barnston have arranged to hold their fourteenth annual picnic on August 19 and 20.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, June 28.—(Special.)—The report of the state board of health on births and deaths in the state for the six months ending June 1, shows that there were 12,823 births during that period of which 7,110 were boys and 4,613 girls. Of this number 1,044 were boys born in Douglas county and 946 girls. The lowest number of births were in Blaine county, where but five were reported.

There were 4,472 deaths in the state which does not include 307 still born reported, showing that births were twice the number of deaths in the state.

Explanation in Dentist's Office. RHENANDOA, Ia., June 28.—(Special.)—Dr. H. N. Richardson has a set of false teeth, which behaved in a very improper manner. When he placed them in the vulcanizer to be boiled the jar blew up. Two window lights in his office were blown into the street, narrowly missing some pedestrians beneath. The lid of the jar hit a two-inch plank shelf and broke it in two. Dr. Richardson's office assistant, Miss Alice Brown, who was sitting beside the vulcanizer, fainted away, and the patient in the dentist's chair nearly swallowed the rubber mouth protector in the fright and excitement which followed the explosion.
