MRS. BELMONT'S farm for girls, where the city young women may leave the dust and heat of the metropolis and rusticate, has nothing on the young women who are now at Summer Hill Farm, the Young Women's Christian association's summer camp.

Just at present about thirty-five young women of Omaha are taking their vacation at the farm, and nearly all of them are members of the gymnasium classes at the Young Women's Christian association.

These young women have donned a more becoming costume than the one worn by the girls on Mrs. Belmont's farm, who wear just plain overalls. The Omaha young women are wearing their "gym" suits; in other words, they are wearing bloomers instead of cumbersome skirts.

They tell me they are staid and skitless and have become so accustomed to this costume that when they take a neighborly ride or hike over to Elkhorn or Waterloo they wear the bloomer costume.

And why not? This is the costume worn by all athletic women who take part in the various basket ball contests at colleges and gymnasiums. And it is not improbable that the next score or two of young women who go to the farm will follow the style of the gymnasts.

BANK DEPOSITS SHOW A LOSS

Shrinkage of Deposits in Country Banks Reflected in Omaha. COMPTROLLER ISSUES A CALL. New State Bank of Omaha Only Institution Which Shows a Gain on the Deposit Side of the Ledger.

A shortage in the balances of the country banks in the middle west country, due to the short crops of the last three years, the decrease which have visited the live stock in this part of the United States and the large expenditure of money by the farming populace, has caused a shrinkage in the bank deposits in the Omaha banks. The call of the national comptroller for statements from all national banks for June 30, 1914, reveals that every bank has experienced a shrinkage except the State bank, which enjoyed a little gain.

NEW WHEAT ON THE WAY

First Carload Expected on Omaha Market Early Next Week. HARVEST DRAWS TO A CLOSE. Cutting of Small Grain About Finished South of Platte and Well Along in Northern Part of the State.

The first carload of new wheat consigned to the Omaha market is still en route, and as today is a holiday it will not be offered on change until the first of next week.

After next week it is expected that the shipments of wheat into Omaha will increase rapidly and that the quantity will far exceed that of any previous season. Word comes from the country that in Nebraska practically all of the wheat south of the Platte has been cut and that hundreds of threshing machines are at work. In this section of the state the oats harvest will begin early next week.

North of the Platte the rye is all cut and reports indicate that the harvesting of wheat is about half finished. The opinion prevails that with fairly good weather the small grain harvest of the state will be about finished next week, with the possible exception of a small area in the extreme northwest corner.
