POMP MARKS ROYAL FUNERAL

Emperor Francis Joseph and New Heir to Throne Present.

SERVICE HELD AT THE HOFBURG Children of Murdered Archduke and Duchess Pray Beside Coffin and Parents, Their Grief Heartrending.

VIENNA, July 4.—In the presence of Emperor Francis Joseph, the new heir to the throne—the archduke Charles Francis Joseph—many archdukes and archduchesses, cabinet ministers, diplomats, and high military and civil officials, funeral services for the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife, the duchess of Hohenberg, who were assassinated last week, were held in the chapel of the Hofburg this afternoon.

Emperor Francis Joseph and the members of the imperial family assembled in the Gobelien salon of the Hofburg and proceeded thence to the chapel. The emperor and the imperial party had taken their seats, came slowly down the aisle, headed by the court master of ceremonies and twenty acolytes carrying lighted candles and took places at the sides of the coffin.

Harry Saunders, a witness who could not be found until the Coltrane testified in the Watson trial, that he and his father, passing the Coltrane house, heard two quick shots. A few minutes before they had met Samuel Coltrane more than half a mile from the house going in the opposite direction from them and with a single barreled gun.

VIENNA AIR TRAGEDY WORST

Some Details of the Collision High in Air of Aeroplane and an Army Dirigible

Nine terribly burned and mutilated bodies, the splintered fragments of an aeroplane and the charred remains of a big dirigible balloon are the mute records of one of the most tragic, certainly the most sensational, disasters which have occurred since man learned to fly, says a cablegram from Vienna.

The dirigible military balloon Koertling left Fischamend, a market town, seven miles from Vienna, it was manned by Captain John Hunsirth, in command; Lieutenant Ernst Hofstetter, Lieutenant Bruer, Lieutenant Haldinger, Corporal Hadima, Corporal Weber and Engineer Kammerer.

At the lapse of half an hour a military aeroplane of the biplane type, with Lieutenant Platz and Lieutenant Hoosta aboard, started in pursuit. It was the intention of Captain Hunsirth to take photographs of the movements of the troops below and then to join in the maneuvers. At the same time he was to keep out of range of any of the mosquito craft which might seek to attack him.

The news had gone abroad that something in the nature of a sham aerial fight would take place, and at Koeningberg, the scene of the engagement, a big crowd had gathered. Very quickly the smaller but much, and then the spectators witnessed a thrilling sight.

As might a waip bent on attacking some clumsy enemy, the aeroplane circled several times around the balloon, now darting close to it, and then away, always apparently steering off just in time to avoid an actual collision.

Meanwhile, the balloon continued to rise until it was about 1,500 feet from the ground. The aeroplane, at a still greater height, maneuvered until it appeared to be nearly over the dirigible. Then it began its descent. It was the evident intention of the pilot of the aeroplane to take up a position directly above the dirigible, within striking distance, but owing either to a fatal miscalculation of the distance separating the two craft or of speed, the nose of the biplane struck the envelope of the airship and ripped it wide open.

A tremendous explosion followed, the balloon burst into flames, which enveloped the biplane, and in a moment the wreckage began to drop, crashing at length like lead to the slope of a hill. Almost at the same moment the wife of Lieutenant Hofstetter, who had been married only a month, arrived in a motor-car.

The envelope of the balloon was still burning when it struck the ground. Lieutenant Platz, when extricated from the wreckage of the aeroplane, showed faint signs of life; his body quivered, and he seemed to be making an effort to raise himself, but almost immediately he expired. All the other aviators were killed instantly.

Archduke Charles Francis and several officials of the military arrived shortly on the scene, and an aid-de-camp of the emperor also preceded these to seek information for his majesty and express the emperor's sympathy.

GYROSCOPE RIGHTS 'PLANE

American Invention to Control Aircraft Demonstrated to French Army.

Striking demonstrations of a stabilizing device for aeroplanes were made at Bezonnes, near Paris, by an American named Sperry and his son.

The device, which weighs only forty pounds and measures about eighteen inches across by twelve inches high, is based on a quadruple gyroscope and is driven by electric power generated by the engine of the aeroplane.

Five times the experiments were repeated, then the Sperrys brought the machine down to the water in a splendid volplane, which also was regulated automatically.

Commandant Barres and Captain Charles of the French army air corps, M. Maurin, Lieutenant Colonel Renard and several other air experts were present and were greatly interested.

Mr. Sperry, who is a scientific instrument maker, claims that his device corrects automatically any error made by a pilot. If the pilot tries to bank at too steep an angle or to descend too rapidly the gyroscope at once pulls the controls back to their proper position.
