BERGE LETS NO GRASS GROW

His Campaign in Nebraska is Costing Him Some Money.

OTHER CANDIDATES WONDERING

Law Sets Limit on Amount and Berge's Opponents Are Doing a Little Figuring Just for Exercise.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, July 7.—(Special.)—In the list for office some of the candidates who want to be governor of Nebraska may find themselves up against the corrupt practices act relating to the amount of money which may be expended by a candidate.

One candidate for governor, whose middle name happens to be George W. Berge, has had in his employ for about six weeks one expert accountant, with an assistant, who has been going over the records in the state house in the different departments seeking statistics on which to base a campaign of reform. Expert accountants are noted as not being willing to work for their board and clothes wholly, and the question naturally arises as to just how Mr. Berge expects to hit the expense of gathering material for his campaign.

In addition to this Mr. Berge runs a picture show in connection with his campaign, in which he shows things which he alleges his two expert accountants have discovered at the state house. It is also said that he has several automobiles in service carrying posters and distributing literature in such a manner that he who runs may easily read. Plate matter, to which is attached a $1 bill (and it isn't stage money, either, although Mr. Berge is making quite a play of his campaign), is being sent out to the newspapers for insertion "top of column, next pure reading matter." Just like the patent medicine ads, and this all takes money. Just how Mr. Berge will list his expense of experts, picture show, newspaper bills and automobile expenses, besides the other expenses, is beginning to cause wonder among those who have heretofore had hard work to get under the limit prescribed by the law.

Candidates Cross.

Charlie Marshall of Nebraska City, republican candidate for the nomination for congress in this district, was at the state house today and ran up against Frank Edgerton, also a candidate for the same nomination. Both were very emphatic in their declaration that they were going to land and both even hinted that they could beat Johnny Maguire, the present democratic congressman. Neither is doing very much to further his campaign and each is willing to let the people settle the matter after he has had a heart-to-heart talk with each voter in the district. The other members of the double quartet of candidates were not present, but it is understood that each of them is following the same passive lines as the two who met today.

Judge Hamer Dissents.

Judge Hamer of the supreme court has handed down a dissenting opinion in the Lincoln Traction company case involving the right of the railway commission to have jurisdiction over the taking off of cars on a line operated by them and changing to another line. The case was one involving taking off of street cars running over the so-called "high line" from Lincoln to College View, coming into the city over Twelfth street. The company changed the running of the cars so that they entered the city on Thirteenth street, striking the O street line at the corner by Miller & Paine's store. H. Herpolsheimer, who claimed that he had been induced to buy stock in the old company which had built on Twelfth street by his store, set out that one of the inducements made him to buy stock was that the "high line" would enter the city by his department store, which is one of the strong competitors to the Miller & Paine store. However, when the company which built the Twelfth street line sold out to the Lincoln Traction company, the "high line" cars were shifted to the Thirteenth street tracks. Herpolsheimer and others went into court to force the company to replace the cars on the former line and the supreme court upheld the action of the railway commission, which had decided that the company had no right to route its cars over the Thirteenth street line. Judge Hamer in his dissenting opinion claims that the action of the commission is "unlicensed authority" and the decision of the supreme court against public policy. According to his opinion the railway commission has no authority except in rate cases and has no right to issue orders regarding construction of lines.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Neb., July 7.—(Special.)—Franklin A. Shotwell of Omaha sent his filing to the secretary of state this morning as a candidate for the republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

Three Ways to Sell a House

The Sign, The Agent, The Bee Want Ad. When you put a sign on your property it attracts more attention to itself than to the house you desire to sell. An agent works hard for his commission; he must first find a buyer who is interested in the kind of property you have; then he may spend weeks trying to convince the man that he should buy. A sign is seen only by those who chance to pass the property. An agent goes to men who have never seen the property and thus brings it to the attention of a greater number of people. But a want ad in The Bee reaches the entire city. It supplements the work of the agent—it does not replace him. Where the agent sees only a dozen men who are interested in your property, The Bee want ad reaches hundreds. Send in your ad without delay—someone may even now be looking for the property you have for sale. The ad will be almost sure to reach him. Try it anyhow—the cost is small.
