Frank S. Richardson Elected President Board of Education.

CHARLES EADS IS SECRETARY

Beats Out Fred Mower in Two Ballots-Lobeck to Be Introduced Today at Yards by Monaghan, Running Against Him.

Frank S. Richardson, vice president of the South Omaha Board of Education, became president last night to succeed E. R. Leigh, who had served for two terms at the head of the board. The election was unanimous, and Godfrey Horacek was elected vice president by the same vote as carried Richardson into the chair. W. J. Fitzgerald, who happens to be the only democrat on the board, remarked that he would not contest the election. He also admitted that he had allowed the majority to have its own way as to committees. Even on the secretaryship, over which a contest was predicted, the ballot wavered for one count and then Charles Eads was chosen to succeed James Sullivan. Fred Mower and Eads, both republicans, tied for the secretaryship on the first ballot. There were two votes for each man and a blank. On the second ballot the blank carried the name of Eads and he was declared elected. Eads was nominated by Leigh and Mower by Richardson. Fitzgerald, democrat, voted with Richardson

While Mower had considerable support, Eads has for long been recognized as a strong man in the north end of the city. He is a republican and formerly served as deputy city clerk under Perry Wheeler. For some time he has held a responsible position in Omaha at the county court

The following committees were announced by President Richardson:

Claims-Leigh, chairman; Horacek and chauffeur, Louis Eisman. Teachers, Janitors and Rules—Faulk, chairman; Leigh and Horacek.
Repairs, Supplies and Printing—Horacek.

Hog Cholera Its Prevention and Treatment

THE most complete and practical series of articles ever published on hog cholera has just been completed in the Twentieth Century Farmer. We have taken this matter up in the interests of the farmer and stock raiser. We have put at the head of this investigation a practical man-a man who has had twentyfive years experience in raising hogs and has been a successful competitor for premiums in the state fairs of Nebraska and Iowa, a man who is recognized by the hog raisers of these states as a practical hog man. He has not taken the matter up from the standpoint of the veterinarian, though he has consulted veterinarians in the employ of the government, the colleges and the states, as well as many veterinarians practicing independently among farmers, and has given careful consideration to their opinions. He has not treated the subject from the standpoint of any one farmer, or the farmers of any one locality, nor based his judgment on the experience of men under identical conditions. He has personally interviewed farmers and breeders in three states-Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas.

The writer's years of experience in the hog raising business have enabled him to weigh this great mass of information collected and draw from it conclusions that should be of great value to any man interested in keeping cholera out of his herd or combating it once it gets into his herd, in a rational and practical manner. The writer is not a scientist and has not written a scientific treatise; he discusses this vital subject in the plain, every-day language of the farm and market.

These articles have been so persistently called for that we have collected them into pamphlet form, and this pamphlet is now ready for distribution. We are making a charge of 5c each to cover postage and handling. If you want one of these bulletins, fill out and send the attached coupon before they are all gone.

The New-Year Surprise

31 New Features--Price $200 Less

Since this new-model HUDSON was announced in the Saturday Evening Post, the demand to see it has been overwhelming. So we brought on this car by express. It is here today-come see it.

Last season's HUDSON Six-40 seemed to mark perfection. It so met ideals that the year's output was 3,000 cars oversold. In May men offered premiums—up to $200—to get one of those cars.

Now the HUDSON engineers—headed by Howard E. Coffin—have devoted a year to refinements. The new model comes out with 31 new features comforts and conveniences.

Last sesson's price-$1,750 f. o. b. Detroit—was the record price for a quality Six. And no comparable Four could meet it.

Now the HUDSON announces of hands, one of the staunchest cars over built. Now comes a further saving, due to such things as a tubular propeller shaft. The new model weighs 2,890 pounds.

The New Criterions

This new HUDSON Six-40-as you will concede is the typical modern car. It reveals the criterions by which coming cars will be measured. Its new-type motor has made Sixes more economical than Fours. It removes the last reason for buying a Four in the field above $1,200.

Its moderation in size and power accords with men's trends today. Its weight shows the new possibilities, without secrifice of

> In beauty and equipment it shows new attractions to which future cars must come.

This is the gem car of 1915. It is the greatest of HUDSON successes. It is Howard E. Coffin's ideal of a car. And he is the master among modern design-
