NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The National Foreign Trades Council held a special meeting here today to take measures for the relief of the congestion of foreign commerce due to the European war.

James A. Farrell, president of the United States Mercantile Marine and chairman of the council, opened the meeting with a statement of the seriousness of the situation and with a plea for practical action rather than discussion.

Mr. Farrell said the first necessity was to start exports moving.

It was agreed that the council, which consists of thirty-five national representatives, manufacturers, bankers, merchants, railroad and steamship men, collectively standing for the general interest of all elements engaged in or affected by foreign trade should work for national unity of action in settling American export and import trade free from the paralysis of transportation.

Declines of Council.

The council decided to maintain daily touch with all its members in all parts of the United States and with the numerous commercial and industrial organizations which have telegraphed to it for information regarding shipping. Its object is to co-operate with every effective agency for the extension of American commerce.

Although the meeting was called at short notice, members came from every part of the United States. James J. Hill promptly left St. Paul to attend the session, while Captain Robert Dollar, the San Francisco exporter, telegraphed to Mr. Farrell that he was leaving San Francisco to join a committee of the council which will attend the conference of shipping and banking interests called by Secretary McAdoo to meet in Washington on Friday.

Resolutions Adopted.

A committee was appointed to recommend action to the council. This committee submitted resolutions, which were adopted, urging the prompt passage of the bill now pending in congress which would provide immediate means to increase the American merchant marine and recommending that the government at once provide war risk insurance at reasonable rates on both the hulls and cargoes of American vessels engaged in overseas trade.

In order to speed the accomplishment of the proposed relief measures the resolutions were immediately transmitted to President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Secretary of Commerce Rodfild, Senator James O. Gorman, chairman of the senate Inter-oceanic canal committee, which has the pending shipping registry bill in charge, and to congressional party leaders.

Mr. Hill, Mr. Farrell and others strongly expressed the opinion that even with upwards of 100 foreign-built ships ready to come under the American flag, in case the bill passes, the present rates of insurance were so high that the movement of commerce would still be retarded. For this reason the recommendation for government insurance was adopted, the council endorsing the principle and not urging any particular method. The general sentiment was that with the shipping registry bill enacted and the insurance question placed upon a reasonable basis, the equilibrium of exchange would soon be restored as an incident of renewed movement to exports and imports.

Committee Appointed.

A committee, to be headed by Mr. Farrell, was appointed to represent the council in Washington at the conference on Friday.

In order that action truly representing the interests of all sections of the country may be taken as necessary, a committee of five was appointed to maintain communication with all members of the council throughout the country and to meet daily in New York to take such further action as may be necessary.

This committee consists of Mr. Farrell, John D. Ryan, president of the Amalgamated Copper company; A. S. Franklin, vice president of the International Mercantile Marine; S. A. Clark, president of the Lackawanna Steel company; and W. F. Thomas, president of the United States Steel Products company, all of New York.

SIMPLE APPLICATION THAT DISSOLVES BLACKHEADS

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out and that is to dissolve them. To do this just get about two ounces of powdered peroxin from your drugist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores and you cannot get all of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition. Any drugist will sell you the powdered peroxin and about two ounces will be all you ever need.—Advertisement.
