This was really not enough to make a market, but it was fortunate that receipts were very amail. The high prices that have prevailed all the week, together with the large decrease in the consuming demand at the big eastern centers of population, has created a very weak feeling in the market. Packers everywhere have undoubtedly made up their minds that the market will be lower next week, and no one was anxious to buy cattle today unless they could get them at a sufficient reduction to make it an object to buy them. Thus it happened that the market not only here, but prac-tically all other points was reported as slow and weak, with the tendency of prices on all kinds of killers sharpy lower in spite of the fact that receipts were everywhere light. There were no good to choice cornfed beeves here to test the market, but the feeling on that kind is steady. On the feeling on that kind the sensering off and are fully 25 lower for the week.
