CHOOSING THE SCHOOL

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE WORK

to the splendid discipline which it maintains, to the care with which it selects its students, to the amount of individual attention which it devotes to students who need special help, and to the reasonable rates which bring within the reach of a steadily increasing number of young men and boys the advantages of an education not surpassed by that given in the most expensive schools of the country.

ELLSWORTH COLLEGE.

School that Offers Short Courses in the Liberal Arts.

Ellsworth college of Iowa Falls, Ia., is attracting the attention of the educational public throughout the country by the addition of the many one-year and two-year courses preparing for vocational, professional and technical study. All these courses are in the college of liberal arts and are for high school graduates. These meet the requirement of thousands of young men and women, who feel that they cannot put four years in the college of liberal arts, and yet, who do desire a shorter course. Of course, the college maintains the regular four-year course and all these shorter courses are so planned that if the student desires to continue for his A. B. or B. S. degree, he will find no handicap by having taken the short course. Strong emphasis is being laid upon business training of college grade and the student may even elect the entire four years of his college work from that point of view.

In addition to the above features, the college preparatory school of this institution is patterned after the eastern preparatory school and the work is of high grade. Possibly no preparatory school in the middle west has stronger ideals in its preparatory work. Then, there are the special short courses of one and two years for teachers. Twelve business courses from eighteen weeks to three years. Domestic science and home economics, music, expression, dramatics and other courses suited to students, who have not had the opportunity to complete high school work.

Taken all in all, the organization of the work is unique and very attractive and the cost of attendance very moderate. It is a matter of interest that last school year Ellsworth college won the Hawkeye conference championship in football and also, that the school won all its intercollegiate debates.

The spirit of the school is attractive and Iowa Falls, the seat of this institution, is admitted to be one of the most beautiful college seats in the middle west. It combines all the beauties of rural life with the desirable advantages of city life. Four lines of railway make the place easy of access from all parts of the country.

WAYNE STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

Good Progress Making on New Administration Building.

Rapid progress is being made on the new administration building. Indications are that it will be completed by the end of the first semester. This is three times as quick upon by the contractor.

Miss Edith Stoching, one of our primary training teachers, has been spending the summer in Europe. She is expected to return, however, in time for the opening of school.

Prof. E. E. Lacey will instruct in the Greeley county institute next week and Prof. Lewis and President Conn will be busy most of the time visiting institutes in northeast Nebraska.

Mr. J. T. House is scheduled to lecture at the Rock county, also Boyd county institutes this week.

The correspondence from prospective students indicates that the attendance for the ensuing year will be a large increase over that of last year. The greatest increase will be in the number of students who have completed the regular high school work before entering.

In his absence and without his knowledge the democrats of Wayne county at the primary election vote in the name of Registrar W. D. Redmond, and thereby chose him as their candidate as a member of the legislature for the Twentieth district. It is not known whether Mr. Redmond will care to accept the nomination or not.

K. W. BUSINESS COLLEGE.

Great School for Training for Clerical Work.

The Kansas Wesleyan Business college at Salina, Kan., through the last twenty-two years, has built up a reputation second to no other in the entire west. Founded by Prof. T. W. Roach and the trustees of the Kansas Wesleyan university as a department of the university twenty-two years ago, it soon outgrew its quarters on the campus and was removed to its own building, a brick structure in the center of the city.

This building, one of the handsomest in central Kansas, is three stories high and 92x100 feet in size. The entire building is devoted to the uses of the college and there is probably no better equipped school building in the country. The enrollment is about 1,500 students a year, grouped into preparatory, business, shorthand and typewriting departments.

About 1,500 of these graduates are employed in banks in Kansas and neighboring states. Many times this number are used in railroad and business offices, many of whom have risen to executive positions. The slogan of the school, "With Us Business Training and Character Building Go Hand in Hand," is no idle boast, as strong courses in character building and business efficiency are a part of the regular curriculum.

President L. L. Tucker, who has made his mark, both as an educator and as an expert accountant in the east and in the central west, purchased the school about a year ago. As president of the institution, Mr. Tucker has thoroughly revised its courses, has introduced the most modern and efficient text books in every subject that is taught, has increased and improved the equipment and has employed additional members in the faculty. The faculty is one of the strongest features of the college, every member being not only an experienced teacher but an expert in his particular line.

The college has long been known as the "Pitman school" and this year Gregg shorthand and the stenotype have been added to meet the demand for a complete school of reporting.

Salina is a clean, safe city and one of the best school towns in the United States. President Tucker will be glad to send the illustrated catalogue of the school to any who write for it.

UNIVERSITY OF OMAHA.

Successful Summer School Closes and College Year Coming On.

The University of Omaha has just completed a very successful session of summer school, which was attended by a large number of high school pupils who were making up conditions, as well as by college students and prospective teachers. A larger attendance during the coming school year is guaranteed by the registrations already made.

The faculty of the university has been increased by the addition of two more instructors. Miss Kate McHugh, the recently retired principal of the Omaha High school, has been added to the department of English literature. She will conduct the courses in Shakespeare, modern English poets and methods of teaching English. The department of French, hitherto in charge of Miss Edna Sweeley, is to be conducted by Miss Alice Hogg, a graduate of the Scotch University of St. Andrews. A new instructor is to be added to the preparatory department before the opening of the school year.

Improvements are being made in Rodick hall and the John Jacobs' hall in order to better accommodate the increased classes. Thirty-five thousand dollars has been pledged toward a new science building, which is to cost $50,000.

The prospects along athletic lines are the best in the history of the institution. It is confidently believed that winning teams will be developed out of the new foot ball and basket ball material.

All the graduates of last June who were looking forward to teaching have secured excellent positions in the public schools of Nebraska and Iowa. Miss Lottie Underhill is to teach domestic science in the high school at Minden, Neb., and Miss Zeina Elmer is to teach in one of the high schools of Iowa. Miss Mildred Foster has not yet decided which of several positions she will accept. Miss Marilla and Miss Katharine Case are to teach in the Omaha public schools.

The Gospel of Efficiency

Since we cannot prolong life, we must accomplish more with our life.
Since we cannot stretch an hour, we must devise means to stretch our powers.
We must increase our proficiency.
We are obliged to add to our efficiency.

The work of the world must be done. The work of the business world must be better done. For, competition presses. If we do not improve ourselves, increase our powers, multiply our efficiency—others will.

That means that those who do will go ahead of those who do not. We can increase our powers—our proficiency—our efficiency because we have a goal. We must specialize if we are to become especially proficient.

No man or woman can do all things EQUALLY well.

That is why the specialized education and training given by a really practical commercial training institution serves such a good purpose in this world.

That is why such institutions as BOYLES COLLEGE succeed!

To make a better business man or woman—one more careful about details—one more diligent in his daily task—means to make a better citizen.

We here, in Boyles College, have had the gratification of training most of the young men and women who have prepared themselves for successful business careers during the last decade. Their success in the business world has helped us to succeed. Their record in the banks, the great wholesale houses, the big mercantile establishments of the Central West, has aided us in making Boyles College what it is today, the largest commercial training institution in the United States west of Chicago.

Today, hardly an important business establishment in Omaha and all the Central West thinks of the need of another business assistant without first applying to Boyles College. They have learned by experience that the graduates of this institution are so trained that they invariably prove themselves satisfactory assistants—and, eventually, elevate themselves by reason of their ability to better positions—positions where they will be of greater value to the concern that employs them.

Ambitious young men and women—parents who are wishful to see their boys and girls attain assured

H. B. BOYLES, Pres. Boyles College

positions out in the business world—can profitably consider the advantages of the SPECIALIZED TRAINING that Boyles College offers.

Here a young man or young woman can be and IS so trained that he or she graduates as a completely capable Bookkeeper—a splendidly equipped Stenographer—a person capable of fulfilling the duties of a Private Secretary—a Telegrapher of such proficiency that the record of our telegraph graduates influenced the Union Pacific Railroad System to name this College Official Training School for the Union Pacific R. R., and has given that railroad reason for guaranteeing absolutely to give a telegraphic position to every graduate of the Boyles College Telegraph Department.

The reason why Boyles College graduates are in demand is because they are known to be efficient—COMPLETELY SO.

The reason why they are efficient is that they receive efficient training—efficient instruction—under efficient instructors.

We have "won out" because our graduates have won success. And they have won success because for 16 long years this college has been founded on, fostered by and upheld by a method of instruction, a system of education and a mode of training that DEMANDS proficiency before students were permitted to graduate. It is and always has been our idea to hold the students to the same practical principles that govern big business concerns. We shape the courses of the students by the same compass of efficiency that is guiding the world of modern business on to better things—better work—better rewards.

If you are interested in an institution that has built itself into a success by and on these principles—if you wish to gain greater success by means of the methods that have helped 10,000 others to succeed, let us hear from you. Perhaps the best thing for you to do would be to pay the school a visit and talk to our President. If you cannot do that at least write for the 1914-15 Year Book—remarkable volume that will be of help to you even though you never take a course in Boyles College.

Send, write or call for this Book at once.
