English Port Seeking Ways and Meaus to Handle More.

OMAHA, Sept. 14, 1914.
According to advices from Liverpool, the storage room in that market is full of wheat and cash handlers are now deof wheat and cash handlers are now de-vising ways and means whereby the on-coming grain, which is nearly due there, may be taken care of. It has been said all along that the English markets were short of breadstoffs, but the seizure of many cargoes of wheat and flour by Great Britain and the changing of the course of other cargoes to Liverpool has caused a complete change in the situa-tion. It is now said that England has enough wheat and flour to last it for several months.

ACRES

Some people are advertising and selling one-half and one-acre "Garden Tracts" at $1,000 per acre, and buyers at these prices will probably make money. However, if you want one of the most beautiful garden tracts, here is an opportunity to get one: Practically adjoining the city of Omaha on the west, high and sightly, this tract will make an ideal place for a suburban home. This tract is as close to Omaha and worth as much per acre as those above mentioned, but the owner must raise some money—the only reason for selling at a price of $400 per acre.

As an investment it would be both safe and profitable. Don't hesitate to ask me about this, the owner is anxious to sell.

Oats were under as severe selling as wheat a good share of the time. A big purchasing on the part of shippers, however, helped somewhat to steady prices.

Provision dealers who were more conspicuous last week on the selling side turned out active buyers today. The effect, though, was largely offset owing to the weakness of prices for hogs and grain. Joffre's Strategy Wins. "Every official report goes to show how sound is General Joffre's plan of leading the invaders further and further away from their base. From the wounded, as show that just when the French troops were on the point of scoring a success and charging the enemy, they were bewildered at receiving orders to retire a number of kilometers under cover of artillery. The reason for all this now is evident. It is said the battle of the Marne will end in a complete victory for ably become a national hero.

"Germans are still retreating on their new line of communications. If they go east of the thickly wooded Argonnes, they probably will be stopped at Verdon; if they go west of Argonness and east of the Belgians, who are now operating in force south of Antwerp to clear southern Belgium of the invaders, the German army in France will be obliged to communicate with its base through Namur and Liege and the Meuse and across Luxemburg. There will then be danger of inextricable disorder, for the German army from Belgium and the German army from the Oise valley will be obliged to pass through the neck of a bottle in north France while being attacked from all sides. Their rapid retreat shows the Germans were unable to bring up reserves in sufficient numbers.

Predicament of Invaders.

"All this is borne out by yesterday's Morris. communique referring to the general retreat between the Oise and the Marne and

They made their way to Collinson's Point, carrying word of the vessel's plight to the outside world.

The Bear was sent north from Nome in July, as soon as it could make its way through the ice, to pick up the marooned explorers. It was thought that the party had plenty of food and would not suffer greatly while awaiting rescue. early in July it was believed that all of the Karluk's crew had found safety on Wrangell island. Then it was learned that two parties of four had not joined the others. The missing were: Henry Beuchat, Paris, anthropologist; Allister Forbes MacKay, Edinburgh, surgeon; L. Murray Foxfield, Hantz, England, oceanographer: Alexander Anderson, second officer; Charles Bartlett and Seamen John Brody, Archibald King and Thomas

War Keeps Russian Naval Attache from Seeing Dying Mother

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 14.-Captain D. S. Vassilieff, naval attache of the Rust sian embassy at Washington, arrived from Yokohama today, after a vain attempt to see his dying mother in Russia. Being advised that his mother was fatally ill with cancer at her home near Patrograd, Captain Vassilieff obtained leave of absence and departed from Washington July U. hoping to reach his mother's bedside

He arrived in Petrograd August 1 and reported to the war office. There he was informed that the mobilization of the army had begun, and he was ordered to return to his post immediately, via Siberia.

He has not heard from his mother and selieves she is dead. When he arrives in Washington this week he will have traveled entirely around the world without accomplishing anything.
