Newest Fall Gowns for Miladi

Velvet Coats with Cloth or Taffeta Skirts Promise to Be Much Worn This Autumn.

A coat of blue velvet, with the loosely fitted front buttoned in 1880 style, long pointed basques at the sides and edging of sable, is worn with a taffeta flounced skirt of 1850 inspiration. Ecru batiste embroidered collar.

There is a wide, full skirt on Premet's afternoon frock of cream chiffon mounted over golden brown charmeuse. Quite as new is the high girde draped into points at the sides and closing in the front with brown silk tassels.

Be a Time of Ostentation

By ANN LISLE.

A number of girls have written to ask questions about their approaching weddings. So, perhaps, the October bride and all the little brides-to-be will be grateful for a general answer to their questions.

A wedding should not be an affair of show and lavish gorgeousness. It should not be a time of ostentation and elaborate decorations. It ought to be a sacred ceremony, suggesting that loveliest of wedding music, "the voice that breathed 'er Eden." Sweetness, sacredness, solemnity—these three words give the keynote of the properly impressive wedding.

As for clothes, the rule is simple for bride, bridegroom or attendant. Wear clothes that would be suitable for any function timed as is the wedding. A morning wedding is best dressed in formal street attire. An afternoon wedding needs the formal afternoon clothes that would be worn at an afternoon reception.

Comb Sage Tea In Lifeless, Gray Hair

If Mixed with Sulphur it Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. When her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking the strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.—Advertisement.

Advice to Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Obey Your Parents.

Dear Miss Fairfax: Although everyone takes me to be the older. Nevertheless, I have met a young man five years my senior whom I like very much. We have been together only once, although I meet him most every day. He has absolutely no bad habits, but wants to go with me, declaring he stopped going with other girls because he met me. Now, my parents like him well, but say I am too young to go with him. I am not a girl who wishes to run around with the boys, but I truly like this boy and wish to hold his friendship. Will you kindly advise me what to do, as I don't believe I can ever care for another.

BROWN EYES.

Be guided by your parents' advice. You are too young to be seriously thinking of getting married, and the young man in question knows it. If he really cares for you he will respect your wishes and those of your parents and will wait for you. If he doesn't care for you enough to wait until you are both of a proper age to wed, it will be far better to part with him now.

Have Him Come to Your Home.

Dear Miss Fairfax: Would it be proper for me to meet a young gentleman some place uptown or at a friend's house as he has asked to take me to a show and I live about two and a half miles from where he rooms.

UNDECIDED.

The first time he takes you out, he should be all means come to your home to get you. The distance you name is not insurmountable, and is shows a proper respect for a young man to call at the home of the young lady he expects to escort to an evening's entertainment. In time it may be convenient for you to make another arrangement, but it must be openly and without concealment. In these days of rapid transit of various kinds no distance is too great for a young man to travel to see a girl he really cares for.

Wait.

Dear Miss Fairfax: Do you think it is possible for a girl of 15 to know what "true love" is. Or do you think her love will last?

I am a boy, 19 years old, and have been keeping company with a girl of 15 for the last eighteen months. She seems to love me with all her heart, and she says she loves me better every day. I am desperately in love with her, but I am afraid that her love won't last until she is old enough to become my wife. Please advise me whether I should try to forget her or keep on loving her.

UNDECIDED.

Hartwell, Ga.

You can't stop true love to order. If you are contemplating blowing out your love like a candle it does not amount to much. It is ridiculous for you to think of marriage yet, but why can't you be friends and companions for the next three years? Sometimes childhood sweethearting grows into a very beautiful love.

Madame Lebell's Beauty Lesson

Hair Problems of Middle Age—Part IV.

The life of a hair is from five to seven years, therefore a certain falling of the hair is natural and should not cause alarm if the scalp is healthy and new hair is pushing out at the same time. Healthy hair is firmly embedded in the hair follicles; it is said that a single hair will stand the strain of four ounces and therefore there is little danger that brushing, shampooing or even pulling the hair will cause it to fall out if it is healthy hair. If it is not healthy, it might as well fall out today as tomorrow, for dead hair must make way for new hair. Do not hesitate to give your hair a prescribed treatment for fear that it will fall out. Only the dead hair will fall.

However, after youth hair not only grows more slowly, but the renewal is apt to be less active. For this reason any excessive fall of hair should be investigated and the reason for it discovered and corrected. Avoid scraping and irritating the scalp beyond a healthy glow; you may kill the new hairs just forming.

The old rule of brushing the hair 100 strokes a day is rarely enforced now and I believe that we can get better scalp stimulation by a few minutes massage than by long brushing. However, regular brushing is good for the hair itself; it not only frees it from dust, but it makes it glossy by distributing the oil throughout its whole length. Brush and comb should be kept spotlessly clean, wiped clean every day and thoroughly washed at least once a week. This rule is particularly important when dandruff is present.

Several correspondents have written me asking advice as to rough, irritated skin that seems to come from exposure to cold and wind. First, do not put water on your face before going out into the cold. If your skin is dry and sensitive, stop using soap for a while and clean it with a good cleansing cream. In any case rub a little cold cream into the skin before exposing it to the wind and wear a veil. The cold cream will not show if it is rubbed into the skin and powder applied. A frequent cause of chapping skin is the use of too hot water. Another cause is the use of a too strong soap or even the purest soap if it is not well rinsed from the skin. In brief, keep the skin lubricated with good creams and protected with pure face powder; wear a veil (be sure it is clean) if the wind is strong and the irritation will shortly disappear.
