Sage and Sulphur Darkens Gray Hair

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Color, Gloss and Thickness.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 5-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance. DESCRIBES ACTION OF BRITISH FORCES

Sir John French Gives Account of Fighting Since September Eighteen.

BATTLE NOT IN VALLEY ALONE

All Counter Attacks of Germans Fall and in Some Places They Are Repulsed Half a Dozen Times.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The following descriptive account from Field Marshal Sir John French's headquarters of the British army's operations up to September 18, was issued tonight:

"General Headquarters, Sept. 18 1914. "At the date of the last narrative, September 14, the Germans were making a determined resistance along the River Aisne. Opposition, which it was at first thought might possibly be of a rear guard nature, not entailing material delay to our progress, has developed and has proved to be more serious than was anticipated.

"The action now being fought by the Germans along their line, may, it is true, have been undertaken in order to gain time for some strategic operation or move, and may not be their main stand. But if that is so, the fighting is naturally on a scale, which as to what extent of ground covered and duration of resistance, makes it unmistakable in its progress from what is known as a pitched battle though the enemy certainly showed signs of considerable disorganization during the earlier days of the retirement phase.

"Cannot Yet Be Said. "Whether it was originally intended by them to defend the position they took up as strenuously as they have done, or whether the delay gained for them during the 12th and 13th by their artillery has enabled them to develop their resistance and force their line to an extent not originally contemplated, cannot yet be said.

"So far as we are concerned the action still being contested is the battle of the Aisne. The foe we are fighting is just across that river along the whole of our front to the east and to the west. The struggle is not confined to the valley of that river, though it will probably bear its name.

"The progress of our operations and the French armies nearest us for the 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th will now be described:

Hold Their Footing. "On Monday, the 14th, those of our troops which had on the previous day crossed the Aisne, after driving in the German rear guards on that evening, found portions of the enemy's forces in prepared defensive positions on the right bank and could do little more than get a footing north of the river. This, however, they maintained in spite of two counter attacks delivered at dusk and 10 p. m. in which the fighting was severe.

"During the 14th strong reinforcements of our troops were passed to the north bank of the Aisne, and by the remains of permanent bridges. Close co-operation with the French forces was maintained and the general progress made was good, although the opposition was vigorous and the state of the roads after the heavy rain, made movements slow.

"One division alone failed to secure the ground it expected to.

Take Six Hundred Prisoners. "The first army corps, after repulsing repeated attacks, captured 600 prisoners and twelve guns. The cavalry also took a number of prisoners. Many of the Germans taken belong to the reserve and landwehr formations, which fact appears to indicate that the enemy is compelled to draw on other classes of soldiers to fill the gaps in its ranks.

"There was a heavy rain throughout the night of September 14-15 and during the 15th the situation of the British forces underwent no essential change. But it became more and more evident that the defensive preparations made by the enemy were more extensive than was at first apparent.

"In order to counter balance these measures were taken by us to economize our troops and to secure protection from the hostile artillery fire, which was very fierce, and our men continued to improve their own entrenchments. The Germans bombarded our lines nearly all day, using heavy guns brought, no doubt, from before Maubeuge, as well as those with the corps.

"Counter Attacks Fail. "All their counter attacks, however, failed, although in some places they were repeated six times. One made on the Fourth guards' brigade was repulsed with heavy slaughter.

"An attempt to advance slightly, made by part of our line, was unsuccessful; it regards gain of ground, but led to the withdrawal of part of the enemy's infantry and artillery.

"Further counter attacks made during the night were beaten off. Rain came on towards evening and continued intermittently until 9 a. m. on the 16th. Besides adding to the discomfort of the soldiers holding the line, the wet weather to some extent hampered the motor transport service which was also hindered by broken bridges.

"On Wednesday, September 16, there was little change in the situation opposite the British. The efforts made by the enemy were less active than on the previous day, though their bombardment continued throughout the morning and evening. Forty prisoners were taken by the Third division.

"Situation Same. "On Thursday, September 17, the situation still remained unchanged in its essentials. The German heavy artillery fire was more active than on the previous day. The only infantry attacks made by the enemy were on the extreme right of our position and, as had happened before, were repulsed with heavy loss, chiefly on this occasion by our field artillery.

"In order to convey some idea of the nature of the fighting it may be said that along the greater part of our front the Germans have been driven back from the forward slopes on the north of the river. Their infantry are holding strong lines of trenches amongst and along the edges."
