

KNIGHTS FAITHFUL TO END

Ak-Sar-Ben's Staff Members Stick in Parade Through Shower.

WHO THE STEADFAST WERE

P. O. Jennings Took the Part of Jonah Inside of the Allegorical Whale, Which Was Rain-proof Last Night.

Ak-Sar-Ben's faithful knights stayed at their posts on the floats Wednesday until the very last. MANY USED CARS ARE SOLD TO CARNIVAL VISITORS

The used car business has received quite a boost this week, out-of-town visitors patronizing the local concerns to considerable extent. The Industrial Garage company, one of the largest used car dealers in town, reports fifteen cars sold Wednesday alone to visitors.

Indications are that thrifty farmers desiring a high grade car find a slightly used car suited to their purposes. Unquestionably many big values may be found in this and as the Industrial Garage expects to double its sales Thursday and Friday, the indications are that visitors will take away about all the desirable used cars in town.

HEAVY RAIN EXTENDS ALL AROUND FROM OMAHA

Omaha was not the only place that was given a drenching by the rain of Wednesday night. According to the railroad reports, the rain extended up and down the river the entire width of the state, over into Iowa 100 miles or so and out into Nebraska as far west as O'Neill, Goshen and Red Cloud. The precipitation ranged from one-half to one inch.

Now it is clear and cooler out in the state, the indications being that fair weather has come to stay for a while.

RAIN RUINS FLOATS; WILL NOT BE EXHIBITED

Ramsen, lord high chamberlain of King Ak-Sar-Ben's court, has announced that the beautiful electrical floats were practically ruined by the rain Wednesday night after the parade, and therefore will not be parked on the carnival grounds for the enjoyment of late visitors to the festival. It had been planned to exhibit them during the remainder of the week.

The case of L. L. Cantelero. The case of L. L. Cantelero, Clarendon, Texas, is similar to that of many others who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says, "After trying a doctor for several months, and using different kinds of medicines for my wife who has been troubled with severe bowel complaint for several months, I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. After using the second bottle she was entirely cured." For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

Two Bands Play Through the Rain While Others Flee

When the storm broke last night, just as the parade was near the end of the route, there was a wild rush of musicians for shelter, some running with yodels spread over their instruments to protect the bright polish from the steady down-pour. Only one band stood firm—Daniel's.

Only two bands stood firm—the big uniformed organization of postoffice musicians and Dan Deedens' corps of more than thirty colored players. Both of these continued to play their inspiring tunes in the line of march.

"How Dry I Am" was the tune struck up by the postoffice band, which marched on as if the best of weather prevailed. Many favorable comments were uttered by spectators, who admired the spirit of the postoffice and Deedens' musicians in sticking to the parade in spite of the downpour.

The Lynch (Neb.) band of women and girls was a thoroughly drenched bunch before shelter was reached. This band, which attracted a great deal of attention, is composed of many girls in their teens and wearing short dresses. The women "did their hair" under heavy blue caps and marched in their appointed place in the parade in complete unconcern while the crowds cheered loudly.

A majority of the musicians disbanded on Fifteenth street in the downpour. Owing to the large crowds in every place that offered the least shelter the musicians were compelled to "beat it" to their hotels. They did in all haste, although some of the instruments were left on the field of disaster.

Altogether nearly 50 musicians marched and played in the parade. There were twelve bands, some of which were secured from small towns in the state. Each of these bands made a creditable showing.

The Fourth regiment band, under Kiplinger, led the parade, followed by the others in order, each a few feet apart: Geneva Military band, French band of South Omaha, Ancient Order of United Workmen, Stromburg; University of Nebraska, Omaha Postoffice, Omaha Pils and Drum corps, Arapahoe, Young Men's Christian association and Lewis' bands.

Motorcycle Rider at Carnival Has a Hairbreadth Escape

While dashing at top speed around the perpendicular wall of the motordrome on the carnival grounds Wednesday night, O. K. Hager, one of the speed demons, narrowly escaped death when one of his handle bars broke. He managed to keep his seat, however, as he grabbed the fork of his machine when the bar gave way. A capacity crowd of spectators lined the drome and would have suffered serious casualties along with the fearless rider if the latter had not managed by superhuman effort to control his wild machine. He was unhurt, but experienced near-death sensations and threw a fright into the crowd for a few minutes.

Children Have Merry Time at Carnival

More thousands of merry children romped on the Plaza of Pleasure to their heart's content. It was children's day again, and the public schools had declared a half-holiday in order that all the kiddies might see the fraternal parade and enjoy the wonderful attractions within the high board fence of Quivera's own domain. Saturday is to be another day set apart for the kiddies.

Higgins reported excellent shooting near Sioux City, that mallards have started to migrate southward and that the hunters are enthusiastic over prospects on the river this fall.

Public in Large Numbers Paying Visit to the Yards District.

PACKERS SHOW SIGNS TO ALL

Demand for Feeder Stuff Noted and Buyers Put in Their Appearance in More Than Usual Numbers.

Fully 5,000 people visited the stock yards and the packing houses yesterday, and there are several days left for visitors at the big industry. Literally the visitors leading to the stock yards and the packing houses were crowded yesterday forenoon and for a short time in the afternoon. Special guides have been appointed to conduct the visitors through the yards and through the packing houses. The visitors were profuse in their comments upon the welcome and courtesy shown them at the big plants.

At the packing houses, where some trifle attracted a woman visitor, the guide was quick to hand it out with the compliments of the packing house. The man spent a great deal of time in the stock yards, both in the Exchange and in the yards, properly so-called. The sanitary pens, water and feed service held their attention and they asked many questions about feeding facilities. Stock yards men report that the crowds are taking more interest in the stock industry and the packing houses than ever before at Ak-Sar-Ben time.

Base Ball Returns. "Doc" Frye has arranged for a special base ball series, beginning Friday afternoon. The returns will be received at the Exchange dining room at the Union Stock yards, and will cover the game play by play and inning by inning. A good many of the fans about town have already begun to place bets on the big event. The returns will be taken at the same place during the whole series.

Inquest Over Macek. Coroner Willis Crosby held an inquest yesterday afternoon upon the death of John Macek, who was killed Monday while crossing the Burlington tracks at Thirty-ninth and J streets. Macek leaves a widow and seven children.

Demand for Feeder Stuff. Feeder stuff at the Union Stock yards is looking up, according to live stock men. Buyers from Nebraska and Wyoming and a few from the Dakotas are in the market, anxious to stock up their feed lots. They report plenty of hay and fodder for the winter and are anxious to take advantage of the need for fat stock.

In consequence the men at the yards are reporting better business conditions. One of the leading dealers said yesterday: "I have done more business and made more money within the last week than in many moons."

Stockmen to Lincoln. Announcement has been made of the annual visit of the Union Stock Yards men to Lincoln on the 26th of October to be the guests of the State Agricultural college. The affair is an annual one and the men look forward to it with a great deal of pleasure.

The women of the school will entertain the visitors at dinner and in the afternoon Nebraska's Huskies will battle with the Michigan Aggies. The football game is always a big affair for the local men.

Friends of Chief of Police John Briggs complain that fire halls of the city and being used to advertise the candidacy of Sheriff Felix McShane. There is said to be a large place in the hall of No. 4 fire house. Briggs says he expects a square deal and that to use the city fire department is not a square deal in his mind. SUFFRAGIST WILL MAKE HOUSE-TO-HOUSE CANVASS

"Do you know exactly in what ward and precinct you live?" asked Miss Jane Thomson at a meeting of suffrage ward and precinct workers at the Young Men's Christian association yesterday afternoon. Only three women out of the fifty present were not sure.

Maps and charts of the city were in evidence on chairs and tables and the workers were being instructed by Miss Thomson and Miss Elsie Vandergrift in methods of reaching the voters. A house-to-house campaign is planned for the last part of the campaign. Miss Thomson and Miss Vandergrift will speak in each ward of the city, taking two days to cover each ward.

Mrs. James Taggart received a handsome pearl ring from a suffrage enthusiast in Idaho, with instruction to sell it for the cause.

Mrs. A. C. Zehner of Fort Worth, Tex., arrived Thursday to help in the campaign work.

DIPHTHERIA CONTAGION IS SAID TO BE CONTROLLED

City health officials report another case of diphtheria, this time at 908 North Sixteenth street. Physicians seem to have the contagion pretty well under control now. No deaths have occurred within the last ten days.

Long illness Causes Mother to End Her Life

Despondent because of prolonged illness, Mrs. C. E. Day, 2223 Charles street, committed suicide at her home last night by swallowing two ounces of carbolic acid and then opening a gas jet near the bed in her room.

When the two children of the dead woman, John, aged 8, and Margaret, aged 12, returned from school yesterday they missed their mother, but thought she had gone to attend the carnival. When the father returned he found the front upstairs bedroom securely locked. He broke open the door and found his wife lying on the bed dead.

Police surgeons rushed to the scene with a pulmotor, but their efforts were futile. Mrs. Day, in order to be certain of death, had locked the window of the room, packed a towel in the crevice under the door and plugged the keyhole with paper. In a note left for her husband she said: "Dear Ed—Take good care of the children. I have been sick and in misery so long that I can stand it no longer. Forgive me, please. ANNA."

Mrs. Day had just recovered from a serious operation and had been ailing continuously. She was 30 years of age.

SHOW TENTS SHELTER MANY DURING DOWNPOUR

Th dozen or more tents that house the attractions on the Plaza proved an appreciated refuge for the multitude which was visiting the carnival when the rain fell Wednesday night. Every tent sheltered hundreds of people, and when the downpour ceased the grounds again became alive with the surging throng, as it made its way toward the exits and home.

Newsboy Who Cries False Reports Now Out of Business

An enterprising newsboy at the corner of Seventeenth and Farnam streets for the last few days has been trying to make the public believe that the Germans were ready to surrender, and has had battles fought and armies defeated that never occurred. In spite of repeated warnings, yesterday, according to his cries, he had the United States about to declare war on Japan. The enterprising news vendor has been suppressed and his imagination will probably be used to better advantage in the future in other fields.

CONFESSES TO ROBBING HOME OF L. D. WILLIS

Police believe that in the arrest yesterday of John Benick, alias Franks, and James Norton, they have broken up the gang that has been systematically robbing residences on the south and southwest sides. The men were trailed down and taken into custody by Detectives Ring and Van Deusen after Pawnshop Detective Shoop had caught them trying to dispose of stolen property.

The pair attempted to sell a pair of opera glasses which were identified by Shoop as the pair stolen on October 3 from the home of J. F. Hock, 329 Jackson street.

Norton confessed to a number of burglaries, including that of the home of L. D. Willis, 1902 South Thirty-sixth street, Tuesday night. He said he and a pal got about $500 worth of loot out of the Willis home.
