IS CAMPUS GUARANTY GOOD?

Who Will Foot Deficit if Extension Scheme Carries?

TEXT OF PECULIAR DOCUMENT

Unless Enforceable, Taxpayers of the State Will Hold the Sack for Benefit of Real Estate Sellers.

LINCOLN, Oct. 19 .- (Special.) - While the downtown campus boosters keep on referring to the so-called "guaranty" furmehed by interested parties that the purchase of the additional real estate will be kept within the figure of $300,000, the people of Lincoln do not want to talk about it because the "guaranty" threatens to be a "joker." The campus extensionists who plead for saving the state's money make it essential to their program that the guarantors come across if called upon, for the best estimates of the cost of needed ground exclusive of buildings on them, range all the way up to $800,000. As to whether the "guaranty" is good for anything, the document perhaps speaks best for itself, as witness the following copy of #:

Text of the Document.

To the Chancellor and the Board of Regents: The cost of campus extension was the subject of discussion during the was the subject of discussion during the session of the legislature just closed, and the estimates varied widely, from $50,000 to $600,000. The undersigned have had an appraisal made by the most competent judges of city real estate, and they place the value of the ground, exclusive of the buildings, at $500,000. It is desirable that the board of regents should be able to estimate accurately the cost of campus extension, in order that it may know how much of the special building fund will be available for buildings after paying cost of sites. To afford such information the undersigned agree to indemnify the board of regents against cost of campus extension exceeding $330,000 on the following conditions:

ites.

It is subterfuge has likewise been challed the building sites, and they shall be furnished in accordance with the plans as needed.

In the event that the underwriters fail to acquire and convey land whenever needed for fullding sites the board of regents anall have the right to acquire the same by condemnation.

This subterfuge has likewise been challed the probable that no such diversion of public money could be accomplished except after going through the courts.

That brings it back to the sufficiency of the obligation contained in the document, which goes by the name of a "guar-

Something About Rates

As a public service corporation we are servants of the people and as such should discharge our duties efficiently.

To give the most efficient service, the construction, equipment and operation of this Company must conform to the best known practices.

To meet these requirements, the Company must charge such rates as will meet necessary operating expenses, provide adequate reserves for replacing worn-out or obsolete plant, and give a return on the money actually invested in the business that shall be reasonable and sufficient to invite new capital as required for expansion.

Should any earnings be made over and above those necessary to meet these requirements, we feel the amount should be used for the benefit of the public to further increase the efficiency and reliahility of the service.
