

CHINESE DOCTOR IS KILLED

Is Blown to Atoms at Anacosta by Bomb Explosion.

POLICE LOOK UP HIS RECORD

Had Lived in Omaha for the Last Three Years, Possessing Here as a Dispenser of Chinese Herbs.

Dr. Hun Mon Tau, for the last three years supposed to be a Chinese herb dealer in Omaha, was blown to atoms last Sunday morning in Anacosta, Mont., where a nitroglycerin bomb brought from this city exploded in a house in the Anacosta Chinese quarter.

The explosion of the bomb is believed accidental.

It is also thought that Dr. Tau was responsible for the smuggling of $2000 worth of opium into Anacosta. Only a few hours before the tragedy he was subjected to a federal investigation.

Local Chinese Excited. The death of Dr. Tau has created a wave of excitement in the local Chinese colony.

For over a year Dr. Tau conducted the affairs of the "Joy See Hong" Herb company at Nineteenth and Capitol avenue, and later occupied a suite on lower Douglas street.

He was well known, but not popular. As to his past the Omaha Chinese, who know him are exceedingly reticent. However, it was learned by the police investigating the local end of the affair that the doctor put in a good deal of his time in playing fan-tan in Chinese stores here where gambling among the Chinese is permitted and that he was something else besides a herb doctor.

Since the tragedy the local police have been interested in Dr. Tau's life here and government officials have also been at work, but the results of their investigation are meager.

Only Few Women Vote in Proportion to the Eligibles in Omaha

Only 3,000 women voted at the recent school board election, according to returns prepared by the election commissioner. All the women in Omaha who are taxpayers or who are mothers of children of school age were eligible to vote, numbering from five to seven times those who cast ballots.

In the official count Drusewed, candidate for the legislature, led Brennan by thirty votes, with only half a dozen county precincts yet to be counted.

Portable Schools Are Ready for Use

The portable school houses purchased by the Board of Education to relieve the congestion in the public schools have been erected, furnaces installed and Monday morning the one at Central school will be given a trial. This school will accommodate forty-eight pupils.

Superintendent Duncan, Elmhurst school building, has advocated the construction of permanent annexes to relieve the congestion, but the school board believes the portable school house, which is much cheaper, may serve the same purpose.

The only difficulty we believe we probably may encounter in the use of these schools is that of heating them if the weather becomes very cold, said Superintendent E. U. Graff. "However, there are double floors, good heating arrangements and the fact that these schools are used in Alaska successfully, I understand. At the most they are makeshift, temporary affairs and as such are much less expensive than a permanent building."

In case these two portable houses prove satisfactory the school board may purchase others.

Defeated Candidate Not Yet a Citizen

The naturalization examinations Thursday brought out the fact that even though a candidate for county commissioner on the progressive ticket at the recent election, Morris Andreasen was not a citizen of the United States. His application for citizenship papers was taken under advisement by Judge Sutton, but will probably be passed upon favorably since the law regarding candidates says that any elector, even though not a citizen, may run for office.

GOVERNMENT FISH CAR PASSES THROUGH OMAHA

Captain Kerth, in charge of government fish car No. 3, came in from the west Thursday night and his car was attached to the Illinois Central passenger train going east. The captain goes to Manchester, Ia., where he will fill the car with trout and take them out for distribution. He will not be advised of the planting ground until he reaches Manchester.

The last six months have been busy ones for Captain Kerth, for during that period he has gathered, planted and distributed over 2,000,000 bass and trout, most of them having been put into the waters of Wyoming, Idaho and Montana.

New Books

Fiction. DELLA BLANCHFLOWER. By Mrs. Humphrey Ward. 25c. Pp. 112. Hearsa's International Library company. Sir Robert Blanchflower leaves his daughter and her fortune in full control of Mark Wilmington until she is 35 years old, when the property is to become hers, provided she severs her connection with a militant suffrage organization. Mr. Wilmington is described as having no human imperfections of any sort, intelligent, chivalrous and good-humored with charming manners, and the difficulty he has to face is his ward's attachment to Gertrude Marvell, a leader and organizer of the militants. Della is the beautiful, passionate, immature, but innately noble and generous heroine whom we have encountered in more than one of Mrs. Ward's novels—"A Handful," so she describes herself, and so Wilmington unquestionably found her. More interesting is Gertrude Marvell, the slender, neatly precise little woman in gray, a feminist fanatic, who "had read an amazing amount of history and all from one point of view," in whose hands Della, thanks to her father's total neglect of her education, was as wax. Perfidious in belief, ready to sacrifice herself utterly for the cause which she had made her very life, she is by far the most impressive figure in the book. Contrasted with her are the constitutional suffragists, Lady Tonbridge, a gracious and admirable woman, who declares that the vote "is our right—and you men are doing not to give it to us," and Miss Demsey, the beloved rescue worker. Then there is the anti-suffragist, Mrs. Andrews, who talks about "the hand that rocks the cradle" and makes her daughter's life a burden. This novel, evidently intended as a picture of the militant movement and a protest against it, does not rank with the best of Mrs. Ward's work owing to a certain perfunctory note which sounds in it again and again.

MAID MELICENT. By Goulah Marie Dix. 25c. Pp. 112. Hearsa's International Library company. A stirring tale of romance, adventure, the clatter of sabres, the hot whirl of fire—and breathing through all a sweet, sprightly, damsel heroine. It is a delightful story of early colonial times in Massachusetts in a beautiful gift edition.

FOR THE ALLINSON HONOR. By Harold Brodlok. 25c. Pp. 112. Frederick A. Stokes Company. Andrew Allinson, the older son and heir of an English banker, prefers to leave the conduct of the bank to his brother-in-law, Leonard, who changes the methods of the solid old bank, engages in speculation and the floating of mining stocks, and nearly wrecks the institution, although successful at the outset. Andrew comes to his senses in time and ousts the rascals in charge of a mine, only to find it worthless, but discovers another which he turns over to the company, thus saving the honor of his family and the bank. There is little that is new in this, but it gives Mr. Brodlok an opportunity for descriptions of the hardships of the wilds of Canada in winter, and they are well done.

BLIND EYES. By Margaret Peterson. 25c. Pp. 112. Browne & Howell Company. Pretty Cynthia Weston, raised by an indulgent older sister in a typical well-to-do English home, reaches maturity still a child in her outlook on life and its responsibilities. She is suddenly sobered by a serious proposal of marriage, which she declines after her well-intentioned sister tries to explain to her the meaning of love. She rebelliously leaves her sister's home to make her own way in the world, goes to London, and there, through her own experiences and those of three other girls with whom she is thrown, learns the answer to her fierce questionings.

LOOKING AFTER SANDY. By Margaret Turnbull. 25c. Pp. 112. Harper & Bros. Sandy is simply a girl, young and so unusually nice, so childishly appealing, that everybody wants to "look after her" and everybody does. A wholesome story, touched with delicate humor. An engaging story of normal American youth, of the natural companionship of boys and girls prolonged into manhood and womanhood. Little red-haired Sandy, aged 11, an orphan, was adopted by a man who had six children of his own. Their loyalty, their fun, their love affairs, and Sandy's successes are told in a way which appeals to readers old and young.

THE RED MIST. By Randall Parrish. 40c. Pp. 112. A. C. McClurg & Co. A Confederate sergeant of artillery is chosen by General Jackson to make certain investigations in western Virginia because of his intimate knowledge of that section, then overrun by guerrillas, though nominally controlled by the federal troops. The sergeant makes the attempt in the guise of a federal recruiting officer, and is at once plunged into a mass of adventure. In a seemingly deserted house he encounters a young woman whom he had known in childhood, and to save her from a most unhappy fate at the hands of a guerrilla chief, marries her. Soon after he is captured and condemned as a spy. The resulting complications and the girl's loyalty to a husband she has learned to love, make up the story.

HOW IT HAPPENED. By Kate Langley Bosher. 15c. Pp. 31. Harper & Bros. Little Carmencita Bell, in Mrs. Bosher's new story is closely akin in spirit to the Mary Cary who so quickly won her way to the hearts of many readers. The child, in her early teens, is the daughter of a blind harper, and, although they are people of refinement and one-time prosperity, they live in great poverty in a squalid part of the city. Her dearest friend is a young woman who has given up a life of social activities to work in a settlement. The reader is made to understand that there had once been a lover from whom the young woman had parted in indignant disagreement. The little girl makes friends on the street with a rich and lonely stranger, takes him to her home, and discovers that he was once her dear friend's fiancé. She reunites the lovers and all ends happily.

THE CITY OF NUMBERED DAYS. By Francis Lynde. 30c. Pp. 112. Charles Scribner's Sons. A story of tense situations and ingenious denouements. A prosperous city springs up in a valley which is destined to be flooded by the United States reclamation service. The book is thrilling in its description of the frantic speculation, the making and breaking of fortunes and the exciting political situations in a growing and prosperous, but inevitably doomed western town.

THE OMA HOTEL CASE TO BE DROPPED BY THE LOCAL OFFICIALS. The OMA hotel case, involving the operation of the Albert law, sent back for a new trial by the supreme court, will be dropped by local officials. Passage of time and changes of management of the hotel practically have resulted in an abatement of the case, according to County Attorney Magney. The witnesses, who were furnished by the Anti-Saloon league, are no longer in Omaha. "The supreme court would require more evidence than we had before to sustain a conviction, whereas we would have far less testimony," said County Attorney Magney. "Another trial would be useless."

Count Attorney Magney declared that according to his experience the Albert law is much more effective as a threat than as an actual weapon. "I have compiled more than 100 places to be vacated during the last year by warning the owner that I was about to institute Albert law proceedings," he said. "The owner then ousts his tenant. This is the only result we can secure by taking the case to trial under the decisions of the courts. The net result is that the old tenant is ousted."

TEKAMAH INSURANCE MAN ARRESTED AND TAKEN BACK

M. J. Kimmel, insurance agent at Tekamah, who arrived here Friday in an automobile enroute to Lincoln, where he is said to be the principal witness in a large damage suit case, has been arrested and taken back to Tekamah on a charge of forging some papers. Kimmel declares that his arrest is a "frame-up" and that he will vindicate himself at the time of his trial.

FRANK DALY ACCUSED OF BEING PURSE SNATCHER. Frank Daly, 107 Chicago street, detained at police headquarters as a "suspicious character," is accused of being a purse snatcher by Mary Jackson, domestic, employed at a boarding house at 136 Chicago street. The young woman says she was waiting for a street car at Fourteenth and Chicago streets when Daly snatched her purse and ran. She followed him to his room and then called the police. Detectives Dunn and Kennell made the arrest. The purse contained only $1, she said.

Exceptional Even for Kilpatrick's!

ORDINARILY we do not advise housewives to neglect their home duties, and we do not go so far as to do that even now. This much you can do with profit. The baking can be left till later. The week-end house cleaning can wait. BUT DON'T NEGLECT THE BABY! NO SALE IS WORTH THAT.

Saturday Sales Series Starts at 8:30 in the Morning

Of First Importance Several Thousand Pairs of Long and Short Real Kid and Lamb Gloves

Scare head lines in trade papers predicted dearth of all French and German Gloves. That there is scarcity no one will deny. Every pair, however, that we bought we got. A special buyer looked after our interests before the European unpleasantness started. His purchases were fortunate, and better still, when he saw the storm clouds gathering, he never rested until the goods were billed and shipped. They came in earlier than ordered and we had to pay for them in consequence a little sooner. It looks as if it would be many a long day until we can buy as favorably and just now we could not duplicate at any price.

Let the future take care of itself. We will cross that bridge when we come to it—

NOW FOR THE SALE—FIVE LOTS

- LOT 1. Short Gloves, all perfect. Tan, White and Black; all sizes; 79c a pair. A good Dollar Glove. All guaranteed.
LOT 2. This is a wonderful lot. Pique and Overseam. All good colors, all sizes. 98c per pair instead of $1.25 and $1.50.
LOT 3. In this lot some of the best Gloves made, including the celebrated Jouvin. $1.39 the sale price, usually $2.00 and $2.25.
LOT 4. A lot of Cape and Lamb Long Gloves. All perfect at $1.49 pair. Sold at $3.00, $3.50 and even $3.75 usually.
LOT 5. 16-Button Kid and Lamb, White and Black; also a sprinkling of tan. $2.39. Before $3.50 and $3.75 a pair.

We wish to fit them next week, but cannot do so till Wednesday. Prefer not to sell more than 6 pairs to a customer. None fitted on-day of sale. None reserved for anyone.

It makes no difference whether you believe in the righteousness of the Kaiser's act or not. Sincere people everywhere admit that Germany has done wonders. As a little demonstration of their thoroughness and ability, we will offer on Saturday less than 10 dozen German Aprons—Material German—Workmanship German—Made in Germany—Made to wear; some with bibs, some without. A genuine hausfrau's Apron, 49c each. Formerly 75c and 85c each. It will be months, perhaps years, before we can get any more. First come best served. 8:30 the sale. Maid's Aprons and Gift Aprons.

ON THE THIRD FLOOR UP: Remnant Sale Saturday. Nets, Cretonnes, Curtains, Madras, Swiss, Serim, Damask, Tapestry, 1/2 the former prices, and less.

We cannot close our eyes to facts. This neck of the woods is in a lucky section. At peace with all the world. Nature has been kind and we have what the people want to buy. The east is not so happy—tightness of money—scarcity of employment—passing of dividends—makes demand small and business dull.

A MAKER OF FINE COATS was loaded up with material. He offered to make up a lot in the latest mode at a price. The price was appealing and we bought. Saturday, therefore, you get the pick of garments which usually sell at $25.00 and $27.50, for $15.00 each.

If you know any reason for delay, tell us. Nothing but an empty pocketbook and no credit should restrain you from attending this sale.

CHILDREN'S SECTION SATURDAY Saturday First a Coat Sale—Baby Coats (beauties). Practical Coats for Girls. Splendid Coats for Juniors. Sold up to $15.00 and $18.00. $9.75 Ea.

A Sale of Suits for Juniors all day in same Section. For Big Girls and Small Women. Should be $18.00 and $20.00, at $11.45.

Flannelette Kimonos for little children, 98c each.

Hats for Girls of all ages. Ask the intelligent and courteous saleswomen in our Underwear Section to show you the Glove Silk Underwear. This is in the West Aisle, Main Floor.

Initiative—Individuality—Interest!

Wonderful what these will do. A few weeks ago when in New York City we visited the establishment owned and operated by

MARY ELIZABETH

Wonderful what this woman has accomplished unaided and alone. Starting in business selling the candy made by herself in a very small way, she has built up perhaps the largest business of its kind in the world. We never think of her but what we think of COBBS. Keep your eye on them. They are building up a marvelous business, too, Initiative, individuality, interest, counts for them also.

Note Some of Their Specials for Saturday

- Maple Glace Caramels, soft, delightfully chewy, dipped in Canada Maple Sugar. 25c a box instead of 40c.
BLACK WALNUT PILLOWS—Made similar to the butter-cups, which you like so well, only the filling is black walnut—Rich, yes, delicious. Saturday, 30c the pound box. If you knew the present price of nut meats you would appreciate the value.
Real Goodies for Saturday. Dipped Brazil Nuts—Purest, Wholesome Creams, Delicious Fruits, Choicest Nuts, Highest Grade of Chocolates—There's a delectable confection for you—60c THE POUND—The equal of any 80c chocolates.

Mrs. Jones Says:

Call attention to dancing frocks. The newest are here in Chiffon, Lace and Velvet combinations—$12.50 to $35.00.

Turn back to the Coats advertised for $15.00 each. And note, please, materials are Hindu Lynx, Black Eponge, Vienna Velours, Broadcloths, Ripple Cloth, etc. Models, remember, the latest.

SILK STOCKING SALE SATURDAY

Bought directly from McCallum Hosiery Co., a lot of what they call overs. A few pairs of a number. Altogether perhaps 25 dozen pairs. Regular $1.50 and $2.00 numbers. Nearly all black. Saturday, $1.19 the pair.

MEN—A WORD WITH YOU

One of our very good friends told us today of a conversation which he had overheard between two men on a street car. Both, he said, knew Kilpatrick's well and favorably, but one man said he never bought his own Underwear there as he liked to have a man wait on him. "My dear Man," our other friend said, "they are all men in that department," and like the rest of the salespeople, not only courteous, but intelligent. "Me for Kilpatrick's," said the first speaker, and he came. Mentioned only so that all men may know and do likewise. Here is something for you for Saturday. A recent cleanup of Underprice Suits of Egyptian Cotton, fine weaves, at $1.15; usually $1.50. Heavy Wool Ribbed, at $1.65 instead of $2.50. Mercerized and Wool, at $2.75 instead of $4.00. Silk and Wool also, at $3.45 instead $5. Two specials in Men's Gloves bought at a bargain last spring, especially good values now. $2.00 Kasan unlined, at $1.50 a pair; $1.50 Cuipe at $1.19 a pair.

HOLIDAY NECKWEAR ON TAP—Wise ones buy early

—We meant to refer to something else, but will refrain except to say—your attempt at copying flatters us gentlemen. Keep it up so that the people may know.
