

PASTOR STUDIES CENTURIES

History's Relation to Religion Theme of Rabbi Cohn's Sermons.

BEGINS WITH THE FIFTEENTH

Asserts Date of Discovery of New World Also Marked Beginning of New Things Morally, Intellectually and Socially.

"The Soul of the Centuries," a new series of dissertations dealing with history's relation to religion, is the subject which Rabbi Frederick Cohn has selected for a year's study.

In the first of these lectures entitled "The Fifteenth Century: The New World," delivered last night, Rabbi Cohn said:

"I purpose to examine each century with a view to ascertaining its essential spirit or soul."
"In our study of the centuries we shall begin with the fifteenth century, for all the centuries that went before were in a manner but the preparation for this wonderful century; this century, itself the beginning of a great era of human history. It is the transition century that marks the definite division of the new from the old, the distinct separation of past views of life from the dominant conceptions of the world in which we live." Rabbi Cohn said that as the discovery of America, marked the discovery of a new world, so that same year and century marked the beginning of a new world, morally, religiously, intellectually, politically and socially.

"With the fifteenth century the medieval era comes definitely to an end and humanity enters positively and confidently upon the modern period, the period in which we live, which is so alive and thrilling and so instinct with hope and promise for the days that are to be.

New Methods Adopted.
"What was the soul of the fifteenth century? It was the soul of the breakup of the old and the dawning of the new; it was the soul of invention and discovery; of mankind entering upon new paths and making trial of new methods. For one thing it was the awakening of the soul after the long, ten-centured sleep of the middle ages. The human intellect and the whole mental life of man were reborn."

"The fifteenth century was the century of the renaissance which, taking its rise in beautiful, cultured, artistic and fascinating Italy, spread thence to all Europe and ultimately to all the world.
The fifteenth century witnessed the so-called 'revival of learning,' the resurrection of art and culture, the resurrection of reason, the general stimulation and kindling of all the intellectual faculties, due to renewed acquaintance with the ancient and classical literatures of Greece and Rome, made possible by the discovery of ancient manuscript, and immensely furthered by the newly-discovered art of printing, about 1460, almost the very year when Constantinople fell (1453) sending forth hosts of Greek scholars to occupy professional chairs in the newly-rising universities and to explain the old masters in the new spirit and in accordance with the newly-acquired knowledge.

"Scholasticism gave way to modern scientific knowledge. With the rebirth of reason was already planted the seeds that were to arouse and quicken the conscience; and Renaissance was instinct with Reformation that was to charac-terize the succeeding century and with revolution in England and in France that was to be the dominant fact in the subsequent seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

New Idea Still Retained.
"In that springtime of the human spirit the life was germinating that was to come to blossom in the succeeding centuries and that fills with beauty and fragrance the modern world, the life, activities and forces of the day in which we live. The nineteenth and the twentieth centuries are no less under the spell and spirit of the Renaissance than were their predecessors; and the new age marches on to the music awakened out of the marvelous melodies of the past, and particularly out of the matches achievements of that century that is rightly regarded as leading the van in humanity's all-conquering progress toward the goal of civilization and of life."

"For the lesson of the centuries is the lesson of progress. As a great singer has expressed it: 'Yet I doubt not thro' the ages one increasing purpose runs and the thoughts of men are widened in the process of the suns.'"
"And of hope; for I believe we shall not conclude these lectures without feeling, with Senator Hoar, that 'today is better than yesterday, and tomorrow will be better than today.'"

All Members of the Crocker Expedition
Well Late in August

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—All the members of the Crocker land expedition, headed by Dr. Donald B. MacMillan, were well on August 29, according to a letter written on that date by Elmer Ekblaw, geologist of the party. Part of Ekblaw's letter was made public today by Edmund Otis Hovey, chairman of the committee in charge of the expedition.
The letter was written aboard K. Rasmussen's motorboat in a raging sea just south of Cape Alexander. In it Mr. Ek-blaw says:

"By a strange freak of luck as Jot Small and I were fleeing before a storm in our little motorboat we met Knud Rasmussen's boat on its way to Etah with our mail and supplies. Both motorboats attempted to get by Cape Alexander, but, unable to do so, we have turned back to our camp. Since his motorboat must start back at once there will be no chance for our letters, cable messages and mail to get back to you."

"Evidently," Mr. Hovey explained, "the storm which was raging when Mr. Ekblaw's letter was written, and the fact that he was going back to Etah, kept Mr. Rasmussen from continuing his journey to the Crocker land party's headquarters. Mr. Rasmussen apparently felt obliged to put back to North Star bay for fear of getting caught in the ice at Etah."

TURKEY TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

Festive Birds on the Market at Two Bits Per Pound.

APPLES AT REASONABLE PRICES

Price, According to the Variety, is from Twenty-Five Cents Per Peck Upwards—Pork Makes Advance.

No. 1 turkeys can be had for a quarter a pound next week for the Thanksgiving dinners, according to the promise of some of the dealers. It is stated, however, that they will be none too plentiful at that. They are being shipped to Omaha from Kansas City, where they have been gathered from the farms and ranches of Kansas and Texas.
The dry-picked turkeys will sell at a quarter, while the scalded will be about 3 cents cheaper. Scalded fowl is always cheaper because it does not keep as well in stock. The theory is that when scalded the pores of the skin remain open and the flavor of the bird is not as well preserved as in the dry-picked.
Ducks are promised at 20 cents a pound for the week. Geese are quoted at 13 cents.

Cranberries of good quality are selling at 7 1/2 cents a pound, and celery can be had two bunches for a nickel. That completes the principal features of a Thanksgiving dinner within a reasonable price.
Beef is holding quite steady. There is an inclination on the part of the buyers to keep away from the beef market on account of the foot and mouth disease scare, in spite of the fact that repeated inspections have shown the stock in Omaha to be in excellent shape. This tendency has thrown a greater demand upon pork. Pork loins are 18 cents a pound and pork chops 20 cents.
Lamb are $4 a hundred higher wholesale than they were a few weeks ago. They sell from $12.50 to $17 a hundred wholesale. Lamb chops are retailing at a quarter a pound, while a few weeks ago they could be had for 20 cents.
Lard is up. Rendered lard is retailing

AT 15 CENTS A POUND, WHILE LARD IS 12 1/2 CENTS WHOLESALE.

Cabbage is abundant and cheap. While last year it was 3 1/2 cents and 3 cents a pound, and good solid quality at that. Apples are still reasonably cheap. Choice wineraps in special crates can be had at $1.40 a bushel. Good game apples can be had at 25 cents a peck.
Sugar has made a welcome drop until it can be bought much as it was before the European war scared the consumers and gave the magnates their opportunity. It can be bought now at nineteen pounds for a dollar.

TWO MEN WHO STEAL WARM DUDS FROM CAR ARRESTED

Cold weather is alleged to have caused Jack Prince and John Clem, transients from Butte, Mont., to break into a Union Pacific box car and steal warm coats and gloves from freight shipments, and then to have remained in the car, in order to get warmed up. They were arrested in the car at Grand Island by special agents of the railroad and are now in jail under a government charge. As the goods alleged to have been stolen were part of an interstate shipment.

THREE NEW DEPUTIES FOR LOCAL REVENUE SERVICE

Three new deputies have been added to the internal revenue service for Nebraska under the emergency revenue act passed by congress on account of the war. Their appointments were necessary because of the immense amount of extra work occasioned by the new war taxes. The appointees are Hubert J. Tanner, son of ex-State Senator J. M. Tanner of South Omaha; John Borgnoff of Omaha, and Thomas Carroll of Fremont.

TOWNSEND MAY PROSECUTE COLD STORAGE HOUSES

BACK FROM THE SUFF MEET

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Sumney Have Important Parts in Convention.

TRIBUTE TO J. L. KENNEDY

Suffragists Spend More Money in Nebraska Campaign Than in Any Other State During the Recent Election.

Mrs. Draper Smith and Mrs. Herbert C. Sumney returned Thursday from the National Woman Suffrage association convention held last week at Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. James Richardson and Mrs. E. M. Barkley of Lincoln, the remaining members of the Nebraska delegation, stopped in St. Louis to spend a few days. The Nebraska women took active part in the meeting's procedure. Mrs. Barkley served on the election committee and Mrs. Sumney on the resolutions committee. Mrs. Smith was on the program with a report of the Nebraska campaign. Mrs. Sumney was also appointed to serve on the national membership committee. The Nebraska delegation attended the breakfast tendered the national board by the campaign states' delegations Sunday morning.

Opposition to Dr. Shaw.
Mrs. Sumney stated that the effort to oust Dr. Anna Howard Shaw from the presidency was not a concerted movement, but was only backed principally by the Congressional union. "The Massachusetts women were the only ones who talked it up, one of them having approached me, but even they were divided. They offered Dr. Shaw the position of president emerita, which she declined because, she said, the constitution did not provide for such an office, and she was even willing to suffer defeat if it need be, but she would be a candidate."
Mrs. Sumney told of Dr. Shaw's public tribute to John L. Kennedy for his work in the cause. She said also that in her opinion Nebraska had not done its duty by the national association. "Other states, especially the eastern ones, donate large sums to the national organization, while we in Nebraska always look for aid from the national and never contribute anything to it." She said that the national had spent more money in Nebraska during the last campaign than in any other campaign state excepting Ohio.
