AN OBJECT LESSON.

The fact that the eastern life insurance companies have practically ceased making new farm loans in Nebraska should be an object lesson to Nebraska buyens of life insurance. If the life insurance now carried by Nebraska people were all in Nebraska companies there would not be such a scarcity of insurance money seeking investment in Nebraska securities.

The above point is well worth considering when buying life insurance. It is far better from every point of view for Nebraskans to develop local companies throughout the west than to continue sending their money to the big ones to the east which close down on making new loans in this territory every time there is the slightest stringency in the money market, You can get no better insurance anywhere than in
