GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKET

Cash Wheat Steady and Futures Are Sharply Off.

CORN LOSES ITS STRENGTH

Yellow Cereal Drops Off Five-Eighths to One Cent, with Onts in a Sympathetic Decline of Prices.

OMAHA, Nov. 28, 1914.

The wheat market was an absormal affair again resterday. While the cash predigious were steady the futures were off sharply. The December soid at $1.13% ($1.13% early, down to $1.12 at the close, the latter being the lowest price of the session and $3% off from the resting spot weanesday. The weakness in wheat futures reflected an overbought situation in that grain, and also a tack of irade. The public is not to be found in wheat and the buying power is so small that any increase in the offerings carries values down in a manner most discouraging to holders. The business in cash wheat yesterday was quite encouraging the seaboard reporting 1,000,000 bu, and cash men reported 530,000 bu, for export and 50,000 bu, to millers. New York reported charters there for five cargoes of wheat for early shipment. Clearances of breadsuffs this week were placed at 7,073,00 bu, compared with 5,88,000 bu, a year ago. OMAHA, Nov. 38, 1914.

Besides the lack of trade in wheat as a discouraging factor to holders were the reports from Argentina of a heavy sur-Corn closed with losses of "Gic and was without any great amount of recuperative power. The weakest spot in the market was during midday when the selling in the way of hedges against the new crop were quite pronounced.

Outs proved to be a sympathetic market and coosed with net losses of 1%61%c. Prices eased off with the other grains, coupled with the weakness in carlots. The shipping business was again good with coupled with the weakness in carlots. The shipping business was again good with sales of 100,000 bu, here and 600,000 bu, at New York, mostly for export.

Provisions closed with little change as compared with resting spots Wednesday, shorts led in the buying, but the demand was general. The selling was led by packers at the best prices of the session, though stock yards traders were selling to secure profits. The trade is expecting a heavy hog movement as soon as the quarantine is lifted in Wisconsin and lows. owa. Durum wheat was 1/2c higher. Hard winter wheat was 2c lower.

Corn was 149%c lower.
