

LOBECK BACK TO CAPITAL

Has Several Plans to Work Out for Omaha's Advantage. WOULD PAVE THIRTIETH STREET Will Also Go to the Front to Try to Keep Omaha as a Distributing Point for Supplies for the Indians.

Congressman Lobeck started yesterday for Washington to be present at the opening of congress next week. "I hate to leave Omaha just now," says Mr. Lobeck, "but if duty calls me, it is pleasant to re-election by an increased majority instead of a defeated lame duck. "No, I have only one or two matters of immediate local interest in hand. One is to go back with a certificate of the pavement of Thirtieth street, opposite Fort Omaha. I will try to secure the necessary authority and appropriation, so the government will bear its share of the cost and have the work done in the spring. There is a complication by reason of the Water board's refusal to lay a water main to accommodate owners of property on the east side of the street, evidently with an idea that the government can be forced to pay the front foot assessment for the pipe, but as Fort Omaha is already supplied with water, I am not sure that Uncle Sam will feel like coming across. "Another matter is the purchase of Indian supplies which was put up to the commissioner of Indian affairs. I find that they have been asking for bids for Chicago delivery on supplies that could be distributed from Omaha quicker and cheaper, and I hope to persuade the bureau to give Omaha a better deal."

Builders to Talk Insurance and New Law at Meeting

The new workmen's compensation law and mutual insurance under that law is to be discussed at the next meeting of the Omaha Builders' exchange, to be held at the exchange rooms in the Barker block at 5 o'clock next Tuesday evening, December 8. W. Steinhart of Nebraska, vice president of the new mutual casualty company organized by the manufacturers of the state, is to deliver the address on this subject. This is a subject that is of vital interest to building contractors, as they are heavy employers of labor and of a class of labor in which accidents are more or less frequent. Mr. Steinhart is a prominent manufacturer of the state. He is a prominent member of the Nebraska Manufacturers' association. At the meeting of the Manufacturers' association a few weeks ago in Omaha Mr. Steinhart handled principally the matter of obtaining signatures of manufacturers willing to join a mutual liability insurance company. He hurriedly signed in great haste and when the association convention adjourned it was Mr. Steinhart and J. W. Towle of Omaha who were entrusted with the work of completing the list of signatures and getting up the preliminary work of filing articles of incorporation for the company. As this is a regular meeting of the Builders' exchange for the last month in the year, nominations are to be made for officers and directors for the ensuing year.
