CORNELL MUSICAL CLUBS VERSATILE

Glee and Banjo Clubs of College Are Noted for Good Performances

HERE MONDAY OF NEXT WEEK

Four of the Entertainers Are from Omaka and Some Special Features Are to Be Staged by Vinitore.

When the Cornell musical clubs enter tain at the American theater, December 28, Omaha will have the pleasure of hearing and seeing one of the most versatile musical organizations in the land. The Christmas tour of the Cornell clubs is a brief one, and but a few cities are in-cluded on the itinstary, so Omaha is in-deed fortunate that this city was se-

The Glee olub will sing rollicking college ditties, and also will indulge in se lections from grand, light and comic

The Glee club is of particularly high standard this year, according to advance reports, and the members have been selected from 300 applicants, Mandolinista a Feature. The Mandolin club is a feature which should please. Included in the Mandolin club it "The Sleeping Sextet," six musicians who have made enviable reputations for themselves. The sexest includes a plano, violin, guitar, banjo, mandolin and trap drums. The selections they play are the latest popular pieces combined into medleys.

Another bright feature in the Cornell muelcal clubs is an exhibition of modern society dancing. Robert A. Doyle of Akron, O., and Herbert A. Adair of Portland, Ind., are the terpetchorean experts. Of Doyle, the feminine member of the team, it is said that his impersonation is very realistic, and that he and Adair perform the gyrations of the tango, the maxixe, the fox trot and the me-step with surprising agility.

Four Are Omaha Boys.
Of particular local interest in the Cornell musical clubs is the prominence of Omaha in the sixty members comprising the clubs. Four Omaha boys have earned the distinction of appearing with that organization.

They are J. H. Millard and H. E. Milhard, mone of Mrs. F. B. Millard, 123 North Thirty-nigth street; H. H. Davis, son of Dr. B. B. Davis, 1562 South Thirtysecond avenue; and J. J. Hanighen, Jr., son of J. J. Hanighen, 207 South Thirty-seventh street.

H. E. Millard and Davis are veterans of the clubs, having played in the Mandolin club for three years. J. H. Millard and Hanighen are both serving their first year in the club. Millard plays the mandolin and Hanighen sings second Extensive plans for the entertainment of the visiting musicians are being made by Omaha alumni of Cornell. A luncheon and a reception and tea will be given in their honor at the University club, and in the evening after the concert they will be guests of honor at a ball to be given at the Rome hotel.

Seats for the concert are selling rapidly. Many box parties and line parties are to be given, and from advance reservations it would indicate that seats will be at a premium on the night of the Committee Keeping Busy. mittee in charge of the adance sale has been kept at wits' ends handling reservations and endeavoring to please the wishes of applicants. The most popular seats of all are the main floor boxes and the orchestra seats of rows, and had there beer more of this kind they could have been sold several times over. Although the advance sale of seats has been in progreas only four days, two-thirds of the house has already been reserved. The advance sale will continue until Wednesday, December 23, when the committee will release the remaining seats to the Beaton Drug company, who will handle the public sale, and while there are still a large number of choice seats left, it is imperative that all those destring a choice of good seats make their reservation with Mr. George B. Thummel before the public sale opens.

up offenses. The New Army has no use for those people, either, and attends to them on what may be called "democratic which is all the same as the old barrack room court-martial. Nor does it suffer fools gladly. There is no time to instruct them. They go to other spheres. There was, or rather is, a man who intends to join a certain battallon. He joined it once, scraped past the local doctor and was drafted into the corps only to be hove out for variouse veins, He went back to his accommodating doctor, repeated the process, and was again rejected.

They are waiting for him now in his third incarnation, for both sides are equally determined. And there was another Scot who joined, served a while, and left, as he might have left a pit or a factory. Somehow it occurred to him that explanations might be required, so he wrote to his commanding officer from his home address, and asked him what he recommended him to do.

The C. O., to his infinite credit, wrote back, "Suppose you rejoin," which the man did, and no more said. His punishment, of course, will come to him when he realizes what he has done. If he does not then perish in his self-contempt (he has a good conceit of himself) he will make one first class non-com.

I had the luck to meet a sergeantmajor who was the sergeant-major of one's dreams. He had just had sure information that the kilts for his battalion were coming in a few days; so, after three months' work, life smiled upon him. From kilts one naturally went on to the

The battalion had its pipes a very good set. How did it get them? Well, there was, of course, the duke. They began with him. And there was a Scots' lord concerned with the regiment. BRITISH COURT ANNULS CONVICTION OF ACLEGED SPY

LONDON, Dec. 19.-The court of criminal appeals, consisting of the lord chief justice, Lord Reading and four other justices, today annulied the conviction of Nicholas Ahlers, who was found guilty of treason and sentenced to death. Ahlers, a naturalized Englishman, formerly was German consul in Sundeland borough. He was accused of having aided German reservists to reach their country after the outbreak of the war.

CALLS FOR PROOF OF CHARGES

Witness Before Naval Committee Asks Hoosler Representative to "Get Up and Prove His Facts."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18,-Stormy scenes narked the conclusion yesterday on public A bearings before the house naval commitday, Representative Gardner of Massachusetts demanded that members of the ommittee say whether they questioned lata be had submitted to prove the nation's military unpreparedness, and his insistence so ansered Representative Witherspoon of Mississippi that he abruptly gult the committee room. Then a series of questions by Representative Gray of Indiana caused Mr. Gardner to resent vigorously what he said was an imputation that his recent campaign for an investmation of the military situation was in the interest of manufacturers of war materials. The representative called upon Mr. Gray to 'get up and prove his facts," but the latter had nothing further to say and the meeting ended. Will Meet Monday.

The committee will meet on Monday to complete the appropriation bill, the plan being to report it to congress before the holidays, if possible.

Representative Gardner's testimony was based largely on memoranda he had prepared, citing important points in the evidence of the naval officers and officials before the committee in reports of the general board of the navy. The war of vords which aroused Representative Witherspoon's indignation occurred after Mr. Gardner had finished his statement and submitted to a long cross-examination. He said he did not want his facts challenged later in congress and valuly ought an immediate expression from the

"Did you write any letter to any mercantile organization over the country?" Representative Gray asked when quiet had been restored.

that purpose?" "Do you mean to say 'am I in alliance with the manufacturers of material? | am paying every cent myself." "Didn't you send resolutions already prepared ?" "Absolutely not."

Mr. Gardner read a newspaper article which said it was intimated at the White House that the unpreparedness agitation came from persons allied with the producers of warlike materials.

"Now," he said, "I am tired of this kind, Explain to him wherein his explanations are unconvincing.

It was a result the meekest might have been proud of, but the New Army does not cultivate useless emotions. Their officers and their instructors worked over them patiently and coldly and repeatedly with their souls in the job, and with their souls, minds and bodies in the same job the men took—soaked up—the instructions of the local shopkeeper and the rising nephew of the big banker and the dumb but cunning carrier's lad receive instruction or encouragement to him wherein his explanations. "Now," he said, "I am tired of this kind of talk. In the first place, if any admiral or general tells the country what you need and ought to get, you say. ## A ROW AT INQUIRY The Man Behind Santa Claus

"Dad" pays for the Turkey, the Tree and Trinkets. He doesn't like to disappoint the folks. When you ask him what he wants for himself he says "There isn't anything I want; spend your money on someone else." But don't take him at his word. This is the store for Dad and other men. It is filled with things men like. Not the things women think men like, but things men buy for themselves. As gifts they cannot be surpassed, they speak of regard and save the expense of getting them some other time.
