WILL HAVE FAMILY REUNION

Han Lived in Omaha for Over Half a Century-Established the First Browery to Be Erected in Omaha.

While no longer young in years, as the man of life is measured, time has dealt Mindly with Fred Krug, ploneer resident and business man of Omaha. Although looking and appearing much younger Tuesday he will be 20 years of age. He will observe the anniversary in a quiet way at his home, surrounded by his chifdress and their children. It will be a family reunion, with, a family supper served

While Mr. Krug had not expected that the date of the anniversary of his birth was known by any except a limited number of intimate friends, it appears that he has been mistaken, for from near and far during the last week letters and telegrams of congratulations have been pouring in upon him until he is swamped under the volume of his mail. The let ters and measures all wish him many more long years of life and the good and pleasant things that come along with it

It had been planned to make the birthday celebration Tuesday just a family gathering, but indications are that its scope is likely to go far beyond this, for, be it known, already many of the men of Omaha, those from all walks of life, have asserted that at some time during it being looked upon by all classes of rethe day they propose to call upon Mr. speciable people as one of Omaha's best Krug and shake his hand and wish him features during the summer months when well, even if they can remain but for a it is open

Fred Krug has the right to be called plopeer of both Omaha and Nebraska, for he has resided here for more than half a century. All his possessions are here and this is his home.

Only poor little boys and girls will be given bags of candy and fruits from the municipal Christmas tree, which will be prepared in the Auditorium Christman

City Commissioner Dan B. Butler, who arranged for the Christmas tree, says there will not be enough candy and fruit to go all around to the boys of pros-perous parents and that the boys and girls who do not really need the gifts should give place to the poorer tots.

Merchants have responded generously to Commissioner Butler's request for gifts. Food, clothing, fuel and money have been received from many Omahans and arrangements have been made with the Associated Charities and the Visiting Nurse association to distribute the gifts where they will do the most good. Commissioner Butler is busily transporting gifts to the Auditorium and will send them out the day before Christmas. About fifty families will be aided.
