

Chicago Society

By MELLIFICIA. Tuesday, January 12, 1915.

HAPPENED across one of the Chicago papers last week and spied a little comment of interest to Omaha maids. This item annotated delicately on the fact of a little habit the Chicago bachelors are getting into of selecting their brides from elsewhere circles.

"It seems to be rampant among Chicago bachelors to seek their brides in other cities rather than their own. Perhaps this is because they want to cause a new sensation by introducing to Chicago society an altogether new face.

"However ardently the matrons of our exclusive circles may welcome these 'alien' brides, it is left to our wonder whether they approve altogether of having their own lovely belles won on their hands.

The paragraph further referred to the recent engagement of Mr. Robert Forgan of Chicago and Miss Elizabeth Congdon of Omaha, which was announced in Omaha at the Congdon home Christmas day.

McCague Surprised at Loveck in His Attitude to Omaha.

Much surprise was expressed by John L. McCague, chairman of the executive committee of the Commercial club, at the Washington dispatch printed in The Bee last Sunday saying that Congressman Loveck holds the business men of Omaha to be taking little interest in the retention of the Indian warehouse here.

"Mr. Loveck must know that the business men here are very interested in keeping the warehouse here," said Mr. McCague. "I am surprised that Congressman Loveck should make such a statement, if he is correctly quoted. The Commercial club sent two men to Washington to confer with the Department of Indian Affairs some weeks ago on this matter, and we have been active all along. We feel that the warehouse belongs here because of its proximity to the various reservations and the accessibility to railway service."

Pisteta, 108 Capitol avenue, William Hyland, driver at the fire station, Twelfth and Dodge streets, drove his team into the platform of the T. C. Brunner & Son building at Eleventh and Dodge streets, upsetting the wagon and himself, sustaining painful injuries.

Hyland was driving the supply wagon north of Eleventh when a street car frightened his team and as the child was directly in the path of the vehicle he turned the horse into the curb and in so doing the wagon struck the platform and turned completely over. Hyland was attended by Dr. T. T. Harris and removed to his home at 1706 South Fourteenth street.

NEW CHEF IS ALL FRENCH.

Has Had the Honor of Serving Two Crowned Heads at the Same Time in Europe.

TO FINISH NEW HOTEL ON TIME.

Possessed of the rare distinction of having served Kaiser William of Germany and the late King Edward VII of England at the same time, Charles Mayard, who has been a prominent hotel chef in half a dozen countries, has now come to Omaha to be "director of restaurant" at the $1,000,000 Fontenelle hotel, soon to be opened. "The very best cuisine layout of any hotel I have ever seen," is the way he expressed himself after inspecting the cafe and kitchen departments and equipment at the Fontenelle with President William R. Burbank. He is French through and through, and insists that his name be pronounced "My-yard."

He comes to Omaha from Hotel Onandaga, at Syracuse, N. Y., where Mr. Burbank placed him at the opening of that hotel, while the latter was manager there. Before that Mr. Mayard was chef at the St. Regis hotel, New York. Although still in his '30s, he has been "director of restaurant" at fine hotels in Paris and Nice, France; Weisbaden, Germany; Palermo, Italy; Cairo and Alexandria, Egypt, and other places. Decorators are now busy on the public rooms in the Fontenelle. When they complete their extensive work, shortly before February 15, the big hotel will be practically finished. Manager Vaughn of the Seiden-Breck Construction company declares that his firm will turn over the finished building on or before that date. A grand public opening of the Fontenelle will be held two or three weeks later.

WHY!

In the first place the average contractor has little or no knowledge of electrical or mechanical engineering, and often offers advice that proves very costly and an added expense to the building owner. By employing expert knowledge to plan a complete plant after a year or so of use, because of insufficient engineering in the first place. So why take chances.
