Correspondence of The Associated Press. AMSTERDAM, Jan. 6.-The sea mine is a problem even after it has been washed ashore, and for those who must destroy it this terrible enemy of shipping offers the same danger it does to the craw of the vessel it happens to wreck. This is the discovery made by the men under Lieutenant C. J. Canters, of the Amsterdam torpede boat station, READY TO TAKE UP WORK who has been charged by the Dutch government with the destruction of the nines that are washed ashore along the Netherland coast. So far no serious accident has come to the men who render the stranded sea mines innocuous by exploding them where they are found.
