EIGHT ARE BITTEN BY A BIG MAD DOG

Runs Wild in Wholesale District for an Hour Before He is Finally Killed with a Hatchet.

CLEANS OUT SEVERAL PLACES

A black and white our dog weighing about sixty pounds, went mad Friday afternoon and in an hour's time bit eight people, frightened probably ten times that many more, and was itself killed by a blow from a batchet in the hands of Arthur Rackley an employee of the Roach-Kastner Commission firm, 1103 Howard street.

The canine was first reported at Twentieth and Capitol avenue where after biting two men, whose names the police did not get, proceeded east on Capitol avenue

The United States Supply company Ninth and Farnam street was next visited by the brute who gained entrance to the place through an open rear door. Before the nature of the animal's all ment was fully understood, it had bitter Sam J. Hugg, 1622 Elm street, Henry Larson, 3803 Seward street and Henry Gaul, 2809 Binney street, all floormen employed by the firm. Other employees had meanwhile, mounted desks, radia tors, tables and any other place that promised refuge from the teeth of the maddened animal. Finally a red hot poker which had been left sticking in a stove, by one of the panic stricken occu pants, was snatched forth by Larson and thrown at the brute. The poker had the desired effect and the animal ran from the place, frothing at the mouth. Jack Byrne Bitten. .

From here it veered directly across the street, and as the door of the saloon in the Howard hotel was opened from within, dashed inside and immediately attacked Henry Rogers, the bartender, who received a slash from the animal's teeth on his right leg. Meanwhile on top of the bar were huddled four or five customers. Rogers, undaunted by his wound, drew a revolver and fired three shots at the dog as it dashed out of the door.

From the saloon the dog entered the open front door of the Roach-Kastner Commission house, where Roach, who was bending over a box, first became aware of its presence when it leaped on his coat with its teeth. With a small piece of board Roach then fought the animal for probably ten minutes, receiving fifteen separate wounds, while his clothing was literally torn to shreds. Rackley Kills Brute.

Almost exhausted from his strenuous efforts, Roach would have been in a bad way had not Art Rackley, an employe, entered the room and joined the battle. With a hand axe Raticy made a vicious swing at the animal, but missed. With a snari of rage the brute with bared in that region the correspondent says: fangs crouched a moment an the floor, then leaped directly at Rackley's throat. The heavy edge of the axe did its work. Meanwhile headquarters had dispatched Police Officer Jim Murphy, armed with one of the new shotguns provided by the department.

Although eight people were bitten by the dog, Roach is the only one confined to his home by reason of his experience. The head was sent to the Pasteur institute at Chicago.

Austrians and Germans Confer. Conferences between Austrian and German leaders as to the future con duct of the war against Russia and Servia are probably beginning today in Germany. Edward J. Malone, for the last five to go with J. L. Brandeis & Sons, and will become one of George Brandels' assistants in the management of the store Before coming to Hayden Bros., where he has had an active hand in the management of the affairs of that institution, Mr. Malone was paying teller in the Stock Yards National bank of South Omaha, having been placed in that position by John D. Creighton of this city. Ed Malone is one of the best known young men of Omaha, both in business and social circles, being a member of the Commercial club and Omaha Field club and prominent in the Associated Retailers of Omaha and other organizations.

"I regret very much to leave Hayden Bros., where my associations have been most pleasant, but I consider this a splendld opportunity for advancement which I must accept," said Mr. Malone.

"Yes, I am blad to say that Mr. Malone will join our force February 1," said George Brandels. "He will be one of my assistants in an executive capacity as charge of our entire credit system. I consider this one of the most important positions in a large retail establishment like ours, as it requires not only an intimate knowledge of credit lines, but a broad-minded policy, coupled with a forceful, tactful and pleasing personality, Mr. Malone possesses these qualifications to a marked degree, and many others that will make him a most valuable assistant to me, and I can only repeat that I am very glad he is to be connected with our house. He needs no introduction to the public of Omaha, as he is well known and has a host of friends throughout this part of the country.

June 9, 1912, by Justice of the Peace Claiborne. This she denied. She said she had been married to a mar named Heller from Toledo, but was di-

The stories of defendant and complainant were so diametrically opposite and the maze of alleged relations, marriages and divorces so intricate, that Commissioner Daniel at the conclusion of the hearing took the case under advisement and will decide Monday whether or not to hold Blomberg for the grand jury.

But let us refrain from any further discussion of the blame attached to this worst of wars. Each side has its explanations and excuses, and each side thinks it is in the right, and there is little to be gained by arguing about it. The important matter to consider is the making it impossible to have any more wars, big or little.

A lot of people, no doubt, consider world peace put on a permanent basis a myth of the dreamer, or else so remote as to be hardly worth considering seriously in these war-like times. I know that many consider the proposed court your cough. The first dose helps. Special attention should be given to the entlemen who, of late, have been tryng to scare us with absurd stories of unpreparedness, possible invasion and the like. I liken them to the man who was afraid to leave his home without having a lightning rod down his back because he heard that a man was once hit by a bolt while walking in the street. There is no greater chance of our republic being successfully invaded than there is of the gentleman strolling without a lightning rod being stricken

As I stated in an article I wrote recently for the Independent, it is preparation for war that brings on war. Two nations are continually preparing for 'the war that may come. and build and build, until their armies and navies grow to an enormous size. They become so imbued with military or well as our credit manager, taking full naval epirit that they bristle up like two bulldogs at any fancied wrong. It is only a question of time before they are tearing at each other's throats. The present war is an exact illustration of this, Milton has it, "What can war but endless wars still breed?" It is certain that 'preparation' begets "preparation." Not one of the great nations has the slightest desire to be other than friendly with the United States. We are a friend to all; an enemy of none. They could gain nothing by a war with us, nor would we by a war with them. We have no territorial ambitious, and only desire to be left alone As for this foolish talk of an invasion.

that is an impossible contingency. Imagine any country being able to successfully bring enough troops to accomplish anything worth while from a military standpoint from a point 3,000 miles off and attack a hundred millions of people? How Invading Army Could Be Forced to Surrender.

I have always said that if at any time any country was foolish enough to attempt invasion the best possible plan would be to make their landing as easy as possible, point out to them the best possible roads, and allow them to go as far as they desired to go inland. Then warn them to look out, and turn a million of our 16,000,000 of militia loose upon them. Getting in would be easy, but how to get out would result in surrender.

There is no other country in the world so well equipped to repel invasion or make it so hot for an enemy should he land as to make him exceedingly sorry he ever tried it.
