Matron Gibbons is Attacked by Woman Armed With Hatpins

"I've got a notion to kill you!" declared Mrs. John Wittenburg of Scuyler, Neb., to Police Matron Gibbons in the matron's quarters at the police station. Whereupon she attacked the matron with two hat pins and in the scuffle which ensued Mrs. Gibbons was stabbed twice in the left hand, and when Katy West, who is serving a short term, decided to take a hand, she too was stabbed in the back, shoulder and right arm. Mrs. Gibbons had noticed Mrs. Wittenburg ordering a large bill of goods at the Burgess-Nash store and her manner of speech, with the glare in her eye, convinced the matron the woman was queer. She called the patrol and Mrs. Wittenburg was taken to the station. While there she evinced no symptoms of insanity and the police were preparing to release her when she made her charge at the matron. Mrs. Wittenburg, who is a very powerful woman, had the matron backed up in a corner when the West girl took a hand and attempted to save Mrs. Gibbons. The police downstairs heard the commotion and Sergeant Samuelson and Officer Rooney hurried to the rescue in time to quell the riotous Scuyler woman. She was taken to St. Bernard's hospital in Council Bluffs.

No Railroad Credit, Says De Bernardi

"Although business is mighty good with us just now," says General Superintendent A. DeBernardi of the Missouri Pacific, in Omaha for a day, "railroad credit has not yet picked up, which accounts for the delay in starting the West Dodge street viaduct over the Belt line." "Business all over our system is active and very encouraging. Within a short time Vice President A. J. Pierpont of St. Louis will visit Omaha, at which time I expect he will make a statement as to the proposed improvements to be made here."

SOME WINNING CRUSADES OF TODAY TOLD BY CRAFTS

Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts of Washington, D. C., superintendent of the International Reform bureau, is engaged to speak Sunday afternoon at 4 p. m. at the Young Men's Christian association. He is making a tour of the west, speaking week days and Sunday, addressing churches, Young Men's Christian associations, high schools and conferences. The International Reform bureau is fighting the big four evils, intemperance, impurity, Sabbath breaking and gambling, and has secured the passage in congress of sixteen laws for the restraint of these evils. But this year the chief emphasis is on "Restoring and Improving Bible Reading in Public Schools."

OMAHA SCHOOLS PRAISED

Dry Goods Economist Wishes to Show Methods Used Here All Over the Country.

HOUSEHOLD ART PLEASES PAPER

Through R. B. Bunting, editor of the Dry Goods Economist, the course of study of the household art department of the Omaha Central High school is to be brought to the attention of the school officials of every city and town in the United States and will be recommended as a model course of study. Mr. Bunting received a copy of this course of study last Tuesday at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York City, while attending a meeting of buyers of dress fabrics. In a letter just received here Mr. Bunting states: "We believe that a course such as the one used in Omaha could be adopted in practically every city and town in the United States, and we intend to advocate something of the kind. Can we count upon your support? If you can tell us something of the methods adopted in your city, which lead to the presentation of the splendid course outlines, we would like to quote that, too. This had particular reference to the sewing classes in the department of household arts at Central High school, the work being under the direction of Miss Verle Williams, who started this branch last September. There are now 92 girls interested in this branch, which is given forty minutes each day, and is regarded as a regular high school study. Aims of Department: To teach girls to be intelligent buyers and consumers by the study of materials and the exercise of judgment in buying the mastery of construction, and the production of artistic articles in color, form and proportion. To create good taste, develop individuality and independence and to give the girls a better understanding of their duties pertaining to the home. The course is arranged so as to help girls who want the knowledge for their own use in their homes, for those who wish to make the work a basis for normal school or college and for those who wish to use it as a means of earning a livelihood after leaving the high school. The course embraces textiles, designs, sewing, costume sketching and designing, millinery and art needlework, house sanitation and decoration and various allied subjects. Superintendent E. U. Graff believes the Dry Goods Economist has paid the Central High school's household art department a high compliment. Coughs and Colds Dangerous. Don't wait, take Dr. King's New Discovery now. Miss Edith Tobitt Makes Economy Mark

With the careful planning of a good housekeeper, Miss Edith Tobitt, librarian of the public library, has been economizing during the last year to economize in every possible way in the administration of that institution. Her success in conserving the funds is shown in a report just made to the library board. Although most libraries in the United States spend an average of 50 cents to $1 for every new volume purchased, Miss Tobitt bought 12,770 books last year at an average price of only 39 cents. To further conserve the limited funds allowed the library by law, she also had all the rebindings done here, instead of on contracts with outside book binderies. Thus 7,734 books were rebound by the library's traction from a valuable booklist $39,000, age cost per volume of 7 cents, while bids made by outside binderies range upward from 39 cents per volume.

Made of batiste, prettily embroidered front and back in unconventional design; collar and cuffs of organdie, outlined with hemstitching and pleated organdie edge. Further ornamented through the use of dainty Valenciennes lace and fancy trimming buttons. A 11. Made of very distinctive material, shadow striped voile, with collar, cuffs and fold of organdie outlined with hemstitching. A simple, but with a striking and most refined style, having the appearance of a far more costly model. A 12. Made of voile. The embroidery in artistic design, the pretty flit lace edging collar and cuffs, the liberal use of hemstitching, the cluster of tiny ticks on front and back all unite to make of this an exceedingly charming and appealing style. A 10. The material here used is a cross-bar ratine, with convertible collar, cuffs and fold of poplin, Japanese pearl buttons used as a fastening and to ornament cuffs. All seams corded. The attractiveness of this model lies in the beauty of texture and simplicity of line and trimmings.

Petit Larcenists Have a New Graft

"My little boy just bought this medicine here and the doctor says not to use it. He gave us some of his own and I'd like to have my money back." A woman holding in her hand a bottle of a standard patent medicine was addressing a clerk at the Unit-Dosekal Drug company. "How long ago?" queried the clerk. "About two hours," responded the woman. "He didn't buy it here as I have been the only one on duty and I sold no such medicine to a little boy," declared the clerk. "But he did," asserted the woman, "I know he did." "How much did he pay for it?" asked the clerk. "Forty cents," said the woman. "Not in this store," grinned the clerk, "as it only costs 20 cents. Try it some place else. You're about the sixth one that has pulled that gag here." Whereupon the woman beat a hasty retreat. That pawnbrokers and petit larcenists are selling stolen patent medicines at various drug stores and where they can't sell it outright are trying the above method is information received by the police. Where they get the medicine is a mystery as drug stores are not missing it from their stock. One man tried to sell the Cleveland Drug company several dollars worth of standard patent medicine at a ridiculously low price. The police are investigating and expect to stop the newest graft shortly.

Madam--- Is Your Underwear Form-Fitting or Straight Lines?

Is it the usual form of knit underwear for women—cut on straight lines at shoulders, sleeves and armholes, stretched into shape by the wearer? Or is it Athena Underwear—tailored into shape by the maker? The slanting downward of the shoulders and sleeves shapes the garment to the correct lines of the wearer. Full bust and tapering back.

SEVEN SPECIAL FEATURES ASK TO SEE THEM

- THREE-CORNERED GUSSET—Relieves strain in garment at thigh. Insures greater comfort, longer wear.
PATENTED SEAT—Most notable improvement ever made in underwear designing, so shaped that it clings to the figure in any position.
PERFECTED SHOULDER-STAY—Keeps garment from stretching across shoulders, and holds sleeve in place.
CURVED-CUT ARMHOLE—Brings the garment snugly to the body, without unnecessary cloth, causing uncomfortable perspiration and tearing the armholes of one's best frock.
FITTED SHOULDER AND SLEEVE—Give natural form to bust and proper tapering to back.
EXTRA-ELASTIC CUFF—Holds the sleeve in place and keeps it from slipping up on the arm.
ATHENA LOW-NECK SLEEVELESS GARMENT is narrowed at back, with extra full bust—lower in front than at back. No slipping of shoulder-straps down over arms.
