Dream

of a land where the glorious sun shines every day and mother earth is daily try-ing to outdo herself; on awaking think of the pressures you could be enjoying in an ideal home on our rich colony lands— THEN ACT. It only takes a very small amount to make your reservation on 10 or more acres in the

Live Oak Colonies and you have six months to make your Inspection and selection. At the same time you can visit the great Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, at our expense.

Alfalfa Alfalfa is the finest of all forage crops and leads all others in yield and feeding qualities. In the Sacramento Valley and on our colony land alfalfa grows almost on our colony land aifalfa grows almost continually during every month of the year. Cutting begins in April and often continues as late as November. From three to six crops are cut each season. The yield of hay runs from one to two tons each cutting. Alfalfa brings from $7.00 to $9.00 per ton in the stack. It is seldom lower, and frequently considerably higher. The gross returns from an acre of alfalfa run from $40.00 to $100.00. The expense for handling is about the same as any other hay crop, except when irrigation is practiced, which increases the cost somewhat by water charges. If sown in the spring it yields half a crop that season: after that it will give a full crop.

HOGS-Receipts continued very light this morning, and with good, strong advices from other markets the local trade opened out fully 10c higher than yesterias's average, in fact, some of the shippers' early purchases were quoted as 100 lic up. Most sellers worked the market out for every bit of strength they could get before cutting loose, and for this reason trade never became very active, but the light supply was pretty well cleaned up by 10 c'clock. At one time offers eased off a little, and it looked as though the last end would be considerably weaker, but before long values were back on their early basis, and practically everything sold at fully 10c higher prices, in fact, the average is a big dime better than yesterday.

The long string landed at $6.90, with a very good showing on up to $6.95, and a sprinkling around $6.85. Values are now the highest they have been since January 7, when the day's offerings sold at an average cost of $7.

Supplies were estimated at 64 cars, or 4,000 head. Monday's storm has made a big cut in the supply for the week to date, and the three days' run total only 19,600 head, which is a shortage of 23,000 as compared with last week and almost 12,000 smaller than a year ago.

The range on lambs was anywhere from $5.5038.50. Both Mexican and fed western lambs sold at the top price today. The lamb sales included some on shearing and feeding account at $1.3207.15.

OMAHA, Feb. 3, 1915.
There has been more than a doubling of values on wheat since last summer. In fact few operators of today have ever witnessed an advance of 83%c in wheat values, and this has been made in seven m nits since the war started. The May wheat has become a fancy deal, owing to the exhaustion of stocks and also on account of the limited offerings. owing to the exhaustion of stocks and also on account of the limited offerings. There was practically no wheat on the market and the price jumped about 1c a minute. May wheat opened at a range. $1.57 to $1.64. It dropped back to $1.56% and then went up to $1.66 in a very few minutes. Toward the close of the market the May options began to decline.

Corn traders are mixed. The bears eay the market showed a small response to the flurry in wheat and it advanced 2c during the early hours of the market. The oats market is rather slow, and lis tendency is to follow the wheat and corn.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Lightning like breaks and a startling bulge, covering an extraordinary range of %40, demoralized the wheat market today and finally left prices unstrung at 4%c to 5%c under last night. Other net losses were: Corn. 3%c to 2%c, cate, 17,62c to 2%c, and provisions, 5c to 2%c.

In a selling panic at the outset, May wheat, which, however, was not so actively traded in as July, fell 3%c to $1.56% and then—but only for a few minutes—shot skyward to $1.56, a new high record of the war season.

Wild rumors of immediate probable opening of the Dardanellos and of beginning of negotiations for peace were what chiefly caused the collapse of wheat at the start. Stoppage of export demand was responsible in the main for subsequent depression, it being said that steamship companies were making expensive and difficult requirements on account of German submarine attacks.

Heavy calls for margins on speculative holdings had put the wheat trade in a position where only a spark was needed to bring about wild fire selling on the part of dealers unable to stand the severest strain. Besides the recent big advances had squeezed out shorts and left the market without support until substantial warehouse concerns and Prices on Board of Trade. Fresh speculative buying, which previous days had been so influential on new upturns was lacking, however, in the latest instance of a bulge and there was evident a decided movement of conservative firms to let wheat alone as much as possible and to confine investments more strictly to coarse grain, and provisions. Margin calls of 30c a bushel on wheat were not unusual, a rate said to exceed any ever previously asked in Chicago. Coffee Market.

Corn resisted solling pressure better than wheat, although rural offerings of corn to arrive showed an increase and there was no urgent slipping inquiry from the east. Exporters were in fact reselling in some instances.

Oats like corn followed the general lead of wheat. The principal selling came from longs realizing profits.

Pork developed considerable strength at one time in sympathy with higher prices for hogs. Packers were free sellers, nevertheless, and in the end all provisions as well as grain were quoted at a decline as compared with last night.
