The case brought before the Interstate Commerce commission by Sioux City, Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City against the Nebraska railroads, charging that the roads are discriminating in favor of Omaha, is looked upon by traffic experts as one of the most important interstate commerce proceedings that has ever been before the commission from the standpoint of Omaha as a distributing point. IOWA IS RELEASED FROM STORM'S GRIP

While Iowa has been released from the grip of the blizzard and the storm has entirely ceased, there is a strip of country, up and down through the central portion of the state, 100 to 125 miles in width that is still buried beneath twelve to eighteen inches of snow that fell Sunday, Monday and during a portion of Tuesday. The railroads have pushed their trains through the storm zone and today freight and passenger equipment is moving on schedule time.

While train service is back to normal, telegraph lines are still in bad shape and it will be sometime Thursday before the poles and wires are up so that the business can be carried on without interruption. For twenty-four hours there was not a through telegraph wire working across Iowa. Shortly after midnight one Chicago wire was whipped into shape and this morning there were half a dozen or so in service.

Officers of the telegraph companies regard the Iowa storm as one of the worst in years. All Tuesday Des Moines and practically all the cities and towns in the central portion of the state were cut off from the eastern connections. The Omaha business of the Western Union was routed to Chicago by way of San Francisco, thence to Los Angeles, thence to Dallas, and from there on by way of St. Louis.

Miles of Wire Down. The Western Union people figure that when the storm ceased, in Iowa 4,000 miles of wire and 400 miles of poles were down. The pole lines down were distributed along the railroads as follows: Milwaukee, 140; Rock Island, 100; Burlington, 100 and Northwestern, 80 miles. The longest stretch of interrupted service was along the Milwaukee, between Marion and Perry, where 250 poles were down and for 100 miles the entire telegraph system out of service.

In repairing the lines, the telegraph companies have sent large gangs of men from Omaha, Chicago and local points. The work of reconstruction and repair is being pushed night and day and will be continued until every line is back in service.

Charley Mitchell, Milwaukee conductor, who came in from Marion, asserted that the storm through Iowa was the worst in years. It extended from Marion well out toward Manila. It started first with a heavy rain that later turned into sleet and finally into snow. Then the wind raised, and for hours there was a terrific blizzard. The sleet and snow froze to the telegraph wires and they soon went down under the heavy load.

Throughout Nebraska the weather is clear and calm, according to the reports to the railroads. There is a light wind, and early this morning temperatures ranged from 18 to 24 degrees above zero.

E. H. WOOD IS TAKEN TO HOSPITAL FOR TREATMENT

Wood, freight traffic manager of the Union Pacific, stricken with paralysis several days ago, has been taken to Clarkson hospital, not because of his condition being more serious, but in order that he may have electric treatment that could not be given at his home. Mr. Wood is steadily gaining the use of his arm and leg and also gaining strength. He is able to walk about his room, has the use of his arm and can converse with friends who call.

HOTEL MEN RACING MAN WITH SCYTHE

Big Army of Skilled Workmen Battle to Finish Fontenelle in Time for the Opening.

IS GOING TO OPEN ON TIME

The well known bee hive has long been the symbol of industry and accomplishment.

But the Fontenelle hotel now is as busy as a whole apiary of bee hives.

It is scheduled to open this evening with the grand banquet of the stockholders.

And it is going to open, too, if the upholsterers and the carpenters, and the gas fitters and the wall paperers and the painters, and the electricians, and the telephone men, and the linen drapers, and the silver men, and the crockery men, and the china men, and the polishes, and the sweepers, and all the other men and women who are working day and night to get things into shape keep up the pace.

For it is a race with time. Time is usually represented as an aged and somewhat decrepit gentleman with long whiskers.

Father Time Can Run. He is further handicapped by carrying an hourglass and a large and unwieldy scythe.

But, oh, how the old boy can run! Nobody knows his speed better than the man who is striving to get a great big hotel into running order at a given hour, said given hour being and a wee bit too close to the fore part of the year.

At 2:30 p. m. today the working forces in the hotel were just a nose ahead of the whiskered old gentleman referred to above.

The noise of hammers and saws was heard in the building, and the smell of paint, the brocade paneling was being put into place in the handsome lobby. A force of men was putting down the carpet in the big dining room and another force was fixing up the beautiful chandeliers, while a third force in this room was draping the window curtains.

Six auto trucks were backed up at the Eighteenth street entrance at noon unloading mattresses and springs, while a procession of men, like ants, carried them into the building.

Thousand at Work. So it was all over the hotel. There must have been at least 1,000 people at work in the building.

The outside, too, began to take on a finished and even festive look when the big, built-in window boxes at the main floor windows were filled with green growing things and a temporary winter crop of artificial crimson flowers.

Arrangements for the big banquet of the stockholders to be held Thursday evening are completed.

William R. Burbank, president and managing director of the operating company is slightly ill and may not be present.

Burglar Takes $166 from Home of Mrs. Clemons

A fortunate burglar made a fruitful haul from the home of Mrs. Jennie Clemons, 905 North Twenty-first street. The burglar, whom Mrs. Clemons reports was a negro, found a bureau drawer containing $166 during his meanderings around the house. The police are now on the trail of the thief.

Ed Delaney, 421 Carter street, reports to the police that when he was absent a marauder broke down the rear door and ransacked the house, finding a gold watch, several necklaces, rings and a diamond set pin for his pains.

Sneak thieves are extending their operations to downtown hotels. The latest theft was that of a gold watch and $3 cash from the room of Miss Jessie Kennedy at the Rome hotel.

Suele Kirchner of the Lord Lister hospital, reports to the police that a diamond ring, $3 and a gold chain was taken from her room Tuesday.

Colder Weather is Great Help to the Growing Crops

The quick change in the weather from warm to cold has relieved much of the anxiety felt by the railroad men in charge of lines in Omaha territory.

Word comes to the general offices here that the colder weather has stopped thawing of the snow in the country, checked the flood waters and that all danger of flood has about passed.

The railroad men contend that the colder weather will be beneficial to the winter wheat, asserting that had warm weather continued the plant would have made a rapid growth and then when the cold weather that is expected next month arrived the tender shoots would have been killed.

NURSE DENIES LIABILITY IN HEAVY DAMAGE SUIT

Miss Ellen Stewart, head nurse at Clarkson Memorial hospital, has filed a reply in district court, denying all responsibility in the suit for $20,000, filed some time ago against the hospital, the head nurse and Dr. A. E. Somers by Mrs. Gladys E. Short.

The latter alleged in her petition that she had been damaged to the amount of $20,000 by jumping out of an unbarred fourth story window of the hospital, while delirious and neglected by the attendants.

LATE MODEL REVOLVER IS CAUSE OF HOLDING TRACY

Ed Tracy, who asserts he is a discharged soldier from the United States army, was arrested near Hanscom park by Special Officer Cashman and charged at the station with carrying concealed weapons. A fine .38-caliber revolver which Tracy declared was a model discarded by the army was found on his person, together with a box of shells. The fellow said he bought it at an army post for protection, as he was heading his way to his home in Portland, Ore.

The revolver, however, proved to be of a very late pattern, which is by no means out of vogue, so the fellow was held on the above charge and bound over to the district court with $500 bonds.

Two Umps in A. A.

According to comment around the American association circuit it is a 100 to 4 shot that the association will use the double umpire system this year, instead of President Chivington's argument to the contrary. "We won't believe it," major league ball without two umpires, seems to be the sentiment of the fans.

BANK BOOKKEEPING LOOSE

System of Debiting and Crediting Matters' Account in Sutton Institution Poor.

PASS BOOK AND LEDGER DIFFER

The system of debiting and crediting the account of Thomas H. Matters in the First National bank of Sutton, which failed November 3, 1913, was decidedly loose, according to testimony given in federal court Wednesday morning.

President Melchior Luebben completed his fourth day on the witness stand in the trial of Thomas H. Matters of Omaha, charged with aiding and abetting Luebben in illegal operations connected with the banking.

On December 27, 1912, Matters' pass book showed he had an overdraft of $1,455, while on the bank's ledger he had $29 to his credit. Four days later his pass book showed the same overdraft and the bank's ledger showed he had a balance of $12.

Various checks in favor of the Sutton bank signed by Matters were introduced and the defense asked Luebben to show where Matters had received credit for these checks on the books of the bank. In the case of each check Luebben replied: "He received no credit," but it developed later that Matters had received certificates of deposit for the checks.

Luebben has developed during his long grind on the witness stand from a very poor witness to a very good one.

At the opening of the trial he responded very slowly to questions, he forgot and at times he seemed dazed. Now he replies quickly, concisely, and seems to have a full grasp of the intricate affairs which are slowly being pried into.

Yesterday was the twelfth day of the trial. Vague questioning by attorneys for the defense brought a rebuke from Judge Youmans, who called the general questioning, "fishing." They were entitled to direct answers to specific questions, he said: "But the questions must be made specific and the trial must proceed without unnecessary delay."
