Time of Receiving and Sending Will Show on Message

Hereafter everyone will know by his message just what time it was filed at the telegraph office and just what time it was received.

The Western Union Telegraph company announces that while hitherto only a code was used to designate the time a message was filed, beginning March 1, the time of filing will be printed in plain figures on each and every day message or day letter.

Thus when one receives a message he may know by glancing at the upper corner just what time the sender filed it and by glancing at the figures denoting the time it was received at destination may know how long it has been in transmission. He then need not call the office to satisfy himself on this matter, in cases in which he has reason to believe there has been unnecessary delay. Hitherto the record of the time of filing was kept at the office in a code system for the information of the office, and was given up to anyone receiving a message who came in and inquired about it. But it did not go out on each and every message for the information of the recipient.

Building Managers to Have Banquet at New Hotel Tonight

E. M. Slater, chairman of the banquet committee of the Omaha Building Owners and Managers' association, has been one of the busiest men in the city for a week. He has even quit selling real estate while he is selling tickets for this annual banquet, which is to be held this evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Fontenelle hotel. Chairman Slater says he can now predict the year will be over seventy-five percent.

Carl E. Herrington is to be toastmaster. Thomas R. Kimball is to speak on the construction of the Fontenelle hotel building, speaking from the standpoint of the architect who drew the plans for the great structure, he is to tell the whole story of the building. J. E. Randall of Chicago, president of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, is to be the principal speaker.

OMAHA ARTIST'S WORK SHOWN IN EXHIBITION

Special interest is attached to this year's exhibit of the Omaha Society of Fine Arts at the Fontenelle, owing to the fact that at least four paintings by members of the Omaha Art Guild will be represented in the collection. The showing of local artists' work is a decided innovation in connection with the public library. They were the gifts of Enos A. Mills, the Long's Peak naturalist, who visited here recently. He took the pictures himself.

C. N. Dietz, president of the library board, had the photographs framed and hung. The likeness of the sheep was taken with a telescopic lens, and the bear cub was a pup of a mink, who had a tame pair of them, "Johnny" and "Jennie," about which he wrote a book.

TWO ANIMAL PHOTOGRAPHS PRESENTED TO LIBRARY

Enlarged photographs of a Rocky mountain sheep and a grizzly cub have been hung in the children's room of the public library. They were the gifts of Enos A. Mills, the Long's Peak naturalist, who visited here recently. He took the pictures himself.

OMAHAN WRITES OF STRIFE IN BELGIUM

Cailliez, Visiting Relatives, Finds Opportunity to Assist Them to Escape.

DESCRIBES HORRORS OF WAR

The story of an Omaha man, who returned to Belgium, his native land, last summer, and happened to arrive just in time to save his relatives from becoming war victims and enduring much suffering, is told in letters just received here by Martin Vandorp, a workman at St. Cecilia's parish house, 701 North Fortieth street, and by Richard Yager, a baker, living at 1228 South Thirtieth street.

Hector Cailliez is the name of the Omaha man who chanced to be visiting his people in the old country, just as the war broke out. He describes war conditions, including alleged atrocities by Germans.

Writing January 28 from Paris, to which city he and his relatives escaped, Cailliez describes war horrors as follows:

"The Germans bombarded Belgium, but they can't boast much about it, because there were about twenty-five Germans to each Belgian soldier, and they were ten times better armed. Their soldiers were all at the front before they declared war, and yet they had a hard time to capture Lille and Namur."

"After the Germans captured those places, their soldiers were lying dead in heaps. We Belgians had cannon like cigarettes, compared with the German cannon."

Cailliez states in his letters that he had been fighting so hard that he had no chance to write, and that for weeks at a time he had no rest except occasional naps on damp straw. He says there was much suffering in and around the town Vandorp came from. Only when the Germans turned their big guns on Antwerp and forced its surrender, did the Belgians admit their defeat, he asserts.

Tells of Fighting at Ypres.
"But we held them back again by the river Ypres, and fought there with the Germans thirty yards away," he continued. "We held them off for three weeks, and every time a German or Belgian raised his head he was shot. Some days the German shells fell in our trenches like hail from the sky."

The shells also fell on the farm house of Cailliez's parents and two brothers and two sisters in the Ypres region, he writes. When the country was almost devastated by the war and his people faced death, he secured leave of absence and helped them flee to Paris by night. Their home was burned soon after and all their goods were destroyed.

The family has 30,000 francs, or $5,000, in coin, buried beneath their house. After the battle passed beyond the place Cailliez returned there, dug up the money and succeeded in taking it to his father in Paris.

The Omaha man is now nursing wounds received at the front. He was in this city for nine years, although he never became an American citizen. He worked as a houseman in the homes of wealthy Omahans.

"I'm glad I happened to be visiting in Belgium when the war started," he writes. "If I hadn't been there, I'm afraid my people would have starved or been killed, as there would have been nobody to help them out of the country. There is not a wall standing now where the folks used to live."

Salts Fine For Aching Kidneys

We eat too much meat, which clogs kidneys, then back hurts and bladder bothers you.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.

Receding Gums From Microbes and Acids

Beauty and health depend much upon the condition of one's teeth and care should be taken of them. You don't carry decayed food in your finger. Why carry food in the cavities and crevices of your teeth? asks the N. Y. World. Many show yellow or brown coatings on the teeth, or a blackened condition inside. Then comes a little microbe that thrives and multiplies, bore holes, makes crevices and infests the upper and lower ranges of teeth. Then comes sore or bleeding gums, spongy or swollen gums, loosened teeth, teeth dropping outward, exudations, odors offensive to you and everyone, gums shrink away from the necks of the teeth, sensations come from drinking hot or cold, eating sweets, etc. The teeth rebel, the nervous system is impaired.

Now these conditions can be readily overcome. You can destroy the microbes, rid the teeth of yellow coating, stop soreness over night—if you will just get four ounces of fluid organ from your druggist. You won't need more, and you'll feel a spontaneous morning, noon and night, rocking it to and fro in your mouth a minute or so. You awake with a clean mouth, sensitiveness gone, teeth firm, strong. No need for gold fillings.—Advertisement.

WHY FARMS ARE DESERTED

L. S. Herron Blames Speculative Value of Land for Movement Away.

TELLS THE ECONOMIC CLUB

"Twenty-eight counties in Nebraska lost rural population between 1900 and 1910, while in seven counties at the end of this decade 50 per cent of the farming population were tenants," declared L. S. Herron of Lincoln, editor of the Nebraska Farmer, to the Economic club at the court house last night.

The speculative value of lands, Mr. Herron asserted, has proved to be responsible for this as the small farm is fast being absorbed by the wealthier farmer, while the average man who wishes to establish a farm is unable to do so owing to the prohibitive value of the soil.

The lack of profits in farming for the greater class of farmer, the tenant, is also attributed to the same cause as the rental of lands, based on the inflated values, practically eats up the greater part of the earnings of the renter.

The decay of the rural schools Mr. Herron lays to the owners of the land who offset any attempt on the part of their tenants to improve their conditions by the timeworn excuse that the resulting tax rate will be too much for them to bear.

As a result of these conditions the farm lands which are occupied by the average tenant are not improved by them beyond bare necessity, the farming community does not keep pace with the growing needs of the people, and instead of farmers sticking to the land, the majority are looking about for another field into which to divert their energies and ability. This Mr. Herron cited as the problem of the rural population today.

The speaker was introduced by William F. Baxter, who presided at the meeting. A committee of three comprising C. F. Harrison, H. W. Morrow and W. T. Graham has been appointed by the league to determine whether a platform be established by the Economic league, or as to what action the body shall take in regard to the coming election. The committee will report at the next meeting.

Confirm New Trade Board Nominations

WASHINGTON, March 3.—In executive session late tonight the senate confirmed the nominations of four of the five members of the Federal Trade commission, withholding confirmation only from George Rublee, progressive of New Hampshire.

Republicans vigorously opposed Mr. Rublee, and debate on his name continued after the others had been appointed. The indications were that the executive session might last until morning.

The four whose nominations were confirmed are: Joseph E. Davies, Wisconsin; Edward N. Harley, Illinois; W. J. Harris, Georgia; and W. H. Barry of Seattle, Wash.

BOIL YOUR WATER WARNS CONNELL

Health Commissioner Finds an Unusual Percentage of Free Ammonia in City Water.

NO TYPHOID BACILLI PRESENT

Health Commissioner R. W. Connell has just made another chemical examination of the city water and he finds an unusual percentage of free ammonia, which is an element not removed by the clarification process used at the Florence station.

The doctor states that it would be well for householders to boil for the next few weeks city water used for drinking and cooking purposes. He does not regard the free ammonia as particularly dangerous, but he explains that boiling would be a safeguard.

The free ammonia has increased from an average of ten parts to sixty-five parts per cubic centimeter.

This examination shows that there is no typhoid bacilli in the water at this time, the element being the dangerous feature which frequently causes typhoid fever and other diseases.

The murky condition of the water is due to unusual conditions in the territory drained by the Missouri river, the health commissioner and the general manager of the water plant state.

There have been numerous complaints recently regarding the condition of city water.
