Viaduct on Dodge Street Sleeps in City Council's Care

The whole situation with reference as to what is to be done with Dodge street where it crosses the Belt Line, in the western part of the city, still slumbers in

Recently, when Vice President Plerson and Superintendent D'Bernardi were in the city, they held a meeting with the city council and went over the Dodge street crossing situation. To the council they presented two propositions. One was to build a viaduct over the tracks on the line of Dodge street, and the other was to elevate, so that there would be an overhead crossing. The last nimed plan contemplated the elevation of the tracks from about Dovenport, south to Jones

At the meeting the officials of the Missouri Pacific expressed a willingness for either course, leaving the council to designate which was more desirable. The decision was to be made by the council and Mayor Dahlman was to make the announcement. Since then the council has made no report, either to the public or the Missouri Pacific ratiroad officials, though the latter are patiently waiting.

The assertion is made that the Missouri Pacific is ready to begin work on the Dodge street crossing and push it to completion, but that no action can be taken until the city council decides upon what

Who Owns Omaha Postoffice Comes

"Who owns the postoffice in Omaha?" was a question raised in the office of Harry Pearce, register of deeds, when an investigation of the records of the office was caused by a letter received from Theodore H. Berg, city clerk of Lincoln.

So far as the records show the site for a quarter of a century has been owned by five individuals, a church and a bank. No record of the acquisition of the property by the federal government is to be

In consequence questions put by Mr. Berg as to the price paid for the site by the government and the persons from whom it was purchased must be left unanswered.

According to the records, the lots forming the block on which the pestoffice is located are owned by the following: Union National bank, James H. McShane, Central United Prosbyterian congregation, Byron Reed, Mary M. Reed, Benjamin R. Folsom and Dennis

BRIEF CITY NEWS MARKET WEEK THIS YEAR BIG SUCCESS

More Merchants Attend Than Ever Before and All Boost the Omaha Stunt.

COME FROM HALF DOZEN STATES

Omaha jobbers say there are more perchants from adjoining states in Omaha buying their stocks of goods this present merchants' week than ever before. The wholesale houses are well sprinkled with men from Wyoming, Montana, Kansas, Dakota and Iowa. Kansas is especially well represented. One of the Kansas fellows, Mr. McDonald of the Boyle Furniture company of Beloit. Kan., says all Kansas is looking for a great crop and a good year's business this year. He says the snow on the entire wheat belt is looked upon as espe cially favorable.

J. M. Ray of Hurley, S. D., says condi tions in his territory are good and that Plumbing Thieven Busy-James Mc- Dakota is optimistic. Best of All Market Weeks. C. H. Pickens of the Paxton-Gallagher Wholesale Grocery company says: "Taking the weather and snow blockade into consideration, this has been the best and most enthusiastic market week Omaha has ever had. We have had more people in here every day than we ever had during a merchants' market week. The week has been a success in every way." Boy Byrne of the Byrne-Hammer company says: "It has been an unqualified success in every way. The immense mooess insures the permanence of the merchant market as an institution. Already the committee is planning on new features for the merchants' market week in the fall, and the visitors from distant points are all expressing their intention of coming again for the fall week when the date is definitely set. The purchases have been very substantial and, in fact, somewhat larger than the whole sales had actually anticipated."

Visitors Are Satisfied. Joe Kelly of M. E. Smith & Co. says: Everything has worked out according to the best expectations. The attendance has been larger than ever before, and if the heavy snow and partial blockade had not occurred just as it did, the crowds would have been larger than we could well have taken care of. General satisfaction is expressed by the merchants from out in the state and adjoining states at the character of the entertainment afforded during the week. The ultimate result of these merchants' market weeks is to be to cement all the wholesale and jobbing houses together into united effort toward these features, since we have largely eliminated the trade excursions. Trade excursions are well, and we get out and see the fellows, but it is better to get them here. It creates a better impression in their minds to have them see what we have in Omaha, rather than merely to go out and tell them about it. This merchants' crowd this week is a good buying crowd." Don Lee of Beebe & Runyan company says: "This is the banner market week. The jobbers are all well pleased. There are a great many buyers here from Up at Court House Wyoming, Montana, the Dakotas, Kani sas and Iowa. They are all feeing good and the business is brisk."
