

LOCAL ART PATRONS PLAN ORGANIZATION

Men to Form Auxiliary Association at Banquet at Hotel Fontenelle Tuesday.

IMPORTANT OMAHA MOVEMENT

Omaha men who formed an auxiliary association to assist the Fine Arts association in purchasing pictures, will be hosts at a dinner in the banquet room of the Hotel Fontenelle next Tuesday evening, to which their families and members of the Fine Arts association will be invited.

Prof. Fred Morrow Fling has agreed to be present and to speak on "Art and Life." An effort is being made to have F. Hopkinson Smith also present. All friends of art who desire to participate in the organization will be welcome.

Mr. Webster said about 200 prominent men have each subscribed $5 per year for five years for this cause. Important plans for the advancement of art in Omaha are understood to be involved in the movement. A musical art gallery has been suggested.

Gadski in Recital.
Madame Johanna Gadski, prima donna soprano, one of the most beloved as well as one of the most famous singers of the world at the present day, was heard in song recital at the ball room of the Fontenelle last evening under the management of Miss Evelyn Hopper.

Madame Gadski not only possesses a voice of wonderful power and range, but also those rare artistic qualities which make the interpretation of each song a work of art in itself, as it radiates the lights and shades of her expressive temperament. There are few indeed who acquire the exquisite pianissimo, the warmth and variety of tone color which is found in the work of Madame Gadski, and the dramatic fire and intensity with which she clothed several of the larger numbers thrilled even the most indifferent listeners. The program was divided into three parts: German Classical Songs, of which the exquisite "Der Nussbaum," Schumann, was entrancingly sung; the "Nachstueck" and "Hark, Hark, the Lark" by Schubert, the first with its calm beauty of melody and the second with its joyous charm were among the most attractive of the evening. "Hark, Hark, the Lark" was graciously repeated. "Pur Musik" by Franz showed the broad musicianship of the singer, and "Willkommen in Wald" was given with a brilliancy.

When Madame Gadski returned in acknowledgment of the applause, and the first few cords of the Schubert-Liszt "Erstling" were recognized, the audience applauded again with joy. Here the art of the singer is given full opportunity, and the remarkable manner in which she brought out not only the three distinct voices of the father, the son, and the Erl king, but in which the mood of each was depicted and the dramatic finish was all that could be demanded.

A group of English songs followed. Madame Gadski's English pronunciation is not yet as clear as one would wish, and sometimes could not be understood. The songs were carefully chosen and presented with all the fascination and charm of the singer's art. "The Rose's Cup," by Ward-Stephens, was a lovely number, sung with fairylike daintiness and grace. "The Little Gray-Blue Dove," with its birdlike trills and intervals, completely captivated the audience and was repeated. "Calm as the Night," by Bohm, was sung with intensity and musical fervor, and was likewise repeated. The two songs by Gilmour were of exceptional interest. "Home to the Highlands," which was full of refreshing Scotch atmosphere, and the "Lumber Song," presented with the utmost repose and tenderness, in which the delicate pianissimo work of the singer was a delight. The encore this time was the well-known "Little Irish Girl."

Gadski again proved that her fame in opera is well deserved, the dramatic fire, the breadth and the brilliancy with which she sang the group of Wagner arias atesting. Of the three the writer especially enjoyed Elma's admonition to Ortrud: "Du Arme!" from "Lohengrin." "The Spring Song" from "The Valkyrie" closed the program and contains a dramatic climax which is most convincing. The enthusiasm of the audience was great, and at the close they would not be content until the prima donna had returned and sung the famous "Call of the Valkyrie," which is especially Gadski's own, not only once, but three times. Madame Gadski was assisted by Powell Weaver, who accompanied most sympathetically and who played the Chopin "Scherzo in B minor" and the "Canzonetta del Salvatore" by Liszt, in a thoroughly musicianly manner. The recital was followed by a reception to the artists, which many of the audience attended.

Put Stomach in Fine Condition

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heart-burn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices. Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.—Advertisement.

WOODMEN FAIR IS NOW OPEN

MONEY TO FURNISH THE HOME

A fair which will continue every evening this week opened Monday in the newly completed home of Druid camp, No. 24, Woodmen of the World, at Twenty-fourth and Ames avenue.

The handsome building measures 60x150 feet and is two stories high, with a basement besides. It is in every respect a modern club house with its large halls and meeting rooms, bowling alleys, library, pool and billiard rooms, kitchen, dining room, etc.

The attendance Monday night was very large, considering it was the opening night. It was far greater than the promoters expected. The big room was beautifully decorated and the many booths were gay with decorations.

There was thriving business right from the start. This is a really big carnival with prizes that are worth striving for, including a round-trip ticket to the Panama canal, two bicycles, several gold watches, etc.

"Country store," "fishpond" and the like helped to add to the gaiety of the occasion. The women had a special booth, where they sold some very pretty fancy work.

The directors of the building and of the carnival are Edward L. Foster, Philip Steyer, M. L. Endres, H. H. Bode and James E. Davis.

Druid camp is one of the largest and most enterprising Woodmen camps, having 800 members. The women's Welcome grove, Woodmen Circle, number upward of 200.

George Washington—"Father of His Country"

EVERY AMERICAN knows that without "Immortal Washington our National Independence would have been impossible. Few, however, know that the greatest battle of Washington's life was fought to secure for his countrymen the Constitution of the United States. Almost immediately after the Revolution it seemed that all the great sacrifice of blood and treasure had been in vain. The original thirteen states refused to work in harmony, either in spirit or in law. The new Republic was tottering to its foundations. At this critical period in American history the most brilliant men of each state met in convention and unanimously elected Washington as President—undoubtedly the most momentous gathering of the kind the world has ever known. Here he displayed as great ability as law-maker as he had as a warrior. For months the Fathers of the Republic labored, and finally adopted our present National Law, which forever guarantees Religious, Commercial and Personal Liberty. This was in 1787. Seventy years later Anheuser-Busch established their great institution upon the tenets of the Federal law which Washington did so much to create. Like all of the great men of his time, he was a moderate user of good old barley brews. For three generations Anheuser-Busch have brewed honest malt and hop beers. To-day 7500 people are daily employed to keep pace with the ever-increasing public demand. The great popularity of their famous brand—BUDWEISER—due to quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor, has made its sales exceed those of any other beer by millions of bottles.

Budweiser Means Moderation

Used by other cars—Yes! —but not in a Studebaker

And the reason is simply that Studebaker doesn't dare to. For those designs listed over on the side are "old-timers" in engineering. They aren't the new ideas in building a car. Long ago they gave place to BETTER designs. And while other manufacturers may cling to them, because they don't care to go to the manufacturing expense that extensive changes in design incur—Studebaker CANT.

For, you see, when a man comes to look at a Studebaker, he EXPECTS quality. Price is rarely the attraction. He has in mind the QUALITY, the ideals in manufacturing that name of Studebaker has stood for so long. He expects a reasonable price—yes! For he knows that Studebaker is one of the largest organizations in existence devoted to the building of cars. And in a series of plants that have a capacity of 1000 cars a week, it is only natural to expect low manufacturing costs—and therefore, low prices.

But first of all, he looks for QUALITY. And Studebaker, of course, couldn't afford to have a man find a semi-floating rear axle in this FOUR, when everybody knows that type of axle has long since given place to the SAFER, more accessible FULL-floating Rear Axle. Couldn't afford, for example, to have him find drive thro' the springs—when GOOD design calls for drive thro' radius rods so as to free the springs from all possible strains. And so with every detail. IT HAS to be the highest quality and the latest design that is approved by engineers. And so the things listed at the side, you WONT find in a Studebaker—

because it's a
