

ROURKES AND SOX LOSE TO JUP PLUY

Score is Deadlocked When a Damp and Enthusiastic April Shower Takes a Hand.

VAN SICKLE RUINS BLUE SUIT

The meek and lowly White Box scrub dashed gaily into this fair city yesterday and splashed smack into one of Jup Piny's celebrated April showers. The said shower occurred during the fifth round and Umps Van Sickle was forced to call the game with the score dead-lacked at I to 2. As it was, the umps ruined a per-fectly good blue-serge suit before he terminated the pastime.

Tom Blodgett and a ling, lanky youth named Lathrop, were the opposing hurlers. Hindgett was crawled for seven blows, but it so happened only two counts were registered. On the other hand Lathrop permitted only three, but two came in the first stance following a base on balls and a fielder's choice so that our ide scored just as many.

During this excitement a fog and mist enveloped the park and evidenced signs of approaching rain. At the start of the fifth the mist became heavier and after the Chicago says had batted a young delige started. The Fox pleaded with Van Binkle to cell the game, but Van took a chance on the blue suit and let it proceed until the horse folks had their bat. Thep he called the fray and hied himself to a tallor shep for new dude to display before the Saturday crowd.

The Sox will pit themselves against the Etouries again this atternoon. The same will start at 3 c olock. Score:

"What do you mean - ignition point?"

"I mean the temperature at which gasoline will vaporize so that it can be exploded by a spark."

"Humph! same às boiling point?

"Practically"

"And you say ignition point is the real test for gasoline? "The only real test."

"But I've always thought it depended on gravity - the higher the gravity the better the gas.

"That's a motor-myth. Low gravity gas has more kicks in it-more heat units - and provided the ignition point is right, it's better to use and costs less when you figure miles per gallon."

"Then instead of high gravity, I'm to ask for-"

"Ask for Red Crown Gasoline. It's simpler. The gravity is right, the ignition point is right, and more than that Red Crown is always the same wherever you get it. And just as a matter of precaution, you ought to ask for Polarine when you're buying oil - its the standard oil for all
