Countess Telecki Pastry Cook in Kurhaus Hospital

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.) VENICE, April 22.-One of the finest of the new war hospitals which have sprung into being all over Austria-Hungary during the last eight months is the Zita Kurbaus in Budapest. It consists of seventy-two wards, each a separate building. The site is a large tract of land on the edge of the city, formerly the property of Butgarian truck farmers.

The whole enterprise, originally de-signed to house the incoming field of Polish refugees, was completed in three weeks, and the Hungarians point with great pride to this accomplishment of their engineering experts. It has been filled from the start. No untrained nurses are employed. but volunteef workers, many of them women of social prominence in Budapest, are used in the kitchens and offices. The Countess Telecki, for instance, has acquired a considerable reputation for her work at the pastry machines, and one of the most popular pastries in Hungary is now known as the Telecki plum-tart.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.) LONDON, April 23.-The average num-ber of callers at the British war office dally is now over 1,200. Most of them are on business, but there is a considerable number of sightseers, who express a wish to be shown around, or desire Lord Kitchner's autograph for their collection. This class of callers generally receive scant courtesy at the present time. Perhaps the most difficult class to deal with are the people with strange in-ventions. A persistent woman visitor who sought a personal interview with Lord Kitchener, wished to urge that every soldier in the trenches should have a life line tied to his back, so that if wounded he could be hauled back to
