R. B. Howell Puts Same Gas in Reservoirs as Germans Use Against Allies.

KILLS SOLDIERS IN TRENCHES

Chlorine gas similar to that used by the Germans on the Belgian frontier is being used in the city water here, according to Manager Howell of the city water plant.

This material is used in the water in the proportion of six pounds to 8,000,000 pounds of water and works as a germ destroyer. He learned that in war this gas is carried in capsules, which are held a few feet above the ground and released when there is a wind.

Mr. Howell visited Terra Haute and Columbus, O., and says he gathered information which will be useful here in the clarification and settling of water.
