

GENERAL WORTLEY MAKES STATEMENT

British Officer Describes Effect Produced by Chlorine Gas Used by the Germans in Battle.

DEATH IS SLOW AND PAINFUL

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) NEW YORK, May 21.—A letter from Major General Edward Stuart Wortley, commander of a British army corps in France, is made public here by his brother, Ralph Stuart-Wortley of New York, giving the distinguished officer's tributes to the behavior of a Canadian division in France, and describing the horrors which resulted from the use of asphyxiating gases by the Germans.

"The effect of these gases upon the men who inhale them," he says, "has been to turn all the tissues of the lungs into liquid, and during the two days that it takes for the men to die the victims are the most hopeless, helpless, sickening sight imaginable." The letter follows:

Effect of the Gas.

"You will of course have read of the fighting that has been going on round Ypres just lately, and of the magnificent behavior of the Canadian division. In their attack on the Ypres salient the Germans made use of asphyxiating gases. This gas is disseminated both in shells and bombs and also from cylinders which are buried in the trenches with their nozzles pushed through the parapets. The tops of the cylinders are then turned on and the gas, which is, as far as we know, chlorine, is pumped out. The gas, which is heavier than air, and which is blown by the wind across our lines, sinks into our trenches and fills or incapacitates any men who happen to be in them.

Defense of Acts.

"The German papers as well as falsely accusing us of making use of poisonous fumes, apparently defend their conduct by stating that the dissemination of this gas results in a few and painful death for those with whom it comes in contact, and consequently is less barbarous than subjecting men to an infernal and mental torture much necessarily be endured.

Dying for Two Days.

"It takes two days for these men to die. During these two days they are in the most acute agony, and if by the slightest chance they recover from the poison they will in all probability be rendered useless for life, as the effect of the gas is to turn all the tissues of the lungs into liquid. The doctors and nurses are working day and night in the attempt to give some relief. But there is nothing to be done. It is the most hopeless, sickening sight imaginable. Our medical officer, who has had a large experience of the habits of African and Asiatic natives, tells me that in all his life he never has had to deal with such an example of scientific torture.

Eitel's Captain

Used Kites to Help Catch the Wireless

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) LIVERPOOL, May 24.—Some interesting particulars as to how the captain of the German raider Kronprinz Eitel Friedrich, which is now interned in the United States, intercepted wireless messages and avoided the attention of the British warships, is given by the captain of the British ship receiver, one of the Kronprinz Eitel's victims.

Panama Canal One of the Money Makers

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) PANAMA, May 21.—The Panama canal will have earned in the first year of its operation sufficient to pay all its running expenses and probably leave a small surplus, according to the figures now being compiled in the office of the canal auditor. The loss now is about 5 per cent as against 26 per cent at the end of February. The deficit of about 20 per cent incurred during the first eight months of the waterway's operation has been wiped out by June 30, when the first year of operation will end.

Dutch Fishermen Make Large Hauls

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) VLAARDINGEN, Netherlands, June 5.—The first herring caught this season

by a Dutch fishing smack was brought into this port during the third week of May and gave promise of a reduction in the price of fish. It was accompanied by a large haul. The retail prices have soared recently beyond any previous limit and there has been considerable deprivation among the poor.

Dutch fishermen have been particularly handicapped since the North Sea was declared a war zone. The dangers have been brought home forcibly to the Netherlands public by frequent reports of the blowing up of Dutch smacks by mines, attacks by aeroplanes and the occasional seizure of the boats by German destroyers, which have taken them into German ports and detained their crews on charges of espionage. The chief inspector of Dutch fisheries, in order to prevent such occurrences, has issued a set of regulations requiring that in compliance with the declaration of neutrality by the Dutch government all Dutch fishermen must refrain from any act favorable or unfavorable to any of the belligerent nations.

rules and regulations for interstate shipment of live stock were advocated by W. P. Tark of Omaha in an address today at the convention of the National Live Stock exchange in session here.

This Is What This Store Aims At

"THE greatest service to the greatest number"—to make such exchanges of service and commodities so as to serve as perfectly as possible all who do business with us, and to earn a small profit from many rather than a few, that we may thereby have an increasing business, which always lowers the cost.

We could have gone along and not made the improvements that we have and are now making, but we believed it our duty to insure the safety and convenience and healthfulness of our thousands of customers by converting our Fourth Floor into a salesroom; the installation of three safety elevators; the remodeling and enlargement of our basement salesroom; the new Harney Street Entrance with access to the Main Floor or Basement; the new Show Windows; the rearrangement of many departments; the new fixtures for the Main Floor; the new 16th Street Entrance now under construction and so on.

These conveniences which have added to our expenses in some ways and greatly reduced them in others are all for your benefit.

Your approval and satisfaction is our best compensation.

Work on our new 16th Street Entrance is progressing rapidly and the new fixtures are well in position, but while these little inconveniences exist we respectfully ask your indulgence.

Please use Harney Street Entrance. June 6, 1915. BURGESS-NASH COMPANY.
