

LAST FEW PLUMS DANGLE UPON TREE

When Governor Has Named Printing Commissioner and Several Others, Little Left.

SOME ATTRACTIVE IN LIST

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, June 13.—(Special.)—With the appointment of insurance commissioner...

FOUR CANDIDATES

There are four candidates who could easily be prevailed upon to take on the duties. They are: E. A. Walsh,...

The problem before the governor just now is the appointment of three non-partisan democrats to the positions of supreme court commissioners.

Few Are Willing

However, the governor has been informed that there are a few men who are as rich they can live on nothing until the next legislative session, and they may be appointed.

Much of the charm of the position was taken away by the legislature when it attached a provision to the bill which prohibited any commissioner being a candidate for supreme judge during the term in which he is serving as supreme court commissioner.

Britain Pulls Men from Firing Line To Work in the Munitions Factories

LONDON, June 13.—Continuing his campaign to bring about an increase in the output of munitions of war, David Lloyd George, minister of munitions, spoke at Bristol today and made the declaration that war Secretary Kitchener already had given orders that certain British workmen be released from duty in the trenches in order to return to England to re-enter factories in need of their services.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Ordnance officials of the United States artillery it was learned today are faced with a serious problem because of the number of highly trained civil employees at government arsenals who have gone to private arms and ammunition factories since the European war began.

These men have been offered extraordinary advance in pay by holders of huge contracts with the belligerent governments and several commissioned officers, experts in ordnance manufacture have sign it. Then, too, I was at that time hoping that certain things would be done which would make it easier for Germany to accept my demands.

Mr. Bryan then repeats in his statement the three things he has emphasized in his proposal, namely, that the United States should offer to employ the principle of investigation embodied in thirty treaties with other nations, take action which would prevent American citizens from traveling on belligerent ships or American ships carrying contraband of war, and that this government should protest against interference with American trade with neutrals.

Felt It Was His Duty

"No one will be happier than I," said Mr. Bryan, "if the president's plan results in a peaceful settlement, but no one was in a position to say what effect our note would follow if it is in anger broke off diplomatic relations, and I was not only unwilling to assume the responsibility for the risks incurred—risks which no one could with any degree of accuracy measure—but I felt that, having done all I could in the cabinet, it was my duty to undertake outside the cabinet the duty upon which I have entered. I have no doubt that the country will unanimously support the president during the war, if so great a misfortune should overtake us, but I believe that the chances of war will be lessened in proportion as the country expresses itself in favor of peace—'not peace at any price'—but peace in preference to a war waged for the redress of such grievances as we have against Germany—at least against war until we have given to Germany the opportunity which we are pledged to give Great Britain, France and Russia—to have every difference of every character submitted to an international commission of investigation."

Will Announce Plans

partake of the entertainment that the Omaha exchange will tender all visiting delegates.

Coming down closer to home, the Omaha exchange will leave the difficult part of the entertainment to the toastmaster, E. A. Benson. Mr. Benson has gained prominence throughout the east, in fact, in all the cities that are members of the national association, he has qualified and is in a class by himself as a toastmaster, and many of the delegates who are going to Omaha on Tuesday have already asked whether or not they will have the pleasure of meeting him again.

A part of the program at Los Angeles is the staging of "The Days of the Old" and "The Days of the Gold" and "The Days of '49." One hundred and fifty men are working, getting this affair ready, and they are organized under a system that will avoid all confusion.

One hundred and seventy men will be used in different places, and every member of the Los Angeles board will have a part in the play. The Mission play will take place Tuesday night.

On Wednesday afternoon the delegates will be guests of Venice, which is the Atlantic City of the west coast. President Billy Mince made the statement a year ago that one-half of the inhabitants of Los Angeles were angels. Mr. Ingersoll has not been able to see any with wings, but he has seen thousands of fairies.

The Feast Extraordinary, Wednesday night, will have six or seven bands, which will furnish the music for this wonderful affair, which will probably be the feature of the convention from a pleasure standpoint. The prominent society men and women of Los Angeles are going to attend and welcome all visitors.

There are twenty-seven special convention committees, each committee having certain duties to perform.

GERMANS PLEASED WITH NOTE'S TONE

Text of American Reply Published in Berlin and It Makes Favorable Impression.

CERTAIN SETTLEMENT POSSIBLE

BERLIN (Via London), June 13.—The text of the American note was published today in the Berlin afternoon newspapers. Definite statements as to the attitude of the German government with respect to the note are not yet available, but in circles, which, while themselves not officially responsible, are often good barometers of the sentiment in responsible quarters, the note seems to have made a distinctly favorable impression and is believed to offer the possibility of negotiations on which a satisfactory settlement might be reached.

The conciliatory tone of the note apparently has evoked a responsive attitude here. Individuals, who in the earlier stages of the negotiations, displayed stiff-necked adherence to their own views, which made discussion almost impossible, are now willing to talk of compromise in which the compromise would not be all on one side.

East Word with Keiser.

The Vosische Zeitung probably can be correctly appraised after conferences between the imperial chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg; the foreign secretary, Herr von Jagow, and representatives of the army and admiralty, the naval and general staff. The emperor, it is believed, will speak the final word.

It is understood that these conferences will begin immediately. The answer will certainly not be drafted, and the lines of the German policy probably will not be definitely decided upon, before Dr. Anton Myer-Gerhard, the special envoy from Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador at Washington, has arrived and made his report.

Both the Lokal Anzeiger and the Vosische Zeitung had the second American note as opening the way for further negotiations between Germany and the United States, which both profess will straighten out the situation. The papers admit that the note contains little that is new, but they rejoice at its friendly tone.

Opens Way to Parleys

The Vosische Zeitung says: "There is no difference of opinion about the desirability of saving lives. The note opens the way for negotiations between Germany and America regarding what Germany can do and what America must do to protect lives in the future."

The Lokal Anzeiger says: "From the wording of the note, as it is now published, one sees that the announcements sent out on the note were wholly baseless. The form is friendly and it contains no aspersion, as had been announced."

"The new note is really a roundabout expression by President Wilson of his original standpoint and it will be a matter of further negotiations, during which the German arguments will be repeated and their justification made."

Might Have Been More Valuable

"True, this offer would have been of considerable more value if the president had explained that he was willing to make such propositions, whereas he intimated that Germany and Great Britain should initiate the suggestions."

"However that may be, the United States will see from further negotiations that Germany has an honorable desire to treat a friendly suggestion in a friendly spirit."

"At all events, the situation created by the publication of the note is such that the hypothesis heralded throughout the world that America also was in the ranks of our enemies is now shown to be once more the old case of the wish being father to the thought."

Captain Perelus, the naval expert of the Tagolich writes: "A harmonizing of views is possible and the Washington government shows a sincere disposition to reach an understanding. That is the keynote of the American note: there is no sabre-rattling."

Captain Perelus assumes that the German answer will remove the last obstacle in the way of eliminating all difficulties. As he understands the American note, it by no means takes the view that the German admiral must order a suspension of submarine warfare before negotiations can proceed.

Britain First to Offend.

He regrets "that the United States has failed duly to appreciate Germany's previous offer to place restrictions upon the activities of the submarines, provided the British abandon their efforts to starve Germany," and adds that it is certain that no satisfactory solution is possible unless Great Britain makes this concession as Great Britain "was the first to break the international law."

He concludes: "We have firm confidence that the friendly relations between Germany and the United States will smooth the way to a complete understanding and thus give victory to justice and humanity."
