

EPSTEIN BECOMES CITIZEN OF THE U. S.

Former Subject of Czar Given Permission to Take Out His Second Papers.

GIVEN BENEFIT OF ANY DOUBT

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, June 27.—(Special.)—A case involving the rights of a foreign born citizen to complete his citizenship came up today before Judge Stewart of the Lancaster county district court and was bitterly fought out between Assistant Attorney General Rowe, who represented the applicant, Henry Epstein, and J. M. Gurnell, government inspector, who opposed the granting of the papers.

Epstein came to Lincoln from Warsaw, Poland, in 1905, bringing his one son with him, but leaving his wife and six other children in the other country.

About a year ago, after getting established in business and furnishing a home, he says he sent $400 to his wife to pay the fare of the family to Lincoln. Being right in the heart of the war zone they were unable to get away and up to this time are still there.

The agent of the government opposed the granting of the papers on the ground that the ruling of the government forbids the granting of citizenship in cases where the applicant has deserted his family. The point at issue was whether Epstein had some under this rule or not and the judge decided that he had not and granted the application.

Victor Records of the Month

"Whispering Hope," that sweet and simple song of optimism well known to the older generation, is superbly sung by Olive Kline and Elsie Baker, and these two artists also contribute a dust of the beautiful "Abide With Me." Elsie Baker sang a solo, too—the "Eye Hath Not Seen" air from Gault's Holy City, and Reed Miller heard in another number, "My Soul is Abiding for God," from their same work. That favorite string evaholistic leader, Homer Rede-lander, presents two more revival hymns, "Sweetest Are the Years Go By" and "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart."

Omaha Sympathy Awakened by Free Ice and Milk for Kiddies

Free milk and ice for poor children during the hot summer months, for which The Bee has started a fund, is an idea that instantly met popular approval. Already many persons have subscribed money to the fund, or have stated their intention to subscribe, and all have expressed enthusiastic approval of the undertaking.

"One of the best things imaginable for this time of the year," a well known doctor exclaimed, as he handed a coin for the fund to a representative of The Bee. "A milk and ice fund will do lots of good without great expense and as everybody recognizes the benefits to be distributed by that means and small sums will go a long way, the movement ought to be very popular and widely supported. You can count on me for further contributions."

The physician had sounded the keynote of the undertaking was readily proved. "I've got a bunch of kids and know how necessary fresh milk and ice are to them in the summer," a workman explained as he contributed a dime. "Ten cents ain't much, but it is all I can afford, and besides, even that little amount will perhaps relieve some suffering kid."

Some subscribers to the fund, not being able to give large amounts and not wishing to have their names appear opposite small sums, yet realized the worth and need of a milk and ice fund for poor children. So when they contributed they signed in such styles as this: "A Father," "Friend of Little Folks," "Mother's Club Member," "Poor But Willing," etc.

Perhaps the most touching contribution or rather, promise of a contribution, made so far, was that of a ragged newboy on Farnam street Saturday night. He had been reading about the free milk and ice fund, and remarked to one of his regular customers:

"If I have a good day with my papers Sunday, I'm going to give a jitzny to that fund. Last summer my kid sister almost died, and the doctor said it was because she did not have pure milk."

ASSERTS BIBLE INSPIRED

Rev. R. W. Taylor of Parkvale Presbyterian Church Speaks About the Origin of Scriptures.

HOW WRITINGS ASSEMBLED

"The books of the New Testament, like all the rest of the books of the Bible, were given to us by holy men who spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit."

This is an epitome of the sermon delivered yesterday morning at Parkvale Presbyterian church by Rev. R. W. Taylor, who has assumed the pastorate there. His subject was "How We Got the New Testament."

The text was from II Timothy 3:16, "Every Scripture is inspired by God." The writers wrote at different times and the letters which embody the work were written to different churches, and they do not record by any means all of Christ's doings, yet they have come to have authority and in a most wonderful manner, the minister declared.

"Our earliest manuscripts go back no farther than the fourth and fifth centuries. In these manuscripts we have the different books about as we have them now. Numerous quotations from holy writings go back much farther, but as established and recognized canons, the date cannot be fixed much earlier.

"No church, through a great council or in any other way formally selected our books from among the mass of evangelical literature. If there was any force or power which had to do with their selection and arrangement, it was hidden, unseen.

"Arrangement of the books as we now have them was by spontaneous consent on the part of the whole Christian world, churches the most remote agreeing independently to accept the same books. By the weight of their authority they seemed to crowd out all the other books that were then extant as religious literature."

In this way churches remote from each other, at ends of the earth as they know, the speaker said, agreed on books that formed the New Testament and that without consultation, something he held little short of miraculous.

"Can we not say," he added, "that our efforts to pry into the origin of the books' formation, like the study of the geological ages by scientists, reveal facts that tend to corroborate scripture and that the evidence of simultaneous adoption of these books by distant churches tends to corroborate the answer that our New Testament was given by inspiration?"

School Garden Club Exhibition Today

The big assembly room of the Young Men's Christian association building will be a busy place Monday morning, with several hundred youthful gardeners exhibiting several thousand bunches of vegetables for fifty-four cash prizes in the school garden club movement's early vegetable contest.

A feature of the exhibit will be the presence of sixteen Central High school girls, who, although not contesting against the younger boys and girls, nevertheless have a garden club of their own and will exhibit garden produce, both fresh and canned, that they have raised this summer. The girls will also assist Supervisor Ernest E. Dale in arranging and judging the many exhibits.

All entries in the exhibit must be on hand by 10 o'clock, and the affair will be open to the public after 1 p. m. Names of prize winners will be announced by Mr. Dale before the exhibit closes, and the $30 in prize money will be distributed.

The garden club work and contests are under the joint auspices of the Omaha public and parochial schools, the college of agriculture of the University of Nebraska and the Department of Agriculture, Mr. Dale being an agent of the latter.
