Girliest Circus on Earth

"The girllest show on earth," someone Where skill, has paraphrased it. strength, courage and nerve are the prime qualifications, the woman of the world of sawdust and spangles is proving this season that her brother can learn something by watching her. In almost every varied number, below and aloft, on the Hagenbeck-Wallace program, the gentle sex predominates, even in the training of wild animals. There are 400 women in all with the big show. They are of all ages and represent eighteen nationalities. Many of them are well known performers, whose names you find on the program in big black and red letters. Others you will meet in will not see at all, because they are the needlewomen employed in the wardrobe department. But first, last and always they are of the circus. No matter how important or insignificant a part they

The some of feminine gymnastic skill and daring is revealed in the midair leats of the two Sisters LaTow. The girls are newcomers from Vienna to the vircus. In the high dome of the canvas prema they turn single and double and twisting somersaults from bar to bar, pass each other in graceful flights, catch one another by hands or feet, dive, leap and vault with ease, grace and certainty.

Dallie Julian participates in the ring with her big brother, Fred Ledgett, and her added presence has made the numher one of the most nopular of the entire performance. Oscar Lowande, noted English somersault equestrian, saw the favor his friend Ledgett was accorded and sugnested an alliance with his sister, too Mamie Lowande. Now the four great riders share honors.
