Judgments

NOT much has been heard in and around Omaha for the last week but the praises of Joe Stecher. They have been sung in many tongues and many keys, and every place. The joy of having a home-grown champion is too recent to be easily borne, and, even among folks as modest as Omahans are by nature, the exuberance shown in the victory is pardonable. It has one little bit of alloy, and that is a number of the wise ones were deluded into laying wagers that Cutler would be returned a winner. That the Egyptians who came from Chicago and Iowa and Missouri and other places where the weisenheimer flourisheth, should be despoiled is perfectly proper, and much to be commended; yet it is not pleasant to think that we harbor in our midst those who were so simple in their faith as to think the home talent had no chance. But these are chastened in spirit, and their sadness is not the less because of sundry shekels, oboli, sestercii, and other forms of coin of the realm that journeyed hence when the farmer boys went home. And this sadness is not relieved by the sounds of revelry that come floating in from Dodge, where the hands of the clock point permanently to 7:55, and the lock is gone from all the doors.

Stecher's victory over Cutler was so clean, so complete and so overwhelming, that not even the keenest partisan of the Michigan man has been heard to advance an alibi. The alleged champion was no match for the young Nebraskan, and this was proven to the satisfaction of everybody last Monday night out at Rourke park. In fact, the victory was so hollow that it seemed only one man was in the contest. And right here let us whisper a word of advice to Joe Stecher and his friends: Cutler achieved the championship by reason of a gift from Frank Gotch. He had defended it against the men Stecher has toyed with, and barely proved himself their superior. Championship pretensions should rest on a firmer foundation. This department of The Bee believes that Gotch will prove as easy for Stecher as did Cutler, but somewhere is the man who will give the new champion a warm tussle on the mat, and against this meeting Stecher must be prepared. The fame of his scissors hold will go about the land, and along with it the tale of the tempting sums of money its advocates are willing to wager on its everlasting efficiency. But, once Evan Lewis and his strangle hold were as famous and as sure of backing; and so were Farmer Burns and his hammerlock, with which he threw Lewis, and then Frank Gotch learned how to get away from the hammerlock, and Burns joined Lewis among the ex-champions, and Gotch and his toe-hold became the idol of the wrestling world. The scissors hold will not last forever.

On Tuesday Omaha business men will be addressed at the Commercial club by President O'Neill and Colonel Fairweather on the topic of the Western league and conditions that have prevailed during the current season, and asked to take part in the proposed booster day, which is to be organized as a general benefit for the entire league. It is the plan to have two of these, one in the eastern section and one in the western, four towns celebrating the event simultaneously. This will make something of an opportunity for good-natured and healthy rivalry between the towns and between the sections, as to the popularity of the teams in their homes. Of course, the object is to have thus given in a practical way a testimonial to the club owners that their efforts to provide base ball in an acceptable form is appreciated.

So far as Omaha is concerned, no effort will be spared to make the occasion a success. Friends of base ball realize that Pa Rourke has done his level best to give this city proper representation on the diamond, and that he has pocketed losses that would discourage anybody in his present season. Business men are aware of the advantage of advertising, and they know that nothing keeps a city's name more before the public than a good base ball team. Rourke has a good team, and Omaha has a good chance coming up to show that it is willing to support that team.

It would be time wasted to go over the hard luck tale of the Western league again. It has been pursued from the very opening day with the most unusual weather conditions, and its teams have steadily lost money. The present season does not offer any hope of this loss being recovered, but the owners do think they are entitled to know if the towns would like to have clubs retained for another year. The strength of this desire may be determined from the outcome of the booster day games.

Blodgett has his off moments like the rest of us, and now and then kicks home a run against his own record, but he's a pitcher for all that, and with a little more seasoning will make the best of the big leaguers take notice.

Cy Forsythe is swinging the big stick for Omaha just now, but he has the company of several others in the .300 list, and that end of the job is well looked after.

Pa's garden never looked better than it does right now, and it will pay you to go out this afternoon, if only for the sight of the grass.

BAD ROADS HURT SEMI-PROS

Climatic Conditions Perfect in Omaha July 5, but Not So Out in State.

SMALL CROWDS SEE GAMES

By FRANK QUIGLEY.

Climatic conditions, although perfect for all the festivities pulled off in Omaha on July 5, proved rather disastrous to many of the local contingents that had games booked with out-of-town teams. In towns where the managements deemed it advisable to go the crowds were small, owing to the condition of the roads. Many that would have been willing to burn up a little gasoline to see a base ball conflict stayed at home.

In all probability the most profitable trip indulged in by the locals was the contest staged by the Woodmen of the World team and the Midland Glass and Paint company. The money for this trip and a large purse was guaranteed by the Pierce Commercial club. At Red Oak the Stors did fair. At Lakeview the John Deere Plow company troupe ran up against a starchy proposition. None of the Greater Omaha league teams had a game booked out of town, instead they played each other. The Alamitos trimmed the Luxus. Ducky Holmes' boys walked over the Bourgeois. The Armours dropped a row to the Black's Kats and the Ancient Order of United Workmen and Chris Lycks laid off.

Many Attend Meetings.

Approximately 150 outsiders dropped in to listen to the loquacious stuff at the meeting of the directors of the Omaha Amateur association held at the council chamber of the city hall last Wednesday. Prior to the opening of the meeting, Louis Cook, the cheese of the Greater Omaha league, passed around the weeds, celebrating the fact that a new chef or rather Cook, tagged ten pounds net, recently arrived at his domicile. Suppose Cook will commence teaching his offspring some base ball as soon as he is able to toss one. Probably the reason so many showed up at the meeting was that they were wise to the fact that Cook would come acroes with the cabbage leaves.

Handle Routine First.

The directors went through the general routine of business before taking up the main protest. The outstanding bills were approved and tickets for the championship elmination contests were given to the managers that desired them. The main protest was the one registered by the Kennedy & Beselin team against their chief competitors, the Omaha Rubber Co. The grounds upon which Manager Hanslik based his protest was that the umpire was either crooked or his blinkers were sadly defected. He claimed the decisions were branded with all the earmarks of insanity. He failed to produce any evidence to corroborate the statement made by several that the barker was crooked, bowlegged or something else. Of course the umpire could be straight even if cross-eyed or bow-legged.

Umpire All Right.

No technicalities of any kind were registered to show that the umpire in question was not thoroughly acquainted with the rules of the game. Possibly he was erroneous in making several decisions, such as calling a gent out safe on the bases or calling a fair ball a foul or vice versa. Decisions of this kind cannot be rectified by the board of directors, consequently the game was ordered to remain the same as when played. The defunct Strollers of the National league sent in their resignation, which was promptly accepted. To date the Krejiceks of the same league have failed to turn in their contracts, but as they only have a couple more games to play the directors decided to pass the matter up, as the Krejiceks haven't got a look in for the pennant.

Eligibility of Players.

The proposition of the eligibility of several players associated with the class B leagues was the next item on the bill of fare. In the Commercial league the Nebraska School for the Deaf and the Bailey Dental Co. agreed in event one of them won the pennant to fight it out with the class A teams during the finals. In the Mercantile league the contracts of F. J. Jellen, Joe Wachtler and James Moylan of the Drexel Shoe Co. team and John Hickey of the Brandeis Stores were thrown out because they are class A base ball manipulators. Of late none of these players have participated in any of the struggles, but the managers of the various teams in this league were anxious to have the question settled before it would be too late.

Protests in Omaha League.

In the Greater Omaha league several protests were registered. The one between the Armours and the Bourgeois was allowed to remain the same as when played. Black's Kats protested their first game of the season with the Chris Lycks because Prefke, who was signed with the Ancient Order United Workmen, caught for the Chris Lycks. At that time it was doubtful whether or not the Ancient Order United Workmen team would enter the league and Prefke had promised to sign with the Chris Lycks. Because it was the first part of the season and because the directors failed to see where the Chris Lycks could do any different when they had to have a catcher in order to play the game, the standing was allowed to remain the same.

Black's Kats Keep Probst.

Gus Probst, who has been playing with the Alamitos, was ordered back to Black's Kats, the team he rightfully belongs to. The games which he participated in under protest, between the Ancient Order United Workmen and Alamitos, were taken under advisement by the directors of the Greater Omaha league.

Sandlot Gossip.

Sam Eagle zipped one on the beak that iced the argument last Saturday for the Midland Glass and Paint troupe.

At short, Plats, is playing a wonderful game for the Armours. He is fielding and clouting the pill like a fiend.

Up to date Thomas Moore, the latest acquisition to the Greater Omaha league's umpiring staff, is getting along O. K.

Next Sunday the Council Bluffs Imperials will take another whirl at the strong team stationed at Pender, Neb.

Although offered several chances to umpire this season, Dr. Willard Quigley was too busy to accept the invitations.

Ernie Adams has picked up a few nicks lately holding down the first corner for the haymakers at Gretna, Neb.

One of Gentleman's athletics, namely, Charles Hall, is now in San Francisco seeing the sights at the world's exposition.

Shook shook the Kennedy & Beselin gang for one game and, according to reports, he was glad to shake himself back.

Those Kennedy & Beselin children are still chewing the fat relative to the trouncing the Omaha Rubber Co. gave them.

Dan Butler, Edward Creighton and Richard Grotte, are the trio that settle all the disputes in the Greater Omaha league.

One of Gentleman's Athletics, namely, Probably this fact ought to prove soothing to the heart aches of different local umpires.

Another surprise was shipped in last Monday when the Black's Kats hung the crepe on the Armours to the tune of 5 to 3.

Only one more argument left in the National league after today, so it is a safe wager that the Ramblers will snag the rag.

Have to give the Bourgeois team credit for having a good battery, but nevertheless they don't seem able to get up the grade.

Bales, leader of the Browning-King company brigade, is looking for games out of town. Call him at Douglas 1246, or Douglas 4098.

With Gurness and Sullivan alternating on the mound, the Armours from Packersville are well fortified in the kinking department.

Cecil Lehr is playing faster ball this season than ever before. He has proved to be rather pernicious with the billy for the Black Kats.

This man Brodsky, chief cook for the Omaha Rubber crew, is always on the job. It is a difficult matter to ooze anything over on him.

When in need of an umpire call Douglas 6570 and squak for Joseph Hannon. He has umpired enough tangles to be worthy of the O. K. stamp.

During Jawn Dennison's layoff Chickerino Farley filled his shoes at corner one in a faultless manner. Both of them are southpaw initial cavorters.

Several of the Class B ball tossers deserve the once over from the Class A managers. A few of them should be entitled to a sheepskin this fall.

Hereafter Rub Foster will do all of the catching for the Council Bluffs Imperials. With him behind the platter, they present a much formidable lineup.

Last Wednesday night the Ancient Order of United Workmen held its annual banquet. All its ball tossers were present and they had a real jollification party.

Ralph Jones, formerly the long-distance runner of the Monmouth Park club, is now getting his squares pulling fish out of the muddy a little north of Florence.

George Gautier, the main bolt of the Fontenelles, says the season will have to be extended in order for his club to grab the bunting of the National league.

On corner three Blonde Ruff is still doing grand work for Papillion, Neb. Sometimes he works behind the willow. In fact he is a regular versatile player.

At the present writing the Omaha Rubber bunch could utilize the services of a good fly copper. One of their outfielders is holding down a berth in a hospital.

Any out of town team needing the services of a good pitcher for a tournament or some special occasion, would do well to commune with Pete McGuire over Webster 6182.

John Andrews is still hooking ten simoleons and rations per game as the throwem kid for Schuyler, Neb. He struck out sixteen last Sunday and sixteen on last Monday.

Since Pete Lyck has joined the Chris Lycks, they have been going good. He is a valuable man behind the bat, good with the stick and it is a difficult matter to cop a bag on him.

By defeating the Luxus on last Monday the Alamitos waltzed into first place in the Greater Omaha league. According to Chief James Sutey, they are going to stick until the asbestos drops.

Zip Woolsey slipped one over on the Omaha Indians last week. He was over in Iowa with the John Deere troupe, while Manager Pickett had the wires hot in Omaha trying to locate him.

It is strange that the magnates of the Mercantile league failed to kick on James Mullen, Hillard Moriarty and Linn Young of the Brandeis Stores. They all played Class A ball last year.

Kinky Foran has dropped back into the game. He played in a contest a couple of weeks ago, caught a fly and smacked a couple on the kisser. Since then he inoculated the idea that he could come back.

From present indications, Frank Welch, formerly star second pillow gent for the Ancient Order of United Workmen, has quit for this season. Anyway he has failed to decorate the scenery for the last two weeks.

Now those Krejiceks must have the idea incrated in their craniums that they are some base ballists. They didn't want to play the Browning King team today because the counter jumpers refused to speculate on the outcome.

The Riversides are doing their darndest to secure the castoff clothing of the Townsends. When the Gunners scattered they failed to turn in their suits. Guess the Riversides will have to hire a few old sleuths to recover said raiment.

Strange things have happened in base ball and in all probability stranger things will happen. How do you figure this one? The Armours trimmed the Luxus, who in turn beat the Black Kats, 18 to 0, and the next day the Kats beat the Armours, 5 to 3.

She's on Her Way.

Miss Margaret Williams of Detroit is another of the many female riders who are in the saddle bound for 'Frisco and the exposition. She left Detroit last week and expects to make the trip in twenty days.
