SINGERS GIVEN GREAT OVATION

Enthusiastic Crowd at Auditorium to Greet German Vocalists of the Saengerbund.

LOCAL CHORUS VOICES WELCOME

Omaha spent its daylight hours giving welcome to the Saengerbund visitors, and when evening came, joined with those visitors in packing the Auditorium to listen to the reception program of the festival.

While the building was not jammed—for it takes a lot of people even to fill the Auditorium, without approaching a jam—it was such an assemblage as testifies the interest in the proceedings.

On the great stage the local festival chorus was massed to open the reception of the visiting chorus.

The entire Auditorium was flag-decked from the fronts of the boxes to the very top of the lofty ceiling.

Handsome souvenir programs of fifty pages were provided, printed in several colors containing pictures of the principal artists, directors of the ensemble, views of the city, all done in several colors and free from a single advertisement.

The "Saengerfest March," composed by Prof. Reese and dedicated to Fest-President Robert C. Strahlow, was the opening number.

When the "Chorus of Greeting," first by the men of the festival chorus and then by the feminine voices.
