MANY SPECIALS GO OVER OMAHA ROADS

Chartered Trains Carrying Convention Delegates Pass Through Omaha from Coast.

ALL STOP OFF HERE A WHILE

Special trains with private parties to and from California are passing through Omaha every day, and many of the tourists are stopping here for stays that are from a few hours to several days in length. The Shriners of the east are now returning from their convention in California, and large parties are being taken back in special trains over a number of the lines. The Lu Lu temple of Philadelphia passes through Omaha in a train running in three sections next Friday, there being 411 Shriners in all with this one delegation. They are returning over the Rock Island, coming from Colorado.

The Aladdin Shriners of Columbus, O., with 140 in their party, pass through Omaha on their return, Tuesday. One hundred and thirty people who are traveling under the direction of the Gattis Tourist agency pass through here, going east, on August 2. They will arrive at 3 p. m. and leave at 5:45.

Boston Next Week.
The Aleppo Temple Shriners of Boston, 130 strong, are to go through here next Friday, and over 100 people from Birmingham, Ala., pass Omaha on their return from the coast on the same date. A delegation of New England Elks, returning from Los Angeles, are in Omaha today and four cars of Cook tourists leave Omaha Saturday evening over the Milwaukee for Chicago.

The Commercial Law League of America, from Chicago to Pasadena, is due in Omaha at 5:30 p. m. next Thursday, with over 125 people. They will stop half an hour at the Burlington station. The Milwaukee Madison and Rockford delegates to the Saengerfest leave Saturday evening over the Milwaukee on their return trip, over 100 members being in the party. Other delegates to the Saengerfest are planning to leave Saturday evening, but a large per cent of those here are planning to wait until later, and many are going to the coast before their return home.

New Books

Fiction.

THE ENEMY. By George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester. E. B. Hearst's International Library company.

Whisky is "the enemy" that wrecks the life of one of the two principal men characters, threatens to destroy that of the other and brings shame and sorrow to a couple of good and devoted women. There is nothing particularly new or ingenious in the story, for there are few people who have not at least one Billy Lane among their acquaintances and a considerable number who have known a Harrison Stuart. It is all, indeed, quite true, and as commonplace as tragedy so often is. It contains many effective scenes and among the masculine part of the dramatic personae are several well drawn characters.

THE INDISCREET LETTER. By Eleanor Halliwell Abbott. 50 cents. The Century company.

This story is concerned with a conversation on a train from Montreal to Boston, and its chief characters are a traveling salesman and a young woman, with a young electrician to make an occasional remark. It is gay, whimsical and charming—a delightful hammock book.

AN EGYPTIAN LOVE SPELL. By Maris Harrington Billings. 50 cents. The Central Publishing company.

A well told tale having as its theme the theory of reincarnation.

THE TREASURY OF HIDDEN VALLEY. By Willis George Emerson. 42 pp. E. B. Forbes & Co.

A novel of western life, laid for the most part in Wyoming.

The plot starts out with a quest for a lost mine, but this issue before long becomes of subsidiary importance to the human story that gradually unfolds itself. The author has an understanding of men and motives and the characters and incidents are true to the section of the west of which he writes.

THE SECRET SERVICE SUBMARINE. By Guy Thorne. E. B. Sully & Kleinteich.

The scene is the east coast of England and the story tells of the extraordinary and mysterious plot of a German spy, its detection by an English schoolmaster, and his attempt to frustrate it. A vivid picture of life in a submarine.

AT THE SIGN OF THE SWORD. By William Le Queux. 187 pp. E. B. Sully & Kleinteich.

The scene is Belgium, the time of happening—during the present war. The story is one of vivid human interest woven into a background depicting the horrors of the tragedy of Belgium.

AUNT SARAH AND THE WAR. 75 cents. G. P. Putnam's Sons.

The book is a fine, patriotic embodiment of a nation's spirit, as evinced by the people at home, no less than by those who are bearing the brunt of battle.

IN HOC VINCE. By Florence L. Barclay. 75 cents. G. P. Putnam's Sons.

This little story of a Red Cross flag was written for and first published in King Albert's book. Founded, the author tells us, on an episode which occurred after the battle of Mons, it is, she says, "true in its main details," and is a rather effective, brief account of how some wounded soldiers, gathered in a municipal building, were without the protection of a Red Cross flag. There was no time to get one, but there was a way in which one could be made, and though it was a decidedly unpleasant, even a rather gruesome thing to do, a young English officer accomplished the grim task, and presently the tragic flag was waving in the breeze.

ALICE AND A FAMILY. By St. John G. Ervine. 75 pp. E. B. The Macmillan company.

Alice is an engaging little heroine who in spite of her youth displays a most remarkable ability in running the household of the widowed Mr. Nudler, laborer, and his children. How she manages not only their affairs but those of the undertaker, the insurance agent, the schoolmaster, the keeper of the newspaper shop, her own father, as well as several other people, is Mr. Ervine's theme.

DOODLES. By Emma C. Dowd. E. B. Houghton-Mifflin company.

Doodles lives up to his title of "The Sunshine Boy." A poor little cripple, he is endowed with a cheerful temperament, an amiable character, a voice of surpassing sweetness and a genius for music. Moreover, he is the possessor of a marvelous mockingbird, bought in a dilapidated condition for the sum of 25 cents, but which turns out to be somebody's lost bird, valued at $200, as, indeed, a bird ought to be which warbles from start to finish "Annie Laurie" and "Auld Lang Syne." All sorts of delightful coincidences and happenings come to Doodles and his family.

PIECES OF THE GAME. By Countess de Chambrun. 209 pp. E. B. G. P. Putnam's Sons.

The scene of the novel, after its opening at a New England summer colony favoured by the diplomatic circle from Washington, is laid in the nation's capital, and its two chief characters are a young bride and groom, the latter an attaché of the French embassy. The plot hinges about a bit of mystery in his career a few years earlier, and it is with some skill that the author manages the sly gossip and furtive moves of the woman whose ill-will he has won and who is determined to bring disaster upon him and his young wife.

THE MIRACLE OF LOVE. By Cosmo Hamilton. 225 pp. E. B. George H. Doran company.

The hero is a duke, young and charming, but feeling himself forced to sacrifice himself for the family whose head he had become. Longing for a girl in England he raced through New York, peered curiously at the Florida keys, all the while trying to be true to his family rather than to himself. A surprising, unexpected "miracle of love," not to be guessed beforehand, made a delightful ending to this romance.
