

LET THE BOYS AND GIRLS DO CANNING

Government Expert Gives Most Interesting Talk on Preserving to Omaha Women.

WAS AT Y. M. C. A. LAST NIGHT

That a mere man could teach them a thing or two about the purely feminine art of canning vegetables was fully conceded by a large number of women at the Saratoga school yesterday morning, when George E. Farrell, government expert, gave a demonstration of the work. This demonstration is the finishing touch to the local Garden club's summer concert, under the supervision of E. E. Dale. Another demonstration was given at Castler school at 3 o'clock, and the last one was held last night at 8 o'clock at the Young Men's Christian association.

"Let the boys and girls do the canning," advocates Mr. Farrell, opening up a wide vista of thought to the many mothers present. "So many of you women hanker to do social service work. Instead of that, take four or five boys and girls, direct their energies towards raising a garden during the summer and then show them how to can their fruits and vegetables. You will be doing real service then," he said.

There are 300 vacant acres in the city of Omaha, on these there could be raised enough garden produce to feed the whole city.

Must Have Greens.
"You can't live on meat, potatoes and bread. You must have greens. This country consumes more meat than any other in the world. That's why we also consume more patent medicines than any other country."

The women gave careful attention while the government expert skillfully cut, pared and shelled and dexterously handled jars, covers and spoons with never a mishap. Only when the cover of a glass jar which had been immersed in boiling water cracked, just as glass covers have a habit of cracking for the ordinary housewife, did they feel that he, too, was human.

Printed government recipes for canning fruit and vegetables may be secured from E. E. Dale, it was announced.

Canning Directions.

- Following are Mr. Farrell's directions for canning:
1. Plunge vegetables in boiling water, then immerse in cold water. This loosens the skin and sets the color; makes it firm and takes out objectionable acid.
 2. Remove skins and stems, put directly into jars with teaspoonful of salt to quart jar, then fasten top.
 3. Sterilize jars in larger receptacle. This is the process:
 - a. Have at least three-fourths of an inch space under jars for water to circulate.
 - b. Have water covering jars at least one inch.
 - c. Count time only after water begins to jump.
 - d. Remove jars when time is up and tighten.
 - e. Put away where light will not destroy color, if canned in glass.
 4. Timely Canning Hints by Farrell. Eighty per cent of failures in canning are due to defective covers.
 - a. Water boils in Omaha at 210 degrees. Boiling water is necessary to kill the spores in fruit or vegetables.
 - b. Fruit and vegetables should be canned when fresh. If over twenty-four hours old it is four times as hard to can.
 - c. Jars need not be boiled if clean.
 - d. Don't slice things to be canned; can whole.
 - e. If you cut into the top of a Mason jar, throw it away; it has outlived its use.
 - f. Paraffin should be applied to covers not later than twenty minutes.
 - g. To keep the color in beets, can whole and leave on the tail. For beanching, leave one inch of stem.
 - h. In pouring boiling water into glass jars avoid a draft. The jar will crack. You can immerse the jar in warm water to temper it.
 - i. Don't use tops a second time. Buy new ones.
 - j. Use the best rubbers. Boil three minutes to get rid of the rubber taste.
 - k. Don't use a fireless cooker for canning. It's below sterilizing point.
 - l. Don't pack spinach, cherries, strawberries, rhubarb, pumpkin and squash in ordinary tin cans unless they are lacquered or otherwise prepared.
 - m. Glass jars are not more sanitary than tin. They only last longer.
 - n. Promaline poisoning has nothing to do with tin.
 - o. Well sterilized fruit need not be kept in the cellar.
 - p. Good syrup recipe: Three parts of sugar to two parts of water, by actual measure. Boil till clear.
 - q. To open a jar invert in warm water. Else use patent device.
 - r. Most difficult vegetables to can are peas, beans, corn and asparagus. They are high in protein and low in acid.

Woman Before the Judge is Not Forced to Give Her Age

Madge Crowe, who was heroically rescued from the raging torrent in the gutter at Sixteenth and Clark streets Tuesday night by Officer O'Connor after she had inhaled too freely of the contents of the glowing bowl appeared before Judge Foster and during the proceedings which followed was asked by the city prosecutor what her age was. Judge Foster immediately came to her aid and declared that such a question was irrelevant and immaterial, and that besides, it was no business of anyone's save hers.

Madge smiled her appreciation of the judge's assistance. She was finally allowed to return to the freedom of the great outdoors, without having told her age.

ADVISES OTHER THAN BOOZE FOR FLY BITES

Frank Kelly, who was taken in by the man in blue on a charge of being drunk, appeared before his honor with one eye badly swollen. Upon being asked what he had to say for himself he carefully explained that he had blood poison in his eye, which came from his being attacked by the ferocious flies that inhabit the neighborhood of his residence, which is a fourth or fifth rate hotel. These flies, he explained, came in through the window of his room, which had no screen, and infected his eye, so that he needed some medicine and decided that whiskey would be most effective. The whiskey did not work as he desired, but, instead, in some manner, so affected him as to make him lose all sense of time and place.

The prisoner told his story so positively that the soft-hearted judge sent him on his way, with the advice that some other medicine be used in the future.

State Contractors Take Interest in the Organization Plan

Since the agitation for a state association of building contractors has been started contractors all over the state have been taking a keen interest. While no definite date for the preliminary meeting has yet been set, it is tentatively announced that a dinner for organization purposes is to be set within a week or two.

The plan contemplates an organization in which contractors, construction men, material dealers and architects would be eligible. It is felt by the contractors that since all those allied crafts and trades are so closely associated in their business relations, there should be an organized relation for effective work. The plan is to do away with some abuses that the contractors and architects claim to be now suffering from occasional unscrupulous property owners who use them against one another in the matter of getting plans and bids for a building, and then go ahead with the work without letting the job or the contract to any of the men who have figured on it.

The plan contemplates also the establishment of an information bureau, a collection bureau and a legislative committee that would take active and organized steps to get what legislation the members may desire in the state, instead of allowing each individual to flounder around the state house in the aimless and ineffective fashion that is always the result where there is no organization.

Mel Sheppard and New York Athletes Go Through Omaha

Melvin W. Sheppard, who holds the world's records at 500, 700, 800, 900 and 1,000-yard distances, and now coach at the Millrose Athletic club in New York, passed through Omaha plotting five of his crack athletes to the athletic games at the San Francisco exposition. Sheppard and his crew arrived at 7:30 over the Northwestern and left over the Union Pacific at 11:30.

It was Sheppard's original plan to stop over here until 4:30 and give his men a few hours practice, but the rain made his plans impossible, so he took the earlier train to the coast and will stop off at Salt Lake City and give his men a workout there.

Sheppard declares that his five men will all be point winners at the exposition. And if they are, considerable credit must go to the former amateur record holder, as his athletic club is limited to men employed by John Wanamaker. Every man in the Millrose club belongs to this establishment, and to five men who are good enough for international competition in one plant is quite a feat. The Millrose athletes are John Cahill, weight man; Willie Kyronen, five-mile A. A. U. champion; Charles Porez, marathon runner; Nick Chlanopolis, marathon runner, and Joe Higgins, 180-yard New England intercollegiate champion. Coach Alonso Stagg and five University of Chicago men also went through Omaha to the exposition games.

Nebraska Better Than California, Says E. E. Magee

"I never saw a green thing until I struck Nebraska," said E. E. Magee, of Magee's genteel furnishing store, returning from the San Francisco exposition and a visit of a few weeks on the coast. "While they irrigate and raise nice fruit in California, still the rest of the country that is not irrigated is, generally speaking, dry and barren. Then coming across Utah, Nevada, Wyoming and parts of Colorado, there was lots of desert, and I'll tell you it looked mighty good to strike Nebraska again."

A family reunion of the Magee family was enjoyed on the beach at Santa Cruz. The father and eight children spent a week together, the first time the family has been together for twenty years. O. N. Magee of Lincoln and E. E. Magee of Omaha were the two Nebraskans that participated. The others are brothers and sisters from Idaho and California.

Mr. Magee spent four days at the San Francisco exposition and declares it is great.

BORGLUM TO DESIGN STEVENSON MEMORIAL

Gutson Borglum, the sculptor, who is a member of the Borglum family of Omaha, is to design a Robert Louis Stevenson memorial for the village of Saranac Lake, N. Y., to commemorate the fact that Stevenson sojourned there during the winter of 1877-78 while writing some of his greatest essays. The project comes from the Saranac Lake Stevenson Memorial committee, recently organized for the purpose, and it is yet to be decided whether the memorial shall take the form of a tablet, urn or a piece of statuary.

RELIEF CORPS OBJECTS TO DISUSE OF "AMERICA"

The George A. Custer Woman's Relief corps, headed by Mrs. J. W. Foley, at its meeting Tuesday in Memorial hall, entered a vigorous protest against the action of the Lincoln supervisor of music, who, it was reported, had advocated the disuse of patriotic American songs in the schools.

Resolutions were drawn up and forwarded to the superintendent of public instruction at Lincoln by Mrs. Charles Everson.

ROMANCE OF PLOW AT TRACTOR SHOW

Motion Pictures with Love Drama to Show the Transition from Indian Methods.

80 HUGE TRACTORS IN ACTION

"The Romance of the Plow," maybe that don't sound as romantic as "When Knighthood Was in Flower." No matter, it has possibilities just as picturesque. These possibilities will be developed in a big open air drama covering a period of three days, on the fields north of Fremont Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 11, 12 and 13. It will take from 80 to 100 Winnebago Indians, and thousands of dollars' worth of other equipment, to stage this great drama for the moving pictures.

Between 4,000 and 10,000 feet of reel are to be made for the moving picture service all over the world. The Hoyt Feature Film company has arranged to make the pictures. The big drama is to be staged in connection with the National Power Farming Demonstration, which will be in progress at Fremont, August 9 to 14.

From Indian Hunting Ground.
Briefly, the drama contemplates a sweeping review of the development of the Nebraska prairie from the savage Indian and his hunting grounds to the modern tractor plowing and power farming system of agriculture. A love plot is to be interwoven. In the swift march of agricultural development, as it will be reproduced here for the movies, the Indians will be seen hoeing their squaw corn with crude hoes made of clam shells and birch bones. Next will be seen the homesteader, coming in with his prairie schooner, and ox team, setting to work with the help of his brave young bride, to build a sod house and later a log house. This settler will be seen plowing with his wooden moleboard plow in the stubborn prairie sod. Then come more settlers, and later the house is introduced and the oxen are discarded. Then comes the steel moleboard plow, which is a great innovation and a welcome invention. By this time the Indians have to the westward of the scene, better homes and barns have sprung up in the community. Next the gang plow is marshalled into the fields. Again the lapse of a few years, and the farm tractor comes chugging upon the scene. Gang plows with almost countless bottoms will be drawn.

"Are you unmarried?" County Judge Crawford asked a woman applicant for a marriage license, in his most business-like tone.

"Why, I was never married, so how could I have been unmarried?" replied the bride, haughtily.

Frank Johnston is Transferred Back to Omaha Division

Frank D. Johnston has arrived back in Omaha after two years spent in Boston, where he was superintendent of the railway mail service. He has been appointed superintendent of the fourteenth division of the railway mail service, with offices in Omaha and has taken up his duties.

He succeeds C. M. Reed in this position. Mr. Reed having been transferred to the position of superintendent of railway mail service, with offices in St. Paul, Minn.

Mr. Johnston left the Omaha office for his Boston appointment nearly two years ago. In that time he has spent a number of months in Washington, D. C., engaged in special work for the postal department.

He drove west in his automobile, with Mrs. Johnston, from Boston to Logan, Ia., his total running time for that distance of about 1,500 miles being seven and a half days, though the roads were bad much of the way. At Logan the roads were so bad that they came the short distance by train and will return for the car when the highways are dry, so as to make a clean sweep of the Boston to Omaha run.

"It certainly is nice to get back to Omaha," Mr. Johnston said. "I am a born western man and we never get used to the cramped quarters and the cramped minds and methods of the east. This feels like coming home and old Omaha looks better than ever to me."

Heavy Rain Falls Over the Entire State on Tuesday

Rain was general and heavy all over the state Tuesday night, every point where the weather bureau maintains a station reporting a heavy downpour except Valentine, which was the lone exception.

The rainfall at Omaha was nearly two inches and at Columbus nearly three and a half. Ashland reported two and a half and Grand Island three inches.

Tekamah had nearly two inches, and here was one spot where rain was not needed. Here the farmers have been waiting from day to day for a chance to get into their fields to harvest the wheat. Walt Hopewell has 700 acres of which he has not cut an acre and the prospects are beginning to look bad. Bud Latta also has hundreds of acres which are waiting for a dry spell before he can send the reapers into the fields.
