THAT there do exist aesthetic servants in nearby parts is now an assured fact.

If any of our Omaha housekeepers want a real servant, just let them notify Mrs. Fred S. Hadra, who in answer to her ad for a cook received a missive from Miss Maxime Smith, now of North Platte, formerly of Denver, which reads:

"Dear Mrs. Hadra: Saw your ad in The Bee, and will say that I am a nice, clean, wholesome little person. I use Hudnut's (spelled Hugenut's) product only. I know everything about pots and pans, and also know how to taste all kinds of victuals. My specialty is French dressing, with or without garlic. If you have a nice wine cellar, I can even take care of that and I can handle your child with strictness in your absence. Notify me, care of General Delivery, Denver, Colo., about wages paid, evenings off, room, etc., and if your letter suits me I shall communicate further. Your efficient servant,
MAXIME SMITH."

Now, friends, please do not stampede in your rush after Maxime. It might upset her poise.

Summer Trips.

Mrs. Frank A. Kennedy and daughters, Margaret and Etola, have gone to California, where they will attend the International Typographical union and Woman's Auxiliary conventions at Los Angeles. They will visit the exhibitions at San Diego and San Francisco before returning home.

Mrs. O. H. Wirth is leaving today for Excelsior Springs, where she plans to join her sister, Mrs. Charles Werner, and later spend about six weeks in and around Denver, returning to Omaha the middle of September.

Mr. Byron Smith and Mr. Albert Edholm leave this evening for a fishing trip to the Wisconsin lakes.

At Happy Hollow Club.

CREW OF JULIA NEARLY FAMISHED

Mate Swims Ashore for Bread and Gets Rolls—Stranded, with No Soap Aboard.

MAKE QUICK RUN FOR BOLOGNA

What did Robinson Crusoe do for soap?

Dan Defoe stripped his gears when he neglected to tell the reader that. During the last two days there were two men stranded on the Missouri river that wanted to know. Captain W. B. Stevens, commander of the "Julia" sat in the barge on a sand bar north of Florence, read and re-read Robinson Crusoe in the sober effort to learn what that stranded sailor had used as a substitute.

Captain Stevens' nose was boozed with grease from the gasoline engine. The engine had balked ever since Sunday morning on the down cruise from Decatur, and the captain and Bill, the deck hand, had been thumbing every plug and every screw, as well as thrusting their noses in every crevice that was greasy or not greasy.

Finds Shaving Soap.

Dinner time and no soap. The shore was far away and farm houses still farther. Bill, the deck hand, was the "Friday" of the party. He did not stick his foot upon the sand to make a track as "Friday" did, but he did stick his hand into the cabin: patted his shaving mug down and empty from it the last little crumb of shaving soap.

The two river men took off the worst of the grease and then the shaving soap gave out.

"No difference," said Bill, "this ain't no darn banquet, anyway," and they fell upon the meager table.

There was no bread. Why bring a wagon load of bread? was what they had said to themselves. "Didn't they make the down stream trip in six hours before?"

Swims Ashore.

Bill shook himself into a life preserver and made for the shore. At a farm house he offered a dime for bread, but there was none. He bought some rolls and hurried for the barge and the hungry captain.

The curtain went down on act two. Yesterday the Julia waddled into port at the foot of the Douglas street bridge. Captain Stevens had barely strength enough to throw a double hitch around a snubbing post.

Then the captain straightened up and gave his belt a hitch that cut him in two like a red ant.

"Say, man," he said, as he spied some fellows on shore. "We only had rolls to eat for the last day or two. Bill bought a dime's worth at a farm house, and we've been cutting whang leather off them ever since."

"It sure is dinner time," and he looked at his watch, which registered 10:55. "Bill get about eight horseshoes of bologna, and get 'em quick."

FIVE SUNDAY SCHOOLS TO HOLD JOINT PICNIC

Members of five Sunday schools of the northwest part of the city will hold a joint picnic Saturday at Fontenelle park. At the same time the recreation supervisor will conduct the postponed parents' day. E. W. Smetzel will have charge of the Sunday school.

BUSIEST NEWSPAPER WOMAN IN THE COUNTRY

—Here is pictured the busiest newspaper woman in the country. She is Miss Idah Pratt, who recently bought the Redondo (Cal.) Breeze. She gets out the entire paper herself, acting as manager, editor, owner, star reporter, advertising manager, pressman, typesetter and copy boy.

MISS IDAH PRATT AT WORK

Many Applicants for Managership of the Auditorium

The city commissioners are receiving many applications for the position of manager of the Auditorium.

Among those making the most efforts are W. J. Hunter, Charles Franke, J. J. Ryder, Charles Stevens and J. M. Gillan. Richard Grotte, city purchasing agent, is mentioned.

The commissioners will take no action on this matter until next week when Commissioner Jardine will have returned from Texas.

In the meantime J. M. Gillan is serving as acting manager and an inventory is being taken.

QUINLEY OF SPRINGFIELD TO BE DEPUTY MARSHAL

E. J. Quinley, one of the publishers of the Springfield Monitor, Springfield, Sarpy county, has been recommended by Congressman C. O. Lobeck for the position of deputy United States marshal, under T. J. Flynn. It is a tacit understanding that each congressman recommends a deputy from his district. Sarpy county has not before had a deputy United States marshal.

Quinley was secretary of the Sarpy county democratic committee last year. He was agreed upon for this deputy

DEAN OF THE HIGH GIRLS IS AT WORK

Miss Jessie Towne Already Plans for the Beginners at the Central High School.

TO MAKE THE START PLEASANT

Jessie M. Towne, new dean of girls of Central high school, has started her work, although the opening of school is five weeks hence.

Miss Towne is communicating with all grade school principals to ascertain the names of girls who will enter high school next month, her particular interest being in girls who may need special help or advice.

For instance, girls who may be working their way through school will be aided in any acceptable manner. Miss Towne will endeavor to decrease the "mortality" of the freshmen year, a period when many girls drop out of high school.

Her work in general will be to give girls a fair start in their new high school environments.

Pulmotor Saves Stranger from Gas

A man registered as A. Maribetto, but giving no address, attempted suicide in his room at the Oxford hotel Tuesday night. He arrived in Omaha Tuesday evening and secured room 31 at the Oxford. He locked the windows and the doors of his room and turned on the gas. 11:15th Sloan, a chambermaid, smelled the gas at about 10 o'clock in the morning and raised an alarm. The door was broken down by Charles Bandow, a laundryman who was delivering at the hotel at the time, and the police were notified. The patrol rushed to the hotel with Drs. Boler and Shook, who used the pulmotor on the man and succeeded in restoring him to his senses. He is now in no danger.

Dozen Milk Dealers Called Into Court

Twelve milkmen were before Judge Kubat on a charge of selling milk below the standard set by the city. Thirteen had been invited to attend the party, but Peter Peterson failed to arrive, and Sergeant Wilson announced that a warrant had been issued for his arrest. The men all pleaded not guilty, and M. G. Sorenson was discharged. Of the others, C. H. Jensen, Knud Knudson, Peter Jepperson, Jacobson Bros., H. K. Paulson, E. Corneer, Chris Taft, Sam Christensen and Louis Christensen were fined $10 and costs each, but the fine was in each case suspended. George Verduynee was fined $15 and costs.

Milk Inspector Bossie appeared against them and said that their milk was somewhat below the standard set by the city, although most of it would pass the state test.

BETROTHAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF POPULAR GIRL

NELL CARPENTER

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac W. Carpenter announce the engagement of their daughter, Nell, to Ralph W. Klewit. The wedding will take place in September.

Both young people attended the Omaha High school at the same time. Miss Carpenter is a Wellesley college graduate and is president of the local Wellesley club.

BIG VARIETY OF WEAPONS USED WITH LITTLE DAMAGE

Purney Campbell and Marie Perkins, both colored residents of the Third ward, were in police court charged with disturbing the peace. They had a fight in which one broke down a door with a brick, and then the fight grew general, and among other weapons used were a pair of scissors, a fork, a knife and a bottle of carbolic acid, which was generously sprinkled about the place. In spite of all of the artillery there was very little damage done, and the injuries received were about even on both sides. They were fined $1 and costs each.

Emphatically Our Greatest

Brandeis $1 SALE of SHOES

And We Believe The Greatest

When we began to prepare for this sale a few months ago, we determined, first, that it should be the biggest affair of its kind ever held anywhere, and, second, that quantity should only be exceeded by VALUE.

In fulfillment of the first resolution, there are over 25,000 pairs of shoes in this sale, and they occupy a space of 11,000 square feet in our store, which we believe is the largest space ever devoted to a shoe sale.
