

TO ASK DISMISSAL OF NORMAL BOARD

Contractors All Over State Displeased with Awarding of Contract for Kearney Building.

HOLD MEETING ON THURSDAY

A movement toward securing, through Governor Morehead, the summary dismissal of the state normal board is brewing at this moment among some of the leading building contractors of Omaha.

Contractors all over the state are under high excitement over the action of the State Normal board in awarding the contract for the construction of the auditorium at the Kearney Normal school to the highest bidder.

Organize the State. The meeting for Thursday night is called primarily as a preliminary meeting at which arrangements are to be made for a larger meeting of the contractors for the purpose of organizing a state association.

But while the meeting Thursday night is called to make preliminary arrangements for the state meeting, the excitement over the methods of the State Normal board is too high at present among the local contractors to allow the evening to go by without the subject being brought up, and among those best informed it is confidently expected that a resolution will be adopted asking the governor to dismiss the normal board.

Fix Meeting Place. The place of meeting for the contractors of the state has not yet been fixed, but is to be settled at the meeting Thursday.

Among the contractors who are greatly interested in the movement for a state association are President Tom, Secretary Kelley and chairman Grant Parsons.

Farrish Boosts the Stop-Over Idea at the Panama Fair

E. V. Farrish, manager of the publicity bureau of the Commercial club, is at San Francisco doing good work in boosting the idea into the heads of the transcontinental travelers and eastern visitors who are doing the exposition that the only thing to do is to stop off at Omaha on the return home.

Every tourist to the coast has to visit the invalidating offices to have their tickets signed. When they go to these offices they find that Farrish has a stop blotter all over the desk saying "Stop off in Omaha, the Gate City—East and West—for its a long way back home."

All college men in Omaha are interested in the announcement made at Ann Arbor recently of the campaign among the 30,000 men of the University of Michigan to raise $100,000 for a club house to be known as "The Michigan Union Home."

RUNS THROUGH HOUSE, TAKING LOOT ENROUTE

Frank Souler, 216 Hickory, reported to the police that at about midnight Sunday, while he, with his family and a friend, were enjoying a midnight lunch in the kitchen of his home, they heard a noise in the front of the house.

Big Dog, Faithful to the Last, Leads Doctor to Dying Master

Friendless and isolated from all mankind, surrounded by environments of his own choosing, the wonderful gifts of nature, guarded by his only companion, a monster black St. Bernard dog, Edward Bellot, twenty-five years a hermit fisherman of the muddy Missouri, was found dying Monday morning at 7 by police officers in front of his tiny willow shack on the Missouri river bank at Seventh and Q streets.

The heartbreaking cry of the great dog "Rounder," as he barked for assistance for his dying master, rang clear across the lonesome stillness of the vast river bottoms and aroused keepers of the Union Stock Yards pumping station, who investigated and discovered the plight of the master. The police department was called and with Dr. E. H. Shanahan accompanying, assistance was rushed to the spot where the doomed "master of the wilds" lay dying.

But the fisherman, loved and respected by all who roam the hills of Mandan park or who try their luck at the river bank, was too far gone. Some days previous he had eaten diseased fish.

Tea's sprang into the eyes of the policemen as they neared the shack in search of the man, as the great dog, faithful to his master to the last, rushed joyously through the tall weeds, guiding the party to the dying fisherman, who was hidden totally from view.

Bellot was unable to speak and gasped repeatedly for breath when the badly needed assistance arrived. Tenderly the men carried him into the shack and laid him on the rough bed of branches that he had slept on during the days of his life. Medicines were administered, but they showed little effect on the man. He was left with a guard from the pumping station to watch over him. It was believed that he would not live a half dozen hours. He was too weak to move to the hospital.

ALL WERE ALSO AT THE FORMER BRYAN HOMECOMING

Jerry McMahon of Morris, Ill., is visiting his former home town. Mr. McMahon happened in the mayor's office when W. J. Bryan called. City Commissioner Butler appeared on the scene and remarked that these four men met in New York city on the occasion of Mr. Bryan's famous "home-coming" celebration.

BRYAN CALLS ON OMAHA FRIENDS

Makes Brother-in-Law's Office His Headquarters and Tells of the Desk Episode.

HE DOES NOT SEE HITCHCOCK

William Jennings Bryan dropped into town for a few hours yesterday, on his way to Fremont to speak at the tractor show and at the chautauqua.

The former cabinet member's face looked a little more tense than it did on his last visit here. He was full of business as he hurried to the federal building, and then over to the city hall, where he interviewed Mayor Dahlman for a few minutes. He was in no great hurry, but still did not find time to call on the democratic United States senator. He was alone and without his familiar bulky, black traveling bag.

"What about that desk?" "You want to know about that desk, do you?" he replied. "Well, I'll tell you. For sentimental reasons I wanted to keep that desk because on it I signed all of my peace treaties. I arranged with Secretary Lansing to have another desk put in the place of the old one. I gave $20 in payment for the new desk. I am sure the old desk would not have brought that much as second-hand furniture."

Closeted with Mayor. Mr. Bryan and the mayor conferred behind closed doors. The mayor's account of the conference did not cause any stir.

"He just came up to see how I was getting along," reported the mayor.

Leaving the mayor's office, Mr. Bryan went to the elevator entrance on the third floor and looked expectantly at the cage whizzed by, the conductor shouting through the bars, "Going up!"

"Well, I want to go down," replied Mr. Bryan, smiling.

He then walked over to the southeast corner of Eighteenth and Farnam streets and proceeded on an east-bound car. "He's looking thinner than usual," was the comment of several city hall officials. Before going to the city hall Mr. Bryan made the office of district attorney in the federal building his headquarters to transact a little personal business. His brother-in-law, Thomas Allen, recently appointed to the district attorneyship, was not here.

gether in Mexico," he said. "The morning's papers indicate that there is a prospect of their doing so."

The interviewer facetiously observed that he presumed Mr. Bryan meant to use the verb "get together" in its peaceful sense and the ex-secretary of state conceded with a hint of a smile that he did so mean to use the verb.

"Do you think that the procedure of the administration looking to this end is likely to bring about peace?" he was asked. "Well, I don't care to indulge in prophecy," he said. "I leave pro, he, ing to the newspapers. They are good at that."

Strong for Better Roads. So, coming down from great, throbbing questions of international importance to the humble subject of roads, Mr. Bryan let it be known that he believes that several great highways should be built across the republic from coast to coast and fed by laterals. He believes the time is near at hand when the federal government will assist the states and counties in building such roads; also that convict labor should be used largely in building these roads. He referred to the road building out in the coast states.

"I mention these as some of the developments of the good roads idea, and I am hoping that the matter may be taken up in Nebraska. "I would like to see our state take up the question of good roads in a systematic way and begin building highways, first along the main traveled lines, and then cross roads connecting these, until the advantage of good roads are brought to all. "It is only a question of time until the federal government will lend assistance by supplying part of the funds needed for interstate roads. I am satisfied that hard roads will ultimately play an important part in the regulation of railroad rates."

Mr. Bryan stated that he will spend about three weeks more this summer in chautauqua work.

JUDGE CHARGES FIFTY TO PLAY WITH REVOLVER

Jesse Forbes and O. D. Wright were both fined $5 and costs in police court for carrying concealed weapons. Jesse Forbes said that he was passing through Omaha on his way to the harvest fields in Dakota and had just bought his gun, but Wright, who is employed in the stock yards in South Omaha, was caught at Twelfth and Davenport waving a big caliber revolver without any thought of the damage it might do to the inhabitants of the vicinity if it went off.

Two Arrested for Causing Panic in Movie Theater

Omaha police have arrested two men in connection with a panic which was caused at the Princess theater, a moving picture house at 1213 Douglas street, where some one scattered some Chinese stink balls and almost stampeded the house, one woman fainting. Bill Bradshaw was arrested and he told the police that he had been paid $2 by a rival concern for scattering the stuff. He accused Lew Keeney, an operator, who will not admit anything to the police. It is said that the trouble grew out of the hiring of nonunion operators.

Pat Andrews, who has charge of the moving pictures of the Stecher-Cutler go at Rourke park July 5, put on a private exhibition of the pictures Sunday for Joe Stecher, his brother, Antonio, and for Joe Hemenak, Stecher's manager. Stecher was delighted with the pictures, and said, "That is surely the first time I ever saw myself wrestle. The pictures are great."

Wheat Takes Drop of Six Cents on the Omaha Grain Mart

With fairly heavy receipts and because of a general belief that wheat has been too high as compared with the futures, prices sold off heavily again. Old wheat sold at $1.88 1/2, 6 cents lower than last Saturday, and now at $2.01 1/2, 3 to 5 cents lower.

Another cause for the drop, it was asserted, is due to the fact that millers have become pretty well stocked up with old wheat, and that because of little foreign demand, there is no output for a surplus. Corn failed to sympathize with wheat, and prices were 1/2 down to 1 1/2 cents up on Saturday, selling at $2.74 1/2 per bushel.

BORROWS WATCH TO TIME HIMSELF STILL RUNNING

George Walters, alias Arkansas, colored, borrowed a watch from a casual acquaintance Sunday in order to time himself on an errand he promised to run. He was to return in an hour, but failed to get back. Several hours passed, and the friend's suspicion became aroused, whereupon he informed the police. Walters was caught, and was given sixty days by Judge Foster.
