Railroad Traffic is Good, Says Gardner

President Gardner is finishing up s tour over a portion of the western lines of the Northwestern, stopped off in Omaha long enough Thursday afternoon to play a few holes of golf at the Country club.

President Gardner asserts that while the heavy run of fall business has not started there is no cause for complaint over lack of traffic. He says that over practically all of the Northwestern territory small grain crops have been excellent, though shipments have been held back on account of the rains that have interferred with threshing.
